NO SALUTE, SAYS MEXICAN GENERAL

But President Will Require Huerta to Keep His Promise of Full Reparation.

LIND FOR STERN MEASURES

Arrives to Consult with the President—May Advise a Change of Policy.

MORE SAILORS FOR TAMPICO

Celtic to Carry Several Hundred—Solace Sails to Accommodate Refugees There.

VERA CRUZ, April 13.—Gen. Gustavo Maass, the Federal commander at Vera Cruz, speaking to-day with reference to the arrest of an American detachment from the Dolphin at Tampico and the demand by the American Admiral for satisfaction for the insult to the American flag, said that the Mexican Government had ordered Gen. Morelos Zaragosa not to accede to Admiral Mayo's demand—which was that the American flag should be saluted within twenty-four hours—considering that such a step would be highly derogatory to national dignity, and was also uncalled for, as absolutely no insult had been offered to the American flag.

For the unfortunate mistake in arresting the Americans, Gen. Maass added, Gen. Morelos Zaragosa had by his apology made ample compensation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Further delay on the part of the Mexican Government in offering reparation for the Tampico incident by firing a salute to the American flag has tended to give an extremely serious turn to a situation that promised a satisfactory solution. The Mexican Government has promised that the salute shall be given, but has introduced proposals in the negotiations for carrying out this form of reparation to which the United States will not assent. While there is the strongest probability that the incident will be adjusted to the satisfaction of this Government, the situation has nevertheless assumed a dangerous status.

At this critical juncture John Lind, ex-Governor of Minnesota, who has been President Wilson's personal representative in Mexico since last August, has arrived in Washington and will have a heart-to-heart talk with the President to-morrow. Mr. Lind landed at the Washington Navy Yard this morning from the United States yacht Mayflower, which brought him from Vera Cruz. Although Mr. Lind declined to discuss the Mexican situation, he is credited with having reached the conclusion that a change in the President's policy of "watchful waiting" is essential to the restoration of normal conditions in Mexico. He is represented at being as firm as ever in believing that Gen. Huerta should retire from the Presidency, but at the same time is convinced that more positive measures are necessary to carry out this Government's efforts to end Mexico's troubles.

With Mr. Lind said to hold this opinion, with the Mexican authorities inclined to delay compliance with their promise to offer reparation by saluting the Stars and Stripes, and with American and British property of great value being destroyed by the fire of the Federal and Constitutionalist forces engaged at Tampico, a situation is presented that may cause President Wilson to change his present policy to one of force and vigor. Much will depend probably on what Mr. Lind tells the President tomorrow.

But the incident growing out of the indignities offered to an officer and marines from the United States dispatch boat Dolphin can be settled in only one way, according to emphatic declaration by Government officers, and this may produce action that will bring Mexican-American relations to a head.

President Wilson declared emphatically to-day that reparation for the Tampico indignity would be made only through a salute to the American flag. There was no qualification in what the President said, and his statement is backed up by all the knowledge obtainable from men who are in his confidence. The Administration is unwilling to disclose, while the Tampico negotiations are in progress, the nature of the suggestions made by the Mexican authorities which have tended to delay the firing of the salute. It is understood that these suggestions are intended to soften, if possible, the reparation which the salute will furnish; but the United States Government appears to be standing out firmly for compliance with the letter of Admiral Mayo's demand. Officials indicated to-day that the Easter festivities in Mexico had tended somewhat to retard the negotiations and that this Government was disposed to be lenient to the extent of permitting delay until the festivities were over. But that the salute must be fired, and fired soon, has been laid down as a primary principle by President Wilson.

Embargo on Tampico News.

To-night a practically complete embargo prevails with reference to news concerning the Tampico affair. This indicates to some extent how concerned the Administration is over the situation. Nobody in a position of authority is willing to make any statement of the prevailing conditions. Suggestions that the contemplated departure of Secretary Bryan for Florida to-morrow indicates that there is no danger of any crisis in the relations between Mexico and the United States should be accepted, however, with all reserve.

Outside of the incident resulting from

BARS ROCKEFELLER BRANCH

Gov. Fielder Vetoes a Bill to Extend Medical Institute to Jersey.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., April 13.—Arguments for and against the Colgate bill, which the Legislature passed, to enable the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research to establish a branch near New Brunswick, were heard by Gov. Fielder to-day. The Governor vetoed the bill late this afternoon.

The chief argument against the bill was made by Frederick P. Bellamy of Brooklyn, representing the Newark Vivisection Investigation League. He contended that the measure was so wide in its scope that it would permit the vivisection of human beings in addition to animals. He asserted that under the bill any one would have license to practice any kind of vivisection, and that any five persons, after incorporating, could conduct any sort of experimentation. M. J. Whitty of Newark also spoke against the bill.

Dr. Simon Flexner, Director of Laboratories of the Rockefeller Institute, spoke in favor of the bill. Dr. Flexner said that the advances in medical science were due to experimentation, and he contended that every dose of medicine taken by a person was an experiment, as all drugs did not have the same effect on all persons.

Dr. J. T. Lipman, director of the experiment station at New Brunswick, and Dr. Richard Cole Newton favored the bill, as did Dr. B. C. Englis, editor of The Journal of the Medical Society of New Jersey, and Starr J. Murphy. It was argued in support of the bill that the farmers of New Jersey would be benefited, as studies would be made of diseases which affect farm animals.

CLOSES 12 HAVANA BLOCKS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, April 13.—Dr. Juan Guiteras, the Director of Sanitation, has ordered that twelve blocks of the commercial district of Havana be closed for several days pending fumigation with hydrocyanic acid and a thorough destruction of rats.

While the commercial losses will be enormous, such radical methods are considered necessary if the plague is to be rooted out.

The twelve blocks extend considerably beyond the places where plague cases have been found. It is thought that if the fleas and rats are exterminated within this area the fight will be successful.

There was no definite new plague case to-day, but one suspected case.

Secrecy Surrounds New Concern Obtaining a Delaware Charter.

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., April 13.—Attachés of a local charter agency are named as the incorporators of the International American Oil Company, chartered at Dover, Del., to-day with capital of $50,000,000.

When the incorporators were asked to name the real interests behind the concern they refused to do so. One of them said the charter was taken out with the understanding that the actual interests would not be revealed, but he gave no reason for this secrecy. The State Department, at Dover, has no way of knowing who are behind the company. The only incorporators of record are Francis D. Buck, George D. Hopkins, and George W. Dillman, all of Wilmington.

The State tax paid with the filing of the charter amounts to $2,600. This indicated that the full capitalization would be paid in.

TETRAZZINI STOPS A PANIC.

Rises and Sings to "Movie" Audience Frightened by Fire.

Special to The New York Times.

CANTON, Ohio, April 13.—Mme. Tetrazzini's voice stilled a frightened audience at a moving-picture theatre this afternoon and prevented a panic, when a curtain at one of the exists caught fire.

The blaze was preceded by the explosion of an incandescent bulb. The audience made a rush for the exists. The singer arose from her seat and endeavored to stop the mad rush. Then she forced her way through the crowd to the stage and began to sing. As soon as her voice was heard above the tumult the frightened people halted and returned to their seats.

"I was badly frightened myself," said the singer, afterward, "but as I stood up I could see that only the curtains were ablaze and that the fire would be extinguished easily. I then thought of singing to reassure the people, and it had the desired effect."

Virginia Couples Take Advantage of Excursion to Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Cupid's Special is here again. It reached Washington this afternoon in the shape of an excursion train from Richmond, Va., bringing 300 persons from that city and other places in the Old Dominion.

The excursion is a semi-annual affair, arranged by Mrs. J. R. Gill in aid of a home for orphan boys which she manages in Richmond, and from the fact that a considerable number of her patrons have taken advantage of the opportunity to get married in Washington the title "Cupid's Special" has been derived.

Within five minutes after the train reached the Union Station three couples of the excursionists were on their way to the Court House to get marriage licenses. Mrs. Gill said she believed many more of her charges would enter into the bonds of matrimony before the time came for the excursionists to start back to Richmond.

KILLED AT SUPPER TABLE.

Two Men Fired Shotguns at Westbury Estate Superintendent.

MINEOLA, L. I., April 13.—While seated at the supper table with his wife and three children last night Frank Lanzara, who for twelve years had been Superintendent of Mark C. Meager's country place at Westbury, was shot to death by two men who made their escape. Lanzara was 60 years old. His wife says that so far as she knows her husband had no enemies, but she is inclined to suspect that the crime was committed by members of the Italian colony near Westbury, who have at various times been under suspicion in connection with robberies and hold-ups in the neighborhood.

Mrs. Lanzara, when her husband was shot, turned toward a window in time to see two men run away in the direction of a thicket. Both were armed with shotguns. The top of Lanzara's head was almost blown off and apparently both men had fired guns at him. Sheriff Pettitt has discovered no clue.

ROOSEVELT GETS THE CALL TO RUN

Boom for Governor Makes Him Give Up Plan to Attend Kermit's Wedding in Madrid.

IS COMING HOME IN MAY

Progressive Leaders Demand That He Head the State Ticket This Fall.

SULZER WILL RUN ALSO

Incorporates "American Party" at Albany and Col. Bacon Says He Will Head Full Ticket.

For Governor: Theodore Roosevelt!

A majority of the Progressive leaders in this State hope to see this line at the head of the ticket which they expect to nominate unofficially at a mass meeting-convention to be held some time late in the Summer.

Col. Roosevelt has sent word to some of the leaders that he will abandon his projected European trip to attend the wedding of his son, Kermit, in Madrid early in June and come right back to this country when he emerges from the Brazilian jungle. This, it is calculated, would bring him here about the middle of May.

Theodore Douglas Robinson, the Colonel's nephew, who is Chairman of the Bull Moose State Committee, went to Europe several weeks ago, expecting to meet Col. Roosevelt there and to give him the latest political information from this country. Chairman Robinson has sent word that he may be expected home in New York on the Mauretania on April 24.

In the meantime, Vice Chairman O. B. Phillips of Lewis County is holding the fort in Progressive State headquarters in Washington Square. Acting Chairman Phillips has received hundreds of letters daily for weeks urging the nomination of Col. Roosevelt for Governor. He said yesterday that it all depended on the Colonel Until recently there had been some opposition to the Colonel's candidacy among the Bull Moose leaders. Many of the leaders up State felt that the Colonel would lower his prestige by accepting a Gubernatorial nomination, and that he ought to save all his ammunition for the Presidential campaign of 1916. Recently, however, it was said at State headquarters yesterday, there has been a revulsion of feeling. Now, according to the most reliable information, George W. Perkins alone among the leaders is standing out against the colonel's candidacy. The views of Mr. Perkins of necessity will carry great weight with the party. Not only is he chairman of the National Executive Committee of the Progressive Party, but he is also the man to whom the party must look largely for the funds to carry on any extended and aggressive campaign.

The Choice of the Party.

"Everything, of course, will be held in abeyance until the Colonel arrives," said Acting Chairman Phillips yesterday, "but from the letters I have received during these last few weeks that I have been sitting here in Mr. Robinson's place, there is no doubt in my mind that Col. Roosevelt is the almost unanimous choice of the party for leader in the fight next Fall. Whether the Colonel will be willing to make the great sacrifice of accepting a nomination for Governor at the hands of the Progressive party is something that can be determined only after Col. Roosevelt himself has had his say."

Many of the Progressive leaders believe that the Colonel is the one man who could bring about a painless and automatic amalgamation of the Progressive and the Republican Parties. They feel assured that if the Colonel's name was placed on the Republican primary ballot—a feat that can be accomplished by 3,000 Republicans throughout the State signing a petition with that end in view—he would be abundantly able to carry the Republican primaries as well as the primaries of his own party. In connection with this it is known that thousands of Progressives have enrolled as Republicans in all sections of the State, and that the Progressive leaders are well pleased with the action of their followers in ostensibly enlisting under the standard of a hostile party.

While many of the Bull Moose leaders are not overlooking the fact that the effect of the Colonel's accepting the Republican nomination as well as the Progressive might militate against him and against the Progressive Party in other States, where the forces of the Progressives are set against any such junction between the two parties, the leaders believe that if the Progressives were to adopt a truly progressive platform prior to the primaries and the Colonel were to announce emphatically that he would stand uncompromisingly on that platform, this would counteract any impression that the Colonel was willing to make terms with the enemy that otherwise might be created in other States.

To Hold Unofficial Convention.

It is the present plan of the Progressive leaders to call an unofficial convention some time late this Summer. Unlike the plans of the two older parties the Progressives do not intend to hold unofficial primaries to elect delegates to this prospective convention, but will merely issue a call to the leaders in the different counties to get together. At this unofficial convention it is planned to adopt a catchy Bull Moose declaration of principle, to which all candidates must subscribe later, and also to discuss in a general way the question of State candidates. The Progressive State Committee will meet in Albany about May 1 to plan for the unofficial convention.

The Republicans and Democrats have not as yet determined whether to hold

MURPHY TO GO BACK TO DEMOCRATIC CLUB

May Be Readmitted To-night—Will Be if He Applies, Says Judge O'Dwyer.

DINNER ATTRACTS ONLY 150

Jefferson Day Attendance Cut from Last Year's 1,000—Only One Wigwam Leader There.

That Charles F. Murphy would be reinstated as a member of the National Democratic Club this evening was a report persistently circulated at the Jefferson dinner given by the club last night. The report was practically confirmed by Judge O'Dwyer, who led the fight in which Murphy was ousted from the club. The striking shrinkage in the attendance at the dinner last night, which was the first celebration of the kind since the Tammany chieftain was ousted for non-payment of dues, was pointed out by various politicians.

There were 1,000 or more at the Jefferson dinner of 1913, which was held at the Waldorf-Astoria; last night not more than 150 persons gathered around the board in the club. More than a score of Tammany leaders applauded the speakers a year ago. Last night only one of them was present—Senator James J. Frawley.

When the report of Murphy's prospective reinstatement was mentioned to Judge Edward F. O'Dwyer, President of the club, he prefaced his reply with a statement that he voiced the sentiments of the great majority of the members.

"Charles F. Murphy represents the type of leader," said Judge O'Dwyer, "that we have been fighting and will continue to fight. He is an undesirable leader of the Democratic Party. Of the 700 members of the Democratic Club, at least 550, whom I represent, are opposed to Murphy and do not want him in the club. But Murphy and those who were dropped with him for non-payment of dues claim that they have been deprived of valuable property rights in the club. We do not want any man to feel that we have robbed him of what is justly due him, so if Murphy and his friends make application for readmission to the club on the ground that they have lost property rights by being dropped from membership, they will undoubtedly be readmitted

"We do not want any man to leave the club with even a semblance of a grievance against it. Murphy was dropped in accordance with our constitution because he had not paid his dues. This was just. We wanted to get rid of him, but only in a just way.

"If he claims that it would be unjust to still keep him out of the club we will readmit him, even though we are as much opposed to him as ever. If he wants to come back into the club knowing that he is not wanted, he may do so. The only members who have made any serious effort to have Mr. Murphy reinstated have been the old 'hold-over' members of the Board of Governors. They represent only a small minority of the members of the club."

The dinner marked the one hundred and seventy-first anniversary of the birth of Jefferson.

Among the notable absentees were Gov. Glynn, William Church Osborn, Democratic State Chairman, and William F. McCombs, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee. Gov. Glynn sent a long letter of regret.

Mr. Osborn sent his regrets more briefly. Mr. McCombs, who is on his ranch in Arkansas, was not heard from. President Wilson, Secretary of State Bryan, and Secretary of the Navy Daniels had been invited as guests, but sent regrets. The message from President Wilson was brief but cordial enough to be regarded by those who heard it as an indorsement of the club's attitude, which had been pronouncedly anti-Murphy.

The principal speakers of the evening were Gov. David L. Walsh of Massachusetts and Dudley Field Malone, Collector of the Port, who President Wilson recently declared was not authorized to speak for him or the national Administration. Mr. Malone delivered a straight from the shoulder fighting talk, in which he declared he had fought the battles for progressive Democracy in forty States of the Union in the last three nights, and did not intend to be muzzled when he proceeded to do the same sort of thing in his own State and his own organization.

The address of Gov. Walsh also was along distinctly progressive lines, and altogether the speechmaking went far toward lending emphasis to the very noticeable absence of "regulars" and Democrats of a more conservative bent.

Judge Edward F. O'Dwyer, who as President of the club, has taken active part in the fight on Murphy and his henchmen, started the speechmaking by reading Gov. Glynn's leter. The Governor pleaded the urgent duties that confronted him at the Capitol with thirty-day bills awaiting his approval or veto piled high upon his desk before him.

"What Jefferson expressed a hundred years ago is true to-day," wrote Gov. Glynn. "Jefferson was a real Democrat because he was willing to sink his individual ideas of certain subjects for the benefit of the principles on which both himself and his party were united. There is no division to-day in the Democratic Party over the principles for which the Democratic Party has stood since its beginning, and those who today proclaim allegiance to the things that Jefferson taught can show their sincerest respect for his wisdom by applying to their own political conduct the practical precepts which Jefferson refused to disregard.

"Jeffersonian democracy was successful in the days of Jefferson. So long as there are principles to be fought for, so long as there are great issues to be discussed and decided, these principles must be asserted and these issues vindicated through political parties, and the wonderful hold which Jefferson has ever had upon the affections, imagination, and respect of the American people proves that the party which Jefferson founded will never fail for long of success while it holds true to the course fixed for all time by the wisdom, patriotism, and genius of Thomas Jefferson."

"To Gov. Glynn's declaration that there can be no division among Democrats over the wisdom of the principles proclaimed by Thomas Jefferson I say a hearty amen," said Judge O'Dwyer. "But there is a growing demand that these principles shall be enunciated by leaders who can isolate themselves from selfish interests in their leadership and remember only the best interests of their party and of the people."

Governor Walsh was warmly applauded. He said there was no place in this country for two parties "of privilege and class" and that three parties could not endure for any great time.

"There is bound to be a thorough reorganization of parties before long," Gov. Walsh continued. "There will be

MILLIONS UNTAXED IN WASHINGTON CITY

Prouty of Iowa Says the Capital Is Becoming an Asylum for Rich Tax Dodgers.

WEALTH HIDDEN IN VAULTS

Two Men Have $100,000,000 Locked Up There, While Poor Are Overtaxed, He Asserts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Representative Prouty of Iowa told the House of Representatives to-day that if "old George Washington were back here in Washington he would have to come to the conclusion either that he was a Shylock or that we were chumps."

Mr. Prouty, who is a Republican member of the District of Columbia Committee, is in favor of a complete revision of methods of assessment and taxation in the national capital. He was speaking in advocacy of a pending measure having that end in view. Mr. Prouty pictured Washington City as paying less than its share in taxes, because the Federal Government met half the ordinary expenses of the District of Columbia. He insisted that the poor man's property was over-assessed, that the rich man's property was under-assessed, that millions of dollars' worth of diamonds in Washington were untaxed, and that Washington was an asylum for a rich aristocracy that came here, and escaped taxation on personal property.

Without mentioning names Mr. Prouty told the House that the wife of one rich resident of Washington attended a royal fête in London recently and was bedecked with half a million dollars' worth of diamonds, but paid no taxes on them in Washington.

"When the assessor approaches her," said Mr. Prouty, "and asks her if she has any property to help pay the running expenses of the District of Columbia, she says, 'No; get away from me,' and goes to the window and points down the street, where there is a gang of men with their carts and mules cleaning up the refuse of the city, and she says: 'Go to those fellows and get the money necessary to run the District; just let me alone.' And yet the bill introduced by Mr. George of New York would perpetuate that wrong.

"You cannot go to an entertainment in this city without having your eyes fairly blinded with the glitter of diamonds and royal gems; yet if you go down to the tax roll you will find not a dollar registered there.

"Since I have been a member of the committee investigating the relations between the Federal Government and the District of Columbia," said Mr. Prouty, "one thing has stood out prominently in every investigation, and that is that there has been a certain little plunderbund set of fellows that has controlled the situation largely for its own advantage and benefit."

Mr. Prouty said that the average levy upon the full cash value of real estate in American cities the same size as Washington was 19 mills on the dollar, but that the average levy in Washington was only 6.3 mills on the dollar.

"'There are two men," said Mr. Prouty, "commonly reported to have $100,000,000 in this city locked up in their safety vaults now. If you will put that in at 19 mills on the dollar it would produce the enormous sum of $1,823,300. Is there a man here willing to go on record as saying real estate in Washington should only be assessed at 6 or 7 mills on the dollar while his people at home are paying anywhere from 17 to 25 mills on the dollar to secure to their people not nearly as good advantages and circumstances as are provided for the people living in Washington?

"There are plenty of men making Washington a technical residence who do not live here for the very purpose of escaping taxation.

"Because there is no inheritance tax and because of the fact that moneys and credits escape taxation Washington has become an asylum for the rich. I say in all candor the people represented in the American Congress have no right to create an asylum here, an isle to which the rich may flee from local taxation and escape taxation everywhere. I could show you upon the tax rolls of Washington men who have been worth more than $40,000,000 in one instance have lived twenty-five years in this District, and have only paid $27 tax in that whole time, and that happened to be on goods that were in storage."

AMUNDSEN NEEDS $200,000.

Not Likely, It Is Said, to Get the Money for His Proposed Voyage.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Private reports from Christiania received here to-night are to the effect that Capt. Roald Amundsen, the Norwegian explorer, must have $200,000 before he can equip his proposed polar expedition. Explorers and scientists here express the belief that ti will be practically impossible to raise the required sum.

The reports from Christiania said that Capt. Amundsen's ship, the Fram, after completing repairs at Montevideo, would sail for Norway, the plan being for her to leave there and pass through the Panama Canal to the Pacific Coast early in 1915, provided that $200,000 could be raised before that time.

The National Geographic Society here recently decided to appropriate $20,000 for the Amundsen expedition. According to the announced plans, the expedition is scheduled to leave the Pacific Coast next year to explore the vast polar tract between Northern Canada, Alaska, and Asia, including the north pole.

It is expected that the voyage would require at least four years in the polar ice.

VALLON IS NOT WORRYING

He and His Counsel Believe Immunity Contract Will Hold—Jerome to Defend Becker.

Two hours before he was put to death at Sing Sing early yesterday morning with the three other gunmen for the killing of Herman Rosenthal, "Dago Frank" Cirofici made a statement in the presence of Warden Clancy, Supt. Riley of the State Prison Department, and his own mother and sister, regarding the murder. According to this statement, "Harry Vallon, "Gyp the Blood" Horowitz, and "Lefty Louie" Rosenberg were the men who fired the shots that killed the gambler.

Cirofici insisted that he was not present when Rosenthal was slain, but admitted that he knew of the plot and was the gang's leader. He also asserted that Police Lieutenant Becker had "nothing to do with this case, so far as I know."

Warden Clancy of Sing Sing went to Albany in the afternoon and gave Gov. Glynn the details of the incident. It was some such "confession" as this, it was learned yesterday after Warden Clancy had started for Albany, that Superintendent of Prisons Riley hoped to get when he went to Sing Sing on Friday night at the request of Gov. Glynn. Mr. Riley could get nothing from "Gyp the Blood," "Whitey Lewis," or "Lefty Louie," but he left the prison believing that "Dago Frank" would talk some time before his death, although he was silent Friday night. It was 4 o'clock yesterday morning when Cirofici started to made his statement. He felt that all hope of a stay of execution was past. Before finishing what he had to say he collapsed.

The Rev. Father Cashin, the Italian's spiritual adviser; Warden Clancy, Mrs. Mary Cirofici, his mother, and Miss Mary Cirofici, his sister, were present when he made his confession, and it was only after earnest pleas had been made by his relatives that he consented to talk.

Gov. Glynn was informed of "Dago Frank's" statement as soon as it was made, but he said he would make no comment until it had been received officially. He said, however, that he had had no doubt of the justice of the verdict in the gunmen's case for several days.

Glynn Greatly Relieved.

The Governor had just finished his third public hearing of the day on pending legislative bills when his Military Secretary, Reynolds K. Townsend, told him that Supt. Riley and Warden Clancy were in his private room. Immediately the Governor's face brightened, and he heaved a sigh of relief as he hurried to meet them. He went over the report of the prison officials twice, reflected for a minute or two, and then said that he was fully convinced that no mistake had been made in the execution. While the statement on the confession was being prepared for the press in the legal department of the Executive suite, Supt. Riley and Warden Clancy sat by and gave what prompting and assistance were necessary.

It is said that had the statement of "Dago Frank" been made earlier the execution would have been postponed until the end of the week, although no commutation of sentence would have been given to any of the gunmen.

"Dago Frank" Not Under Oath.

Supt. Riley was asked last evening if "Dago Frank's" confession would have any effect on the second trial of Lieut. Becker. He answered that no one had ever said that Becker dealt with the gunmen. Furthermore, the statement of "Dago Frank," he said, was not taken under oath, and nothing was written by the condemned man.

"'Dago Frak' and 'Whitey Lewis' deluded themselves with the belief that they were innocent because neither fired a shot," Supt. Riley said. "The other two men never declared their innocence, but maintained that the evidence did not establish their guilt."

Mr. Riley then expressed the hope that there would be no more executions in this State, but admitted that he had no good ground for such a hope. He said:

"There are fifteen other prisoners in the State prisons, eleven of whom are in Sing Sing, awaiting decisions on appeals from death sentences. I favored a bill before the Legislature providing that the jury should determine whether a convicted man should be sentenced to life imprisonment or death, but the bill failed. Had it become a law the result

"Dago Frank's" Oral Confession As Reported by Warden Clancy

Rosenthal Murder a Gamblers' Fight and Becker Not in It, "So Far as I Know"—He Himself Out of It, Too.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 13.—Here is Warden Clancy's version of "Dago Frank" Cirofici's oral confession, as given out by the Warden himself on his arrival here from Sing Sing Prison this afternoon:

"About 8 o'clock on Sunday night Rosenberg asked me to save Frank, saying he had nothing to do with the shooting. He was not there. I went over and asked Frank why he did not tell the truth. He replied that he knew what was going on, but was not there when the shooting took place.

"I advised him to tell the whole story. He said if he did, 'they' would kill his brother. I asked whom he meant by 'they.' He replied that there were fifty men in New York he could name. He said, 'I don't care about myself; it's my family I care for.'

"I asked that Frank Cirofici be brought from the condemned cell house to the Principal Keeper's office about 4 o'clock this morning. He made the following, among other statements, in the presence of myself, the Principal Keeper, the chaplain, his mother and sister. They urged him to tell the whole truth. He hesitated and said:

"'I don't want to make any statement for the public. I do not fear for myself, but I do fear for you.'

"His sister replied, 'Don't have any fear for us; we will take care of ourselves; God will protect us.'

"His mother and sister continued to urge him to tell the truth. He said:

"'I did not do the shooting. The men who fired the shots were Gyp, Louie and Vallon. I was five miles away at the time. So far as I know, Becker had nothing to do with this case. It was a gamblers' fight.'

"He mentioned several raids on gambling houses, and said that the story Shapiro told to Deputy Commissioner Dougherty was true. He said:

"'I told some lies on the stand to prove an alibi for the rest of the boys. The testimony about the conversation with Rose in the car on the way down was not true. I was in "Bridgey" Webber's when the arrangements were made. I did not know just what the arrangements were. I knew something was coming off. I did not see "Louie" pack the trunk as I testified on the stand. There were guns there, but not the ones they used.'

"When asked how he gained this information he said: 'I heard the boys talking about it since I was here.'

"The conversation then related to other matters not directly connected with the Rosenthal murder. He admitted his knowledge of and participation in the preparations for the murder, but denied his presence when the actual murder was committed."

DENIES CONFESSION WILL HELP BECKER

Whitman Holds It Is Not Evidence and Will Ask To-morrow for New Trial Next Month.

EXCULPATION, SAY OTHERS

"Dago Frank" Has Proved That the Conspirators Lied on the Stand, They Assert.

"Dago Frank's" confession, made within less than two hours of his death, will not be permitted to interfere in any way with preparations for the second trial of ex-Police Lieut. Charles Becker for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, District Attorney Whitman announced yesterday. But Becker's friends are holding that the confession, if admitted will amount to an exculpation of the ex-policeman as the instigator of the Rosenthal murder, and furthermore they declare that it shows the worthlessness of the testimoney given on the Becker trial by Rose, Weber, and Vallon, the confessed leaders in the conspiracy to put Rosenthal out of the way.

On the other hand, District Attorney Whitman does not consider the confession vital to the case, either from the standpoint of the defense or of the prosecution. The confession of "Dago Frank" says that he was not at the scene of the crime when it was committed, and his denunciation of Vallon as one of the three men who fired at the gambler becomes hearsay evidence. It is, therefore, held inadmissible either in the defense of Becker or in the prosecution of Vallon as one of the actual murderers.

It can also be stated that in the opinion of the District Attorney the confession in many ways corroborates the contention of the State—that there was a conspiracy, and that as a result of that conspiracy the gunmen were hired to murder Rosenthal a week in advance of the assassination.

After it was made known in New York that the gunman had confessed just before he entered the death chamber and that a report of his confession was then on its way to Gov. Glynn in Albany, District Attorney Whitman was called on the long-distance telephone by Assistant District Attorney Delehanty, his representative at the Capitol. Mr. Delehanty had been informed of the nature of the confession and he told Mr. Whitman that there was nothing in it that could be taken as proof that Vallon had been a member of the firing squad that murdered Rosenthal. Mr. Delehanty telephoned a second time announcing that the confession had arrived at the Capitol and was then in the hands of John Godfrey Saxe, Gov. Glynn's legal adviser.

Becker Trial in May.

It was after Mr. Whitman had talked with Mr. Delehanty that it was announced that the State would go right ahead with the case and that to-morrow District Attorney Whitman would personally appear before Justice Seabury, in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court, and ask that Becker's second trial be set for the first Monday in May. Mr. Whitman will also ask that a special panel of talesmen be chosen for the second jury.

District Attorney Whitman himself called attention to the fact that in the immunity agreement signed by Harry Vallon it was stipulated that if it was subsequently shown that Vallon had actually fired upon Rosenthal the immunity would not longer hold and that he would have to stand trial on a charge of murder in the first degree. If any evidence is produced that bears out what the dead gunman said, it was predicted with absolute certainty that Mr. Whitman would act against Vallon. But as it stands, the confession in no way affects the standing of Vallon in the case, according to the State's view of the matter. It was said that Gov. Glynn called up Mr. Whitman and called his attention to "Dago Frank's" statement that the plan to kill Rosenthal was made a week before the murder was committed. The Governor considered that a very significant statement, it was said.

J. F. McIntyre Agrees.

John F. McIntyre, who was leading counsel for Becker in his first trial, agrees with Mr. Whitman that the confession as it stands is inadmissible evidence. The only way it could be received in evidence in the opinion of Mr. McIntyre would be for Mr. Whitman to waive his rights in the matter, or else to have the Judge order it in evidence as the dying declaration of a man who in making it realized that it could in no wise alter the doom that awaited him.

"If the statement of 'Dago Frank,'" said Mr. McIntyre, "can be proved to be admissible as evidence, it will, in my opinion, tend largely to exculpate Becker.

"It will be remembered by those who followed the trial that Rose when on the stand and under cross-examination stated that he had informed the gunmen when he engaged them that he was acting for Becker, and that Becker would protect them.

"Now the confession says clearly that the gunmen did not know any one else in the case outside of Rose, Webber, and Vallon. But after all is said the matter simmers down to the proposition, How can that confession be made competent proof in the case of Becker? I confess that it presents a most interesting point. In many respects the confession of the condemned man amounts to a dying declaration, although I doubt very much if its admissibility could be urged upon that principle.

"The rule of a dying declaration is that the declaration must be against an accused and by the person whom that accused person has mortally injured, and made when it is certain that the injured person will not be able to appear against the accused when the case is called for trial. 'Dago Frank' knew that he was going to die, and that within a very little while. He knew that what he said could not in any way benefit him. Likewise, he must have realized that it was a mortal sin to go from the confessional with a lie in his heart, and that his purpose was to purge himself of the untruth before the State claimed the forfeit of his life. It is a situation the like of which I do not believe has ever before arisen in the history of English jurisprudence.

"But I think upon the whole that after the entire case has been surrounded by so many mysteries and so many doubts born of the testimony given by Rose, Weber, Vallon, and Schepps that the District Attorney at the coming trial, he being a quasi judicial officer, should in the interest of justice waive all legal objections and consent to the introduction of 'Dago Frank's' confession.

Vallon Frequently Accused.

"If it is established that Vallon did fire a shot the fact would taint the whole fabric of the conspiracy testimony of Rose, Weber, Schepps, and Vallon. Their stories all agreed that Vallon was not one of the actual assassins. All would have been that only such as were guilty of cold-blooded murder would go to the chair."

At 6:17 A. M. the four gunmen who had been convicted of shooting Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, on the morning of July 16, 1912, had paid the penalty by death in the electric chair in Sing Sing Prison. It required just thirty-nine minutes to dispatch the four gangsters. The most dramatic incident was a statement from the chair by the "nerviest" of the gunmen, "Whitey Lewis."

Frank Cirofici, or "Dago Frank," was the first to go. He entered the death chamber at 5:38 o'clock and his corpse was carried out a few minutes later. Jacob Seidenshner, or "Whitey Lewis," came in at 5:47:30 o'clock; Harry Horowitz, or "Gyp the Blood," followed at 5:56, and Louis Rosenberg, or "Lefty Louie," entered last at 6:07. It was 6:17 when "Lefty Louie" was pronounced dead.

Medical men, newspaper men, and prison officials witnessed the execution, and when it was all over there were some pronounced views on capital punishment in the little dismal yard which surrounds the sombre brick death house in the prison yard. There was a different set of witnesses for each execution.

Physicians observed the gunmen periodically, and it was on their reports that the Warden decided, at 5:30 A. M., to send the boys to the chair in this order—"Gyp the Blood," "Lefty Louie," "Dago Frank," and "Whitey Lewis," the weakest being first. The gunmen were not informed of this order, but they must have suspected it and immediately after it was given "Dago Frank" went completely to pieces. So a second order was issued This time it was "Dago Frank," "Gyp the Blood," "Lefty Louie," and "Whitey Lewis." Then "Whitey" showed signs of weakening and the final order of succession was given and carried out.

Cirofici was supported from his cell to the death chamber.

"Good-bye, boys. God bless you," he called out to his companions in the cells.

When he was made fast in the chair he began to murmur indistinctly:

"God have mercy, God have mercy, God have—"

At this moment E. L. Davis, State Electrician of Massachusetts, the chief executioner, threw the switch and released 1,920 volts of current. The Italian ceased to speak, and after a second application of the current he was pronounced dead.

Seidenshner came in attended by the Jewish chaplain, Rabbi Jacob Goldstein. "Whitey Lewis," as he was commonly called, hesitated when he saw the death chair, and brushed away two keepers who stood at his side when he reached it. He was excited and his speech started with difficulty.

"Gentlemen," he finally blurted out. "Gentlemen, I want to make a statement before I go. Gentlemen, for the sake of justice I want to make a statement. Gentlemen, them people who were on the stand, who said they see me shoot—they were perjurers. I swear by God I didn't fire a shot at Rosenthal. Them people, Stanish," and here he choked, "are perjurers."

There is no doubt that he had a great deal more on his mind. In referring to Stanish he meant Giovanni Stanish, who lived in West Forty-third Street, and told of seeing the gunmen shoot Rosenthal. There were some in the room who thought that "Whitey" was trying to say Vallon's name when he choked. They said that they saw the lips shaped as if the name of Vallon were on them THE TIMES reporter did not hear Vallon's name.

It was the action of Dr. Goldstein which cut off the rest of the condemned man's speech. The chaplain stood directly in front of "Whitey," and got his attention. It was noticed that he halted the doomed man the moment that the gunman began to defame others.

"Hear O Israel, the Eternal is our God, the Eternal alone," chanted the chaplain.

The gunman's excitement abated instantly. He was then placed in the chair, and killed by two applications of the current.

It also fell upon Rabbi Goldstein to prepare the way for "Gyp the Blood" a few minutes later. "Gyp" was the most illiterate among the gunmen. He had learned Yiddish on the east side, but he knew naught of Hebrew. Dr. Goldstein had taught him something, but whatever he had learned was forgotten when "Gyp" faced the chair in the death chamber. The rabbi led him and recited prayers. He had to recite the responses, too, and "Gyp" followed him in clear tones. He bore up well, due partly, it was said, to the administration of drugs. In his case, as in the others preceding, two shocks were given.

Louis Rosenberg, "Lefty Louie," the smallest of the gangsters, a mere boy in appearance, was the last of the four to be led from his cell. In the death chamber he pushed the keepers aside and walked to the chair unattended, the only one of the four to do so. The current was applied four times before he was pronounced dead.

GLYNN SILENT ON CONFESSION.

Governor Also Refuses to Discuss the Executions.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 13.—Gov. Glynn refused to-night to comment on the confession of "Dago Frank" or on the result of the execution. His newspaper, The Times-Union, commented editorially, however, on the execution as follows:

> Four gunmen have died at the hands of the law. Outcasts by reason of their crime, they have received consideration in many ways from many people. The courts, before which they were tried in the first place, spent many weeks in sifting from the evidence against them all that was irrelevant. Their case was reviewed in the Court of Appeals with equal precision, no trace of unjust antipathy was visible there either. The law is eminently careful to protect itself from its critics and it never willingly places guilt on an innocent victim.
>
> Relatives sought for the murderers a reprieve at the hands of the Chief Executive. By him the evidence was considered as particularly as possible. Gov. Glynn would feign have given his fellow-men another chance, but the law looked to him for support And when consideration of the evidence deprived the men of any right whatever to clemency, the law's toll had to be paid.
>
> Lastly, the churches did their duty by the convicted men. They pleaded their cause and did their very best by them in what was conceived to be their spiritual needs. The faithfulness of the rabbis and the priests in the service of the men is perhaps the most comforting incident of all. They appreciate the fact that the law had a right to demand its price in the circumstances, but they stood by their charges and in the end were content to render the utmost service to them that the law of God or man allowed.

Warden Clancy left for New York on the midnight train. He said that he was very tired.

CROWDS AWAIT FUNERALS.

Gunmen's Bodies Brought Here and East Side Throngs Gather.

Not one of the bodies of the four gunmen was left in Sing Sing last night. Relatives of the dead men called for them early in the day, and all four were removed to this city in the afternoon.

"Whitey Lewis's" body was the first to arrive here. It was transported in an automobile funeral van from Sing Sing to the undertaking room of Hirsch & Schwartz at 50 Willet Street, where funeral services were held at 3 o'clock. The services were held in the office, with Louis Hirsch, one of the firm, officiating. It was said that the funeral was held outside of the dead gunman's home because his relatives "were ashamed and did not want the crowd in front of their house."

Word had gone out that the services were being held, and friends of the dead man and a crowd of the curious pushed into the undertaking room and a stable adjacent to it. They shoved and elbowed one another to get a glimpse of the corpse, which lay in a basket coffin in front of an altar draped in black.

After the brief services the crowd surged out and ran behind the hearse through the narrow streets between the undertaker's shop and the Williamsburg Bridge. Only at the bridge, where traffic was less congested, was the hearse driver able to leave the shouting crowd behind. The body was taken to Mount Zion Cemetery and there buried.

The news of "Whitey's" funeral spread rapidly, and by 5 o'clock every part of the lower east side from Avenue D to Avenue B, including all the little cross streets, was filled with people. The Orthodox Jews were not at work, because of the feast of the Passover and at 5 o'clock the workers, on their way home, joined them. As far as the Williamsburg bridge the streets were lined with persons who expected another funeral procession was to pass by.

A report published in a Yiddish newspaper that the body of "Lefty Louie" Rosenberg would be removed in the afternoon to the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Sliedan, at 296 Grand Street, caused a crowd to congregate in front of the house at 5 o'clock. Traffic was blocked and the police reserves were called from the Clinton Street Station. The police had a difficult task to convince the crowd that the report was false, and it was more than an hour before order was restored.

Mrs. Rosenberg, the wife of "Lefty Louie," had been living at the house in Grand Street with her mother, but neither of them was at home yesterday.

To get the crowd away from the undertaking shop of Samuel Rothschild, at 208 Lenox Avenue, where the body of Harry Horowitz, or "Gyp the Blood," was taken, it was necessary to carry out an empty coffin and drive it away in a hearse. Even then the crowd was so great that the police were called on to keep the people in check.

Soon after the body arrived, one automobile after another drew up in front of the door, and persons who said they were friends of the dead man sought to get into the rooms. To all admission was denied, but they stood outside. Finally Mr. Rothschild went out and announced that the doors would be opened at 8 o'clock, and at that time friends could view the body.

At 7:30 there were 500 persons outside, and Capt. Gargan of the West 123d Street Station was notified. He stationed two uniformed men to remain there all night.

An old woman, heavily veiled, and leaning on the arm of a young man, got out of an automobile shortly before 8 o'clock, and was making her way toward the door, when one of the policemen stopped her.

"I'm his mother," she whispered, and the policeman drew back, baring his head.

Mrs. Horowitz was in the room ten minutes, and when she left it she was sobbing. The young man said he was a cousin of Harry Horowitz. The mother walked across the street to Temple Israel, where she remained for fifteen minutes.

"It's all over now," she said. "There's nothing that I could say that would help."

Harry Horowitz's wife had not arrived up to a late hour, and it was said that she would not go to the undertaking rooms until this morning, when the funeral services would be held at 10 o'clock. "Gyp's" body will be buried in Mount Zion Cemetery.

"Dago Frank's" body arrived at the rooms of Wethred J. Boyd, undertaker, at 189th Street and Webster Avenue, the Bronx, at 3 o'clock. More than 1,000 persons viewed the body in the afternoon and evening. Funeral services will be held to-morrow.

HOW MURDER WAS STAGED.

Rosenthal Had Accused Becker Just Before He Was Killed.

Herman Rosenthal, keeper of gambling houses, in July, 1912, openly accused Police Lieut. Becker, chief of the Headquarters so-called "strong-arm squad," of persecuting him and alleged in his affidavit that Becker had been his partner in the gambling business. His accusations were caused by Becker's placing policemen in front of his house, at 104 West Forty-fourth Street, to prevent his "opening up."

District Attorney Whitman and Police Commissioner Waldo were on vacation, but returned to the city immediately to start an investigation, and Whitman had a long talk with Rosenthal at his office. Rosenthal promised to go to the Criminal Court Building the next day and testify against Becker and the other accused policemen. He told the District Attorney that his testimony would endanger his life. That night, at 2 o'clock, Rosenthal was shot to death in front of the Metropole Hotel, in West Forty-third Street, in sight of Broadway. A vaudeville actor, Gallagher, was arrested, and Mr. Whitman learned from him that the number of the automobile in which the assassins escaped was that of a car owned by Louis Libbey and William Shapiro. The latter admitted that he had driven the car and testified that Jack Rose, a gambler, and known as a stool pigeon for Becker, had hired the car and "rounded up" the gunmen.

Jack Rose gave himself up on July 18, and a few days later "Bridgey" Webber, Harry Vallon, and six other gamblers were arrested. Rose, Vallon, and Webber next confessed, and Becker was indicted. Four days later Mr. Whitman made public the names of the four gunmen accused of committing the actual crime. These men were known to the police and the underworld as paid assassins, who murdered for profit, and Rose testified that they received $1,000 for killing Rosenthal on the morning the deed was done.

Jack Zelig, the gang leader of the gunmen, had been arrested for having a weapon on his person, and as it was the second time he had faced such a charge, he was likely to go to the penitentiary for fourteen years. Rose, who was said to be Becker's collector of "graft" from the gambling houses, saw Zelig in the Tombs, and told him he would be bailed out. Rose, Vallon, Webber, and Sam Paul made up a pool of $10,000, and with a surety company bond Zelig was bailed out.

Rose, according to his own confession, then went to Zelig and told him that he would have to furnish gunmen to kill Rosenthal or face a long term in prison. Rose testified that Becker threatened to send them all to jail if this was not done.

"If you fellows don't put that 'squealer' out of the way," Rose testified Becker said, "I'll frame you all up the same as I framed Zelig and send you all up the river for seven years."

Zelig testified that he furnished the gunmen, but insisted that he did not know they were to be used for murder. He said he thought they were to go to work for Becker, but had no idea that there was to be a killing. Zelig was shot and killed on Oct. 7, 1912, by "Red Phil" Davidson, an east side gangster. Davidson is serving a twenty-year sentence.

"Dago Frank" Cirofici was the first gunman to be caught. Detectives found him in a Harlem flat by trailing "Dutch Sadie," his sweetheart. Frank had a reputation for shooting and cutting, and had been arrested in 1910 for knifing a man named Keegan. It was known that his services as a thug were for sale. Then in August "Whitey" Lewis Seidenshner was arrested in the Catskills. He was noted as a "pilot-fish" for thugs, but not above committing crime on his own account.

On Sept. 14, two months after Rosenthal was murdered, "Lefty Louie" and "Gyp the Blood" were found living in a flat in Queens. Detective Frank Cassassa, when inspecting a suspected neighborhood, saw Mrs. "Lefty Louie" and traced her to the flat and the two men were arrested just as they were sitting down to supper with a friend.

Louis Rosenberg, "Lefty Louie," was of respectable family, but was known among the gangsters as a gunman and a knife user. He had been indicted for shooting up a pool room owned by Frank Brothers, but the case fell through. Harry Horowitz, "Gyp the Blood," was a "strong-arm" man, a bomb thrower and a "raider," making a specialty of hold-ups.

At the trials various witnesses testified that the killing of Rosenthal was the outcome of a "gamblers' war" and that Rosenthal was mixed up in it because he came uptown and opened a gambling house in the "big district" that was ruled by Becker and his "strong-arm" squad.

The case of Becker is different from that of the dead gunmen. Becker was convicted as the instigator of the Rosenthal murder on the testimony of accomplices, Rose, Webber and Vallon; the gunmen were convicted on the testimony of witnesses to the shooting who identified them as the assassins.

SAYS HARRY VALLON IS NOT WORRYING

DENIES HE IS IN HIDING

Vallon Will Come Here as Soon as Whitman Wants Him, Lawyer Asserts.

Bernard H. Sandler, counsel for Harry Vallon, refused yesterday to go into the legal situation created by the immunity contract with the District Attorney's office held by Vallon, but it is safe to say that the client and his lawyer are convinced that the contract, in spite of its conditions and limitations, insures that Vallon will go scot free from further charges in connection with the murder of Herman Rosenthal.

On their faces the immunity contracts with Vallon, Rose, Schepps and Webber carry two conditions. Freedom from prosecution is promised by those instruments, provided that the four did not take part in the actual murder of Rosenthal and that they did not commit perjury on the witness stand.

Mr. Sandler was asked whether he considered that Vallon could be prosecuted if it were shown that he had violated his immunity contract.

"I don't want to take issue with the District Attorney on that question now," he said. "I'll tell you this, however, that I have my own opinion whether Vallon is immune or not, and whether any conditions could arise that would make him liable to prosecution for the murder of Rosenthal."

Mr. Sandler would not say where Vallon was, though he declared that he was within reach. On his departure from Sing Sing to the Tombs, ex-Lieut. Becker charged that Vallon was one of the men who shot Rosenthal.

Vallon, who was then working in this city, made a denial and said that the publicity about Becker's charge had cost him his job and that he was going to look for work at some place where he could not be easily reached.

Vallon Not in Hiding.

"Vallon has only retired for the present," said Mr. Sandler. "He has nothing to fear and is not hiding. District Attorney Whitman knows where he 's and can reach him at any time. Vallon is only trying to get out of the limelight for a while.

"Vallon was here in my office on Saturday to be ready to testify in case the District Attorney wanted him in the hearing before Justice Goff on the motion for a new trial for the gunmen. Vallon would have taken the stand then except that it was considered unnecessary because the positive evidence was not strong enough to make it necessary to overthrow it in detail. 'Jack' Rose was here, too, for the same purpose.

"Before I can say what the value of 'Dago' Frank's confession is, I will have to know the exact words of his confession and the exact circumstances under which it was made. At present I doubt whether it could be admitted as evidence. I question whether it can be considered in the light of a dying declaration.

"Frank's statement, or confession, if you want to call it such, is not entitled to weight if he could have possibly hoped that it would earn him a reprieve or commutation of sentence or anything else."

Mr. Sandler then got a law book and read that a statement of this kind, in order to be admitted to evidence as a dying declaration, must show that the declarant was "in extremis," that "he must have given up all hope of life," and that whether he was in this condition could be determined "by evident danger and all surrounding circumstances."

Some one remarked that the circumstances surrounding Frank's statement seemed to fill all the conditions of a dying declaration.

"That can't be determined at present," said Mr. Sandler. "I want to know exactly how it was made before I am sure one way or the other. But I feel pretty sure that no court would regard it as a dying declaration and entitled to be considered evidence.

For Purpose of Revenge.

"If Frank made this confession to Father Cashin in order to obtain absolution before going to the electric chair, it would have more weight, I believe, than if it were made afterward. I understand that this statement is not a religious confession. But any statement Frank might make outside of the confessional might be for the purpose of revenge on Vallon or in order to help Becker's case. If the statement is any good legally, it will surely have a great deal of value for Becker.

"When Becker came out with a statement that Vallon was one of the actual murderers, Vallon said that he was not surprised, and that he expected that there would be statements from the death-house to the same effect. Becker and his lawyers had been saying all they could in favor of the gunmen, and Vallon thought the gunmen would give quid pro quo.

"Vallon also told me that he thought a lot of influence would be brought to bear on Frank to make him come out with a statement accusing himself and giving Becker a lift. He said that he expected that Father Cashin would be very active in inducing Frank to come out with something in the nature of a confession.

"I will get in touch with Vallon, if it turns out that this statement from Frank is worthy of consideration. There is no chance that he will make any attempt to get away. He will come the minute the District Attorney wants him.

"Rose, of course, is not making any secret of his whereabouts. I know where Schepps is and the District Attorney knows where Schepps is. He started for South America, but changed his mind, and is not far away from here.

"When Becker accused Vallon, a few weeks ago, of committing the murder when he was drunk, Vallon said that if he was drunk he had got drunk spending the $100 which Becker had given him to get the affidavit from Dora Gilbert attacking Rosenthal's character. He admitted that he was on the scene when the murder was committed, but denied getting away with the murder car. He said that he and Schepps walked to Sixth Avenue and there took a taxicab. That taxicab has been traced."

JEROME TO DEFEND BECKER.

Former District Attorney to Succeed Joseph E. Shay.

It was stated on high authority yesterday that when Charles Becker is placed on trial a second time for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, his leading counsel will be William Travers Jerome, former District Attorney. This information came to THE TIMES yesterday from a person who is in close touch with the Becker defence, and who is thoroughly familiar with every phase of the case.

It was said that Joseph E. Shay, who since the retirement of John F. McIntyre from the case had represented Becker, would withdraw, and that as soon as he did an assistant to Mr. Jerome to act as attorney of record would be retained.

Furthermore, it was said that Mr. Jerome was originally selected as leading counsel for Becker, but that he refused to take the case because at the time he was busily engaged in the Thaw litigation, which was then nearing the end of a long-drawn-out sanity hearing before Supreme Court Justice Keogh in White Plains.

At Mr. Jerome's office it was stated yesterday that he was ill at his home, and no confirmation of the statement that he had been retained was to be had at his office.

Joseph E. Shay, who, according to the same authority, is about to withdraw from the case, was asked if he expected to defend Becker or take part in his defense.

"I won't say," Shay replied, "but I think I have fought my last criminal case. No one can appreciate more than I do what an awful ordeal it is for the attorney for a condemned man to work day and night as Judge Wahle did, and then to be compelled at the last minute to shake his clients' hands for the last time, and tell them that all hope is gone. What transpired in the death house in the case of the four gunmen recalls vividly to mind now the case of Jack Mulraney. I fainted in the death house after obtaining for him a stay of execution at the last minute, only to have him executed later on.

"Not only have the sad features of a condemned man's case made me determined to give up criminal practice, but in original cases one has to deal with too many crooks. It is from the underworld that the witnesses in criminal cases must necessarily be drawn, and they are a lot of double-dealing crooks. I'm not saying that the men I have defended are crooks, but many of the witnesses against them have come from the lowest levels in life."

When a TIMES reporter called at his office late in the afternoon Mr. Shay was in conference with Mrs. Becker, wife of the accused man. Neither she nor Mr. Shay could be seen Reforms That New York Must Effect in Laws and Police.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, April 14.—The Daily Mail in an editorial on the execution of the gunmen at Sing Sing and the revelations of corruption of the New York police force which followed the shooting of Rosenthal says:

"New Yorkers at last seem to have take the height and depths of the problem and to be casting about for something more than a temporary solution. The obstacles ahead of them unfortunately are prodigious.

"They will have to change the system under which New York is largely governed from the State capital, Albany; they will have to make the Commissioner of Police a permanent official, with real power and discipline over the force under his command; they will have to take the appointment of the Magistrates out of the hands of politicians; to reform the laws of evidence, and to break up the connection between the police and the machine before the American metropolis will be provided with a body of men which will protect society against the criminal instead of the criminal against society."

through the first trial I was deluged with letters asserting that Vallon was the man who had fired the shot that killed Rosenthal. None of the letters was signed by the writer, however, and I was never able to establish the identity of any of the senders, in every instance the writer stating that he was fearful of coming forward."

Ex-Judge William M. K. Olcott, who was one of the original attorneys for Harry Kendall Thaw, immediately following the murder of Stanford White, but soon withdrew from that case, was inclined to agree with District Attorney Whitman that the confession of "Dago Frank" was not only inadmissable but practically valueless as proof for or against Becker.

Ex-Magistrate Charles G. F. Wahle, who was "Dago Frank's" attorney, said he had no comment to make on the confession. He said that the gunmen were dead, and that he had done all that he could possibly do for them, and that the Rosenthal case was ended for him.

Joseph A. Shay, of counsel for Becker, was in the County Court House when the news was brought to him of the confession.

"Those poor boys," said Shay, "are through with it all now, and what has happened to-day is a vindication for Becker. He will be acquitted now without a doubt."

"What do you mean by that?" he was asked.

"This," he replied; "to the last these four men denied that Rose had said anything to them about Becker. Rose testified that he went to them for Becker, but they said no, and to my mind that shows that Rose lied when he was on the stand in the Becker trial."

From the Court House Shay went to his office, where he found Mrs. Becker and Jacob Reich, better known as "Jack Sullivan the newsboy," waiting for him. He sent out word when an effort was made to see him there that he was engaged and could not see any one.

When "Dago Frank" stated in his confession that he was not on the scene when Rosenthal was killed he contradicted the sworn testimony of Rose, as he did also when he stated that neither he nor any of the other gunmen had ever heard Becker's name mentioned in the affair until after the assassination.

During his direct examination by ex-Assistant District Attorney Moss during the murder trial Mr. Moss asked what Becker said to him on an occasion a few days before the murder was committed.

"Tell them," Rose testified, his reference being to the gunmen, "that nothing can happen to anybody who croaks Rosenthal. Tell them there is nothing to worry about and nothing to fear and I will take care of anybody and everybody who has a hand in this thing.

"I have assured them (the gunmen) of that and they are on the job now," was his reply to what Becker said, Rose testified.

Arguments on Bill to Legalize "Healing" Heard by Governor in Assembly Chamber.

STRONG OPPOSITION SHOWN

A. C. Vandiver Speaks Against Measure, Judge Hatch For It—Hearing on Osteopathy Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 13.—Christian Scientists from all parts of the State, and a few from outside—about 2,000 in all—attended a hearing before Gov. Glynn this afternoon on Senator McClelland's bill to make legal the practice of any person who ministers to or treats the sick or suffering by mental or spiritual means without the use of drugs or material remedies. The Executive Chamber was to be used for the hearing, but the attendance was so large that the Governor decided to use the Assembly Chamber, and it was filled. Of the Christian Scientists present about 850 were from New York City. They came in a special train of ten coaches.

Representatives of the State Medical Society, various county medical societies, the State Board of Regents, and the State Department of Education united in requesting Gov. Glynn to veto the bill which would legalize the practice of Christian Science. One objection voiced was that there were no provisions in the measure for any educational, technical, or professional qualifications for practitioners. It was also urged that the unrestricted recognition by the State of the practice would tend to increase the spread of contagious and infectious diseases. The opponents declared their attacks were not centred against the Christian Science religion, but "against the business of Christian Science."

Attacked by Vandiver.

The New York County Medical Society was represented by Almuth C. Vandiver as counsel. The chief objection to the bill, he explained, was that it would admit to the practice of medicine, without educational or professional qualifications, persons of small education. He argued that those who would benefit by this amendment did not worship God in church edifices, but maintained themselves in office buildings, and sold over their desks "prayer, silence, meditation, and philosophical platitudes and religious buncombe to hysterical women and weak-minded men."

Mr. Vandiver declared that Christian Science was "but the practice of business for profit." He gave as the reason for the advocacy of the pending bill the fact that the New York County Medical Society was proceeding in the courts against "quacks, faith healers, mental healers, metaphysicians, hypnotists, Disciples of New Thought and Christian Scientists." He declared that Christian Scientists, under the guise of religion, plied their business at great personal profit. By the passage of the pending bill New York would be set back twenty years, he declared.

The Kings County Medical Society was represented by Dr. Richard Kevin and the State Medical Society by Lewis K. Neff. Dr. Joseph J. O'Connell, Health Officer of the Port of New York, and Dr. Abraham Jacoby also opposed the measure. They contended that it would be useless to continue the Rockefeller and other scientific and reasearch institutes if the bill became a law.

That the bill was too broad in its provisions was the opinion expressed by Dr. Augustus J. Downing, Assistant State Commissioner of Education, in charge of higher education. He represented Dr. John H. Finley, Commissioner of Education, and held that Spiritualists, clairvoyants, mesmerists, hypnotists, and neuropaths, as well as Christian Scientists could practice under its provisions. It was dangerous, he said, to break down academic and professional standards of the State which had been maintained for twenty years.

Senator McClelland, the father of the measure, told the Governor that the bill had been thoroughly discussed in both houses of the Legislature, and that it had been shown that all the Christian Scientists wanted was a provision by which the law of 1907 dealing with the matter would be made plain.

Judge Hatch Defends Bill.

For the bill the main argument was made by Edward W. Hatch, ex-Supreme Court Justice of New York. He contended that this State should not be behind Maine, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Tennessee, Massachusetts, and South Dakota, which had enacted laws similar to this proposed measure. He mentioned several other States which had almost as fully recognized the Christian Scientists, and asserted that the medical regulations for the Panama Canal Zone, which at first shut out the Christian Scientists, had to be amended so as to permit their treatment.

Judge Hatch declared that vituperation was not argument against the measure. Christian Scientists had practiced in this State for many years, he said, and none of the calamities suggested by the medical practitioners had happened through the failure to control contagious diseases. The same, he said, was true of other States where the Christian Scientists were strong.

There were also present in favor of the measure, though unable to speak by reason of the time limit, Hugo Hirsh, Prof. E. O. Fippin, William D. McCracken, Charles E. Lebarbier, Dr. Edward F. Burton, George Tait, and J. Downer.

SIX MEN ON TRIAL FOR HIGHWAY GRAFT

BUILT PATCHOGUE ROAD

Special to The New York Times.

RIVERHEAD, L. I., April 13.—The first of the highway graft trials following indictments obtained as the result of John A. Hennessy's investigations in the Sulzer administration began here to-day before Supreme Court Justice Kapper. The Suffolk Contracting Company of Huntington and Frederick J. Kinney, Michael Scanlon, David Lynch, and John Huber, present or former officials of the company; Spencer J. Stewart, former division engineer in the State Highway Department, and Leigh Roberts, a supervising engineer, are the defendants.

The jury was finally selected at 5 P. M. Five are farmers, two liverymen, two clerks, one a tinsmith, one a carpenter, and one a boatbuilder.

District Attorney Ralph C. Greene is assisted in the prosecution by Assistant District Attorney Young, and Peter B. Smith, a special prosecutor from Brooklyn, retained by the State. Justice Kapper announced that he will hold three sessions a day, starting at 10 o'clock or earlier in the morning, and continuing until 10 o'clock at night, with intervals for luncheon and dinner. To-night's session began at 7:30 o'clock.

John A. Hennessy has not yet returned from Europe, but Joseph Curran, chief of his staff of investigators, is here, and will testify to-morrow. After the jury was selected Justice Kapper picked out four Deputy Sheriffs, who will remain with the twelve men until the trial ends.

When court convened this afternoon Isidore Kallert of Brooklyn, counsel for Joseph A. Boice of Long Island City, a contractor under indictment for alleged conspiracy, asked leave to withdraw the plea of not guilty and interpose a demurrer. The motion will be argued on Friday next.

Attorney Bayliss, representing the Suffolk Contracting Company, made a motion for the dismissal of the indictment against the concern for conspiracy. He claimed that, inasmuch as the company and its officials are also under indictment for grand larceny, which included the lesser indictment, his motion was a proper one. Justice Kapper, however, denied the motion.

This company built the Patchogue-Coram road. Stewart was then division engineer and Roberts supervising engineer for the State.

At the opening of the night session District Attorney Greene outlined to the jury what the State would prove against the contracting company and its officers.

Mr. Green said that he would show that the work on the road was not up to the standard, and that because of the fact that insufficient screenings were placed on top of the asphalted roads huge chunks of it were torn out by automobiles and heavy trucks when they went over it.

Three or four witnesses were called to prove signatures to contracts, and then the trial went over until 10 o'clock to-morrow morning.

MURPHY TO GO BACK TO DEMOCRATIC CLUB

one conservative party and one anti-class anti-privilege party. The Democratic Party is performing the work of that party to-day. Hundreds of progressives in Massachusetts have told me that they will be ready to align themselves with us if we stand for true progress."

Gov. Walsh advocated the initiative and referendum, direct primaries, direct election of United States Senators and direct legislation by the people.

"Some Democrats," said Gov. Walsh, "are against giving the people these powers. They are not Jefferson Democrats. The democracy of Jefferson was founded on complete trust in the honesty and good sense of the majority of the people."

Before introducing Mr. Malone, Judge O'Dwyer, looking directly at Senator Frawley, urged him to beg Gov. Glynn to recommend at the extra session of the Legislature the passage of the club's primary amendments which failed at the regular session. These amendments were wanted to bring about the undoing of Murphy as head of Tammany Hall in the coming primaries.

"I am proud to breathe the free air of this club to-night,' said Collector Malone. "We can have harmony, we can have uplift, we can have rehabilitation, we can have cohesive power within the Democratic Party in this State. But these must not be based on compromise with principle or with leadership that has been repudiated by the people at the polls.

"I shall continue to fight. Nothing can tempt or lure me from the contest for rehabilitation, strengthening and rejuvenation of the Democratic Party. I will insist before I quit fighting that the pea must not be put under the three shells any longer in the Democratic Party."

The other scheduled speaker was Augustus Thomas. Among those who attended were Richard Croker, Jr., Lawrence B. Dunham, William Bruce Ellison, Charles S. Guggenheim, Montgomery Hare, Francis Lynde Stetson, Theodore W. Myers, Alexander Konta, James K. McGuire and Justice M. Warley Platzek.

ROOSEVELT GETS THE CALL TO RUN

unofficial conventions or let nature take its course at the primaries. Each party is watching the other, and it is certain that if one party decides on a convention the other will follow suit.

From a number of localities up-State the Progressive leaders have been urged to give William Sulzer a place on the Progressive ticket this Fall, preferably the nomination for Lieut. Governor These representations, it was said yesterday, had come from persons of considerable standing in the communities where they live. Altogether, the Progressive leaders have been very much impressed with the sentiment for Mr. Sulzer in certain sections of the State as indicated by letters received at State headquarters. For all that, it is believed that Mr. Sulzer's name will not be considered when the Progressive slate is made up.

"I do not see, though," said one of the Progressive leaders last night, "how we possibly can prevent Mr. Sulzer from getting the Progressive nomination for Congress in his east side district."

Mr. Sulzer, it was said yesterday, may run for Congress this Fall, but in all probability he won't. His principal aim just at present is said to be getting even with Gov. Glynn, whom he holds partly responsible for getting Murphy to order his impeachment. This, in connection with the fact that a movement is on foot up-State paving the way for a Sulzer Gubernatorial boom, has led to the belief that Mr. Sulzer is a sure enough independent candidate for Governor, thus seeking to take away from the Democratic ticket enough votes to defeat it.

This belief was strengthened yesterday when "The American Party" was incorporated at Albany, with some of Mr. Sulzer's old cronies as incorporators. Chief among the incorporators were Samuel Bell Thomas and Col. Alexander S. Bacon, both of whom were members of the Sulzer kitchen cabinet in ante-impeachment days, and for both of whom Mr. Sulzer has put in claims for counsel fees from the State running into thousands of dollars. Chester S. Platt, who was secretary to Sulzer when he was Governor, filed the papers. Mr. Sulzer was in Albany himself.

Sulzer's "American Party."

The particular objects of the "American Party" as stated in the incorporation papers filed at Albany are: To secure electorate reforms, progressive legislation and greater constitutional guarantees; to prevent corrupt practices; to conserve and utilize our natural resources; harmonize differences between capital and labor; aid in honest government; destroy corrupt bossism in the control of political parties; to perpetuate our free institutions and insist on equal rights to all and special privileges to none."

Its operations are to be conducted in Albany and other cities in the United States, with principal offices in New York City.

The Directors named in the certificates are: Samuel Bell Thomas, Alexander S. Bacon, Theodorus Van Wyck, Albert Bruchlos, Robert Abrahams, Samuel Friedman, Emil Kovarik, John W. Hughes, Vito Contessa, all of New York City.

Acting Chairman Phillips of the Progressive State Committee said yesterday that information which came to the Progressive leaders made him believe that a coterie of Republicans who were preparing to start a primary campaign in favor of the nomination for Governor of District Attorney Whitman were the secret instigators of the movement to run Sulzer for Governor.

Friends of Mr. Sulzer, it is known, some time ago made overtures to the Progressive leaders, urging that he be made the Progressive candidate for Governor, just as friends of Mr. Whitman have suggested a coalition of Progressives and Republicans with him as the candidate for that office. Both propositions were turned down promptly by the men who direct the destinies of the Progressive organization in this State.

Big Home-Coming Receptions.

The Nassau County Progressives are planning a rousing reception for Col. Roosevelt when he returns to his home at Sagamore Hill. A movement is also on foot among Bull Moose organizations in other sections of the State for a reception to the Colonel down the bay. If the plans are carried out, it will be borne in on him long before he sets foot on American soil how anxious the Progressives in his State are to have him lead their fight this Fall.

Acting Chairman Phillips said the party would have a full Congressional ticket in the field this Fall. Meetings and conferences are of almost weekly occurrence in the Congressional, Senatorial, and Assembly districts throughout the State. A number of local Progressive committees, Mr. Phillips said, had adopted resolutions urging Col. Roosevelt's nomination for Governor.

SULZER TO RUN FOR GOVERNOR

Bacon Says New Party Will Have Full Anti-Tammany Ticket.

ALBANY, April 13.—"There will be a complete State ticket headed by Gov. Sulzer," said Col. Alexander S. Bacon, one of the incorporators in a statement to-night, explaining the purposes of the new American Party. "Anti-Tammany Democratic Assemblymen, Senators, and Congressmen will be selected, together with a complete anti-Tammany State Committee and anti-Tammany County committees."

Mr. Bacon added that the former Governor probably would be a candidate in the regular Democratic primaries, but that many of his friends favored the plan to nominate him independently.

FRANK'S MOTHER HAS CONFIDENCE

Not Worrying About Final Verdict on Murder Charge Against Her Son, She Says.

BURNS MAY REPORT TO-DAY

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 13.—Mrs. Rudolph Frank, mother of Leo M. Frank, arrived to-day in Atlanta from her home in Brooklyn. She is expected to remain here until after the final decision is made upon the extraordinary motion for a new trial which will be filed Thursday with Judge Hill by Frank's lawyers.

Mrs. Frank said that she was not at all discouraged by the refusal of the Supreme Court of Georgia to reverse Judge Roan, and was confident that her son's innocence would be established by the investigation of Detective W. J. Burns.

"I am excitable and am given to worrying about the little annoyances of every day life," she said, "but the final verdict on the accusation of murder against my son is one thing that I am not worrying about. It would be an interesting comparison to hold up the moral life of Leo M. Frank side by side with the characters of the men who have been so active in accusing him. I wish it might be done, for I know the things that have been said about him are lies—all lies—and I am confirmed in this knowledge by the investigation of Mr. Burns."

Mrs. Frank spent several hours with her son in his cell in the tower.

Daniel S. Lehon, one of Burns's chief aids in the Phagan murder investigation, said to-day that his interview with Detective Chief Lanford in regard to the case had been practically fruitless.

The detective chief, answering Burns's offer of a $1,000 reward to any person who would give definite proof of Frank's moral degeneracy, had said that he was in possession of such evidence and that he would be glad to give it to Burns gratis. When Lehon called on Lanford, the latter made objection that he promised the information to Burns, and no one else. Detective Lehon said that he was Burns's representative, but Lanford declined to do more than give his visitor an outline of the information he had. He would let Burns see the affidavits, he said, when Burns returned to Atlanta.

"I must say that the information he had was of far less consequence than Lanford had led us to believe was in his possession," said Lehon. "He did not tell us the names of the persons from whom he had affidavits, but his narration of what they told his men was sufficiently clear to designate them as the Formby woman and the street car motorman, W. P. Murk. I told Lanford that we had made the investigation into Frank's character and had as yet found nothing to substantiate the stories of immorality that were circulated by the Formby woman, who since has recanted, and those told on the stand by the negro Conley. Possibly he has something that he is holding back until the return of Burns, but unless he has he has failed to make good on his promise."

Burns is expected back to-morrow or Wednesday. It is probable that he will make his report at once, and that Frank's lawyers will incorporate it in their extraordinary motion for a new trial.

Philadelphian Has Mrs. J. R. Graham Arrested at Atlantic City.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 13.—Mrs. John R. Graham of Philadelphia was arrested here to-day and held by Magistrate Jagmetty in $100 bail. Her father-in-law, John T. Graham, who has an office at 1822 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, took her home with him. Mrs. Graham, whose husband is in Panama on business, came here to spend Easter.

Her father-in-law followed her, and alleged he found her living at a hotel as the wife of another man. He caused her arrest, but the man escaped.

GOVERNMENT SHIPS IN POOL

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Hearings on the Panama tolls repeal bill were continued to-day before the Senate Committee on Interoceanic Canals. Three witnesses testified, two of whom favored repeal outright, while the third advocated an elaborately indirect concession to the demands of Great Britain. The witnesses were Eugene T. Chamberlain, Commissioner of Navigation; Dr. S. S. Huebner of the University of Pennsylvania, and Walter Wood, an iron manufacturer representing the Chamber of Commerce of Philadelphia.

The committee has invited Joseph H. Choate, who was Ambassador at London, and Henry White, who was his Secretary of Embassy, while the Hay-Pauncefote treaty was in negotiation, and they will repeat what they have already said in published letters to Senators about the complete absence from their minds of any implied reservation of the right to favor American shipping. But the witnesses before the committee to-day were pointedly informed by Chairman O'Gorman that their interpretation of the treaty was not desired, and their private opinions came out only incidentally in reply to questions on particular aspects of the subject.

Dr. Huebner, who for two years was attached as an expert to the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, told the Senate Committee that neither tolls exemption nor the repeal of the exemption would make any difference to the ultimate consumer. In any case, he said, the steamship lines would charge what the traffic would bear, and the exemption of tolls would mean to them simply a reduction in operating expenses and an increase in profits.

Dr. Huebner said that 94 per cent. of the total tonnage in the Atlantic and Gulf coastwise trade was controlled by the railroads and by two pooling agreements of steamships. These pools, he said, were known as the Eastern Steamship Corporation and the Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies Steamship Company.

Most of the steamship lines owned by the railroads, said Dr. Huebner, are not competing with the railroads, but merely extended the railroad lines into other territories. All the overseas shipping of the United States, he said, was controlled by agreement, and competition, he thought, on the water was impossible. In the case of tramp steamers chartered by a particular shipper, he thought the shipper might profit by the tolls exemption, but even then the ultimate consumer would save nothing.

Senator O'Gorman tried in vain to get Dr. Huebner to admit the benefits to the consumer of the tolls exemption. Dr. Huebner said that even if the Interstate Commerce Commission took charge of water transportation the exemption of tolls would hardly figure in their computation. The ships, he said, would under-cut the railroads enough to win customers.

Senator O'Gorman said it was generally assumed that over 90 per cent. of the coastwise traffic was in railroad-owned ships, which the law bars from the canal, and on that proportion there would be few American coastwise ships to enjoy tolls exemption.

"That is assuming," remarked Senator Thomas, "that the railroads don't beat the devil around the stump and get through the canal anyway."

Dr. Huebner excited the committee's curiosity by saying that the Government steamships attached to the Panama Railroad took part in pooling arrangements. Later he qualified this to the extent of saying that other lines accepted the rates fixed by the Panama Railroad. He added, however, that the Government had tried in vain to get the Hawaiian Steamship Company to enter into an agreement. The Hawaiian Company transships over the Tehuantepec Railway, owned by Lord Cowdray, and that railway would be the heaviest loser by tolls exemption.

A new solution of the problem from a diplomatic point of view was suggested by Mr. Wood. Mr. Wood said that the United States must live up to its agreement with England as to its equality of treatment, but that tolls exemption would be made fair if the ships of the world should pass through the canal free of charge, subject, however, to a sort of fee equalizing their cheaper service with the heavy cost of American ships. He thought this fee would be about $2 or $3 a ton.

E. T. Chamberlain, Federal Commissioner of Navigation, expressed his belief that the United States had no right to exempt any of its shipping from payment of tolls unless it specifically provided that the Government should meet the expense of passing the exempted ships through the canal, and that the exemption should not add in any way to the burden imposed upon foreign shipping. He also favored a subsidy for American ships, saying that the matter generally was misunderstood by the House. The subsidy contracts of foreign Governments, he said, showed the practice to be a military measure, not commercial. The United States should look at it in the same light, he thought.

President Wilson said to-day that the repeal of the Panama tolls exemption could not be regarded as an interpretation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, because it would be a legislative act. He held that no amendment setting forth the rights of the United States under the treaty was necessary.

The President took the same view as Secretary Bryan that by repealing the exemption the United States merely showed a disinclination to raise the question of discrimination, but did not by its act limit any future policy of the Government. Mr. Wilson drew a distinction between a legislative act and an authoritative interpretation of a treaty, the latter of which would have to be formulated by the executive branch of the Government and ratified by a two-thirds vote of the Senate.

Mr. Wilson said the Norris amendment setting forth that the United States, by repealing the exemption, would not be surrendering any of its rights had not been seriously suggested to him, and that he had not given it serious consideration, because it appeared obvious to him that any act of Congress in that connection could not be an interpretation of the treaty. The President remarked that, among the Senators who would be in the majority on the tolls question, there did not seem to be any sentiment for amendment.

Mr. Wilson said that tolls situation in the Senate was constantly improving and that apparently people who had been asked to appear in the hearings were getting "cold feet."

COLOMBIAN TREATY READY.

Promulgation To-morrow—Ratification May Clash with Tolls Issue.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Arrangements have been made for the promulgation of the new Colombian treaty here and in Bogota on Wednesday morning. The complete text has been received at the State Department by cable from Bogota and will be printed for distribution among the newspapers to-morrow, when it will also be sent to the Colombian Congress for ratification. Both countries entering into it hope it may adjust the difference growing out of the revolution in Panama and the acquisition by the United States of the Isthmus.

Secretary Bryan said to-day that no decision had been reached as to the time when the treaty would be sent to the Senate, but that there was no occasion for any delay in doing so. Mr. Bryan has steadfastly refused to discuss the terms of the treaty for publication.

Both President Wilson and Secretary Bryan have indicated a denial that there is any language in the treaty intended as an apology by the United States Government for anything that may have happened to offend Colombia. They also state that the provision for free tolls for Colombian warships and for cargoes of coal, salt, and oil in ships of that country passing through the canal would, when the text concerning this concession was read, have a different aspect from that which recent criticism has placed upon it.

As the treaty will probably go to the Senate just when the struggle over the repeal of free tolls for our coastwise vessels will begin there, it is regarded as unavoidable that the issues of the treaty will be so complicated with the tolls question that its fate may depend on the strength of the President's supporters in the Senate. If the tolls repeal bill should be defeated the failure of the Colombian treaty, it is contended, would be a foregone conclusion, unless the Colombian Government were willing to accept a curtailment of the concessions as to free passage of war vessels and Colombian salt, oil, and coal.

"EQUAL RIGHTS TO ALL."

This Was the Principle Behind Wilson's Tolls Policy, Says Folk.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—"Equal rights to all, special privileges to none," was the subject of an address to-night by Joseph W. Folk, chief counsel of the Interstate Commerce Commission, at the Jefferson Day dinner of the Young Men's Democratic Club of Washington. This principle, Mr. Folk said, was behind the Administration in its stand for the repeal of the free tolls provision of the Panama Canal act.

He added that "if it be necessary to encourage American shipping by giving it a subsidy, it would be more honest to give it a subsidy directly than to give it indirectly in the shape of free tolls."

Senator John Sharp Williams of Mississippi was toastmaster, and the speakers included Senators Shafroth of Colorado and Chilton of West Virginia.

PRESIDENT TO SPEAK HERE.

Important Address Expected at Associated Press Luncheon April 21.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Announcement was made at the White House today that President Wilson had accepted an invitation to speak at a luncheon at the annual meeting of The Associated Press in New York City on April 21. Secretary Tumulty said the President had not yet decided what subject he would discuss, but that he would make an important speech.

It is the first invitation the President has accepted for a speech outside of Washington since he went to Mobile last October to attend the Southern Commercial Congress.

TRUST LEGISLATION NOT TO BE DELAYED

Nor Curtailed, Wilson Insists—Will Remain in Capital Till It Is Passed.

OMNIBUS BILL SOON READY

Will Embrace Injunction and Contempt Legislation to Meet Party's Labor Plank.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—President Wilson declared to-day that there was to be no curtailment of the Administration programme for trust legislation at this session of Congress on account of the delay occasioned by the introduction of the Panama tolls controversy. Nor is there to be any delay if the wishes of the President are observed. The President said emphatically that he would stay in Washington all Summer if necessary to put the trust legislation in the statute books.

The President told confidants that he was emphatically opposed to the postponement of the passage of the trust bills until the next session of Congress. He wanted the House Judiciary Committee to bring out an omnibus trust bill embracing the main provisions of the four so-called Administration measures now pending before that committee.

This omnibus bill will embrace a prohibition against interlocking Directorates, a section dealing with holding companies, another section prohibiting certain practices in interstate trade relations, and a fourth covering certain definitions of the Sherman law. This last section will be based on the Sherman law definitions bill introduced by Chairman Clayton of the House Judiciary Committee several months ago.

An important development to-day was that most of the original definitions bill will be discarded. This means that the trust definitions in one of the New Jersey "Seven Sisters" bills, which served as the basis for the Clayton bill, have been found, upon maturer reflection, not to be applicable to the general situation. Another reason for discarding most of the features of the Clayton bill is the discovery that a majority of the definitions it proposed are already contained in the Sherman law, and are considered to be in better shape in that statute.

Another development to-day was that the President would insist on injunction and contempt legislation. This is regarded in keeping with the proposed trust legislation, and is expected to meet the party platform promise to deal with questions in which union labor is keenly interested, and on which the labor leaders here have been urging action.

The administration trust programme, as disclosed to-day, is:

First—Trust Legislation this session.

Second—Anti-injunction and contempt legislation also this session.

Third—Postponement of action on the Bartlett-Bacon bill, which seeks to make lawful agreements between employers and laborers and persons engaged in agriculture or horticulture, and to limit the issuing of injunctions in certain cases.

The anti-injunction and contempt legislation is to take the place of the Bartlett-Bacon plan, which sought to exempt labor organizations from the operation of the Sherman law.

The Administration programme was disclosed at the end of an hour's conference to-day between the President, Chairman Clayton, Representatives Carlin of Virginia and Floyd of Arkansas. These are the three members of the Judiciary Committee who have had charge of the Clayton Trust bills.

Originally it was the intention to enact the Trust bills as separate measures. It was afterward though wiser to consolidate them in one bill, but its text has not been announced. Chairman Clayton said to-night that the revised draft of the bill might be made public the latter part of this week.

The bill will be reintroduced and then referred to the Judiciary Committee for consideration. Under the revised method of legislative procedure the Administration trust programme will be embraced in the omnibus bill from the Clayton committee and two separate measures from the Interstate Commerce Committee. These last will be the revised Trade Commission bill, which the committee has directed Representative Covington of Maryland to report, and the bill providing for the regulation of the issuance of stocks and bonds by railroads.

After his return to the Capitol this afternoon Chairman Clayton said:

"The President is going to insist on trust legislation this session. He is going to insist that the Judiciary Committee bring out an omnibus measure covering trade relations, interlocking Directorates and holding companies, and part of the Original Definitions bill. There will probably be one bill. The Bacon-Bartlett bill will probably not come out of the committee, but the Clayton Injunction bill for the regulation of the process or injunction, and the Clayton Contempt bill, which were both favorably reported to the House last session, will probably be passed this session. The Contempt bill proposes to give the right of trial by jury in certain cases."

Mr. Wilson was asked if he believed Congress could dispose of the trust programme and other pending questions and get away from Washington by the middle of the Summer. He laughingly answered that if an express schedule intead of a freight schedule were adopted there would be no difficulty. He added that he did not mean the cutting off of necessary discussion, but that committees had worked very hard and had prepared legislation which he believed could be promptly passed.

MICHIGAN MINERS END LONG STRIKE

MOYER IS STILL DEFIANT

Federation Chief and Thirty-seven Others Must Stand Trial on Conspiracy Charge.

HANCOCK, Mich., April 13.—The copper miners who have been on strike since July 23 last voted yesterday to call off the strike. The announcement was made to-day by Charles E. Hietela, District Secretary of the Western Federation of Miners. It was unofficially reported that the majority in favor of calling off the strike was 1,012.

Recognition of the union, denied by the mining companies, is waived by the strikers in voting to return to work. They contend that practically all of their other demands have been complied with since the strike began. These included better working conditions, an eight-hour day, and a minimum daily wage of $3.

From the outset the operators insisted that they never would recognize the Western Federation of Miners, although they maintained that they did not question the right of their employes to organize. Several thousand men have been imported to fill the places of the old employes, and the companies will be hard pressed to find work for the returning strikers.

When the strike started the union announced that approximately 13,000 men were out. Since that time many of these have returned to work, and others have moved away from the copper district. The latest estimate of the number on strike made by Secretary Hietela placed the figure at about 6,000. The estimates made by the mine operators were much smaller.

Hietela said to-day that the strike had cost the union more than $1,000,000. It was attended by considerable violence and several lives were lost. The National Guard was ordered out in the early days of the trouble to assist the civil authorities in maintaining order. There has been no disorder of any consequence for several months.

Strikers who cannot get work will be taken care of by the Federation. Those who decide to go elsewhere will be provided with funds. The district union has a small amount of money on hand, and an additional sum is expected from the Federation headquarters in Denver. Mining officials said to-day that no strikers would be taken back until they had renounced their membership in the Western Federation.

CALUMET, Mich., April 13.—When it became known to-day that the strike was to be called off, there was a rush of strikers seeking employment at all the Calumet and Hecla mines. Many of them were put to work on surrendering their union cards. Others were told that they would be put to work at the first opportunity. The operators announced to the applicants that none of the imported men who had been at work during the strike would be dismissed.

TYPHUS ON THE CELTIC.

Liner Is Delayed Here 16 Hours and Four Patients Are Removed.

The White Star liner Celtic, arriving here yesterday from the Mediterranean, was held at Quarantine for sixteen hours, while most of her steerage passengers were removed to Hoffman Island. It was 6 o'clock at night before the vessel, released from Quarantine, reached her pier. This action of the Health Officer of the Port was made imperative because of the discovery of four well-defined cases of typus fever among the 1,830 steerage passengers. All the patients were Greeks.

Dr. O'Connell, Health Officer of the Port, said that since the Balkan war an unusual number of typhus cases had come here. The health authorities were much concerned over the situation, which, they said, was unprecedented. In the past there had been but a few cases of typhus to handle at this port. Most of the cases now discovered here, Dr. O'Connell, said, came from Patras and Naples.

Five hundred and fifty steerage passengers who might have been infected by association with the four patients were removed for observation. The Celtic was thoroughly fumigated. The four patients, after thorough examination, were transferred to Swinburne Island for isolation.

SLIPS IN SUBWAY; MAY DIE.

Man Falls Down Stairway at 125th Street and Lenox Avenue.

A man, as yet unidentified by the police, tripped last evening at 7 o'clock on the steps leading to the downtown platform of the Subway at Lenox Avenue and 125th Street and fell the entire length of the stairway. He was taken unconscious to the Harlem Hospital, where his skull was found to have been fractured. He will die probably.

In his pocket was found a slip of paper on which was written: "John Moynagh, 1,654 Third Avenue." The police have recorded the description of the man's height, 5 feet 9 inches; approximate weight, 150 pounds; smooth shaven, dark hair and gray eyes; wore white shirt with blue dots, dark sack suit, blue bow tie, black shoes and stockings.

FIRE NEAR CHELSEA PIERS.

Flames in Factory Building Cause Loss of $50,000.

Three firms in the five-story brick factory building at 543 to 547 West Twenty-second Street, near Eleventh Avenue, opposite the Chelsea Piers, suffered heavy damage by fire last night. Flames spread from rear to front of the five floors and gave the firemen two hours of hard work. A few minutes after the first alarm, at 8:35 o'clock, there were several explosions. Chief Kenlon called all the available apparatus when he saw flames spouting from the roof.

With a water tower and lines of hose in Twenty-second and Twenty-third Streets, and with lines from the roof of the adjoining house on the east, the fire was attacked successfully, but it was an hour before the heat and flames had been quenched sufficiently for the men to venture inside the building. A brick arch over one of the top-floor windows cracked and fell and a group of firemen on the sidewalk saved themselves by dropping the hose and running to the street. Fireman William Feeley of Engine 35 was knocked down by a brick striking his ankle.

The firms suffering losses were the Hall Lye Works, ground floor; George Becker Metal Company, second floor, and the New Reliable Finishing Company, third floor. The two top floors had no tenants. Chief Kenlon estimated the loss to building and contents at $50,000. The fire was supposed to have originated in a lye pit, a one-story brick building in the rear of the factory.

CHALLENGE AT PRESBYTERY

Protest Entered Against Two Candidates from Union Seminary.

Two students of Union Theological Seminary who applied for ordination into the ministry were challenged yesterday at the Spring meeting of the New York Presbytery, held in the chapel of the Old First Church in Fifth Avenue. The students were James M. Howard and Ernest J. Weekes. Howard, it was asserted, failed to give an adequate story of the Tabernacle, and it was charged the answer by Weekes concerning the Virgin Birth was indefinite.

The protest was entered by the Rev. Dr. John Fox. The Rev. Dr. George Alexander, and W. H. Carson were named as a committee to answer the protest in behalf of the students.

Seven students from the seminary were received, and arrangements were made for their ordination. They were Lyman R. Hartley, Albert J. Murphy, Louis H. Ordile, C. H. Wickes, William N. Ross, Bernice Y. Spare, and E. A. Frost.

These Commissioners to the General Assembly to meet in Chicago in May were named: The Rev. Drs. Henry M. McCracken, William P. Merrill, George Alexander, A. E. Kegwein, Arthur M. Limouze, Thomas W. Smith, William Adams Brown, and President Francis Brown of the seminary.

NO SALUTE, SAYS MEXICAN GENERAL

the arrest of an officer and men from the Dolphin, the bombardment that is taking place at Tampico affords ample cause for alarm. One of the great concerns of this Government has been that the destruction of foreign property in Mexico might cause European nations affected to take measures of their own to protect their interests. This concern is emphasized at the present time by the destruction of the valuable property of the Pearson Oil Company, a British corporation at Tampico. Should President Huerta decline to live up to his promise to salute the Stars and Stripes as reparation for the indignity offered to the men from the Dolphin, the first step of this Government might be to land armed forces at Tampico and declare the city and its vicinity to be a neutral zone, immune from hostilities between the Federals and the Constitutionalists. Some such measure is bound to receive serious consideration if a salute of reparation is not fired within a short period.

Looking for Precedents for Mayo.

It is not apparent from any official utterance that a limit of time has been fixed within which the salute must be given. There has been some discussion as to the authority of a naval officer to involve his country in a situation that contains the possibility of war with another country by making a demand for a salute to the colors of his own country. It is understood that Secretary Daniels has instituted a search in the archives of the Navy Department to learn whether there are precedents for Admiral Mayo's action. No announcement has been made as to results of this inquiry.

Many dispatches have passed in the last three days between Washington and Vera Cruz in regard to the details of the proposed apology which President Wilson insists shall be given. To-day the President's orders were sent directly to Admiral Mayo at Tampico. This course has been rendered necessary from the fact that the President has assumed direct responsibility for the demand for the salute, and that, as he wishes to resume his vacation at White Sulphur Springs as soon as possible, it is desirable that the incident be closed, if practicable, this week. The President on arriving here this morning from West Virginia, began reading all the many dispatches in connection with the Mexican situation that had accumulated in his absence. It was not until after acquainting himself with the precise situation at Tampico that he made the statement that the salute which had been demanded would be given.

Direct communication between Tampico and the cable end at Vera Cruz, which is the only means whereby news of what is going on at Tampico can reach Washington, is possible only by wireless, and, owing to the prevalence of storms of hurricane proportions, this communication has been exceedingly difficult and slow. The Huerta Government itself, it is understood, has been obliged to communicate with Tampico by messages sent on steamboats, and it is suggested by naval officers that if it becomes necessary for Gen. Huerta to send hasty instructions to the Federal commander at Tampico he may have to resort to the use of the radio outfits of the American battleships, even in dealing with a subject so delicate as the demand for a salute.

To Hurry the Celtic to Tampico.

Orders were issued to-day that the loading of the naval supply ship Celtic a tthe New York Navy Yard be expedited, so that she might proceed to Tampico without delay. The Celtic will carry several hundred enlisted men from the naval station at Newport to be distributed among the vessels stationed at Tampico. It is likely that one or possibly two of the battleships at Vera Cruz will be sent to Tampico to afford more room for the many refugees that are being taken care of by the vessels now there.

Officials here realize that if the Mexican authorities should refuse absolutely to comply with President Wilson's ultimatum, prompt and decisive work would be necessary, and that with hundreds of destitute and distressed refugees on board, a battleship is hardly in shape for fighting. It is for this reason that the navy transport Hancock, which has been stationed at New Orleans for several weeks, has been ordered to proceed at once to Tampico.

When Mr. Lind came ashore from the Mayflower at the local navy yard this morning he was met by a Government automobile and taken to a hotel. Early in the afternoon he had a long conference at the State Department with Secretary Bryan and Secretary Daniels. Mr. Lind learned for the first time on reaching here the circumstances of the present acute situation between this country and Mexico caused by the arrests at Tampico and the demand by Rear Admiral Mayo that the American flag be saluted by way of reparation.

Mr. Lind's arrival here is regarded as very timely, because of his intimate knowledge of the present condition of affairs in the neighboring republic and of the state of popular feeling there. He was the personal guest of Secretary Bryan at luncheon at the University Club and returned with him to the State Department, where he remained until a late hour discussing the various phases of the relations between the two countries.

Mr. Lind showed the effects of his long stay in Mexico. His face gave evidence of weariness and his manner indicated that he needed a long rest. Toward the end of the day Secretary Bryan presented Mr. Lind to the newspaper men. The President's envoy said that his plans were not formed, but that he expected to remain in Washington until the end of the present week, and then, with Mrs. Lind, who will join him here, to go to French Lick Springs, Ind., for an indefinite stay. Whether he is to return to Mexico or not was not discussed further by Secretary Bryan or Mr. Lind.

Mr. Lind has no personal desire to return, and will do it only as a matter of duty. He asid that the conditions of living in Mexico had been so unlike those to which he had been accustomed that his health had finally given way. He found the greatest difficulty in the Mexican cooking, which was interesting, he said, and no doubt most palatable to those used to it, but it palled up on his appetitle until he longed to go aboard the United States warships in the horbor and get some oldfashioned Yankee food.

But that solace was denied him, he said, because there were many callers and it took some time to make the trip. Furthermore, Mr. Lind added, if he had gone often the fact would have furnished suggestions to the Mexican public and newspapers of conferences that might lead to difficulty. So he stood grimly at his post and faced death in the Mexican bills-of-fare, hoping from day to day that every dispatch that came might bring surcease of serrow.

"I was certainly glad," said the ex-Governor to-day, "when I got the word to come home once more."

Mr. Lind declined to discuss the Mexican question.

"It is strange," he said, "that a man has to go abroad to get a reputation for any particular trait. Here at home in public life I was often accused of talking too much. In Mexico I seem to have acquired a sort of fame for silence."

TAMPICO FIGHTING STOPS.

Rebels Reported to Have Withdrawn to the Interior.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VERA CRUZ, April 13.—The Waters-Pierce officials here have received word from their refinery at Arbol Grande, near Tampico, that all trouble has passed for the present, and that apparently the rebels are retreating to the interior, whether to prepare another assault is not known.

The Ward liner Camaguey sailed to-night for Tampico under contract with the American Government to take care of refugees there. The battleship Minnesota is also on her way to Tampico to-night.

Gen. Maass believes that the Tampico flag incident is over, and that with the personal expressions of regret by Gen. Morelos Zaragoza the affair can be dismissed. He says no insult was intended and none offered to the Washington Government.

HUERTA FOR THE UPLIFT.

Summons Members of Jockey Club to Provide Trousers for Peons.

MEXICO CITY, April 13.—One hundred and sixty members of the Jockey Club, Mexico's most aristocratic organization, stood before President Huerta to-day and listened to his appeal for their support in an uplift movement in behalf of the poor.

"You men are millionaires, most of you," began the President. The members of the Jockey Club began to show signs of nervousness, which was allayed, however, when they learned that he did not want money for war, but for trousers—trousers of the ordinary cotton variety, worn by the Indian laboring man.

"When the world thinks of Mexicans," said President Huerta, "it does not think of men dressed like you and me, but of those poor, ragged, dirty, cotton-trousered men. Now, I want you to help me. I shall appoint a committee of two women for each of you. Please keep your eyes open for each of these poor men needing trousers and somehow contrive to provide him with a pair."

It was explained that President Huerta regarded the condition of the country as so much improved that he could afford to devote more time to civic affairs. He joked to-day with his fashionable callers, who visited him at his summons, about their club and life of ease. There were a few Americans among the number. The President added that he was thinking of establishing a new club, to which they were now invited to belong. His eyes twinkled when he informed them that his club was to be a military organization, and that to be eligible it would be necessary to be a soldier.

REPORT FEDERAL DEFEAT.

Juarez Rebel Officials Say Huertistas Lost 400 Killed at Colotlan.

JUAREZ, April 13.—While official reports were silent as to the Torreon and Saltillo district, there was news of a rebel victory further South, where it was reported that the Federal garrison of Colotlan, State of Jalisco, was defeated last Saturday with 400 killed. The garrison consisted of 600 regulars, 400 Indians and 200 citizen volunteers under Gen. del Toro, while the Constitutionalists were led by Gen. Banuelos and Cols. Calo and Cervantes. The report did not mention the rebel strength.

Great interest was manifested here in the news from Tampico, and there was much speculation as to the outcome of the American demand for an apology and salute to the flag. Interest in this incident overshadowed that felt in the military operations in the South.

HOSPITAL SHIP FOR TAMPICO.

Solace Sails, but Hancock, with 950 Marines, Is Held.

NEW ORLEANS, April 13.—Her coaling completed and her crew on board, the United States transport Hancock was standing by here late to-day, her original orders to proceed to Tampico having been cancelled by instructions to await further dispatches from Washington.

What caused the sudden change in plans is not known here. The 950 marines brought here by the Hancock two months ago were making no preparations to-night to embark. The United States hospital ship Solace, which iwas expected to accompany the Hancock to Mexican waters, sailed to-night under rush orders for Tampico.

Keep Young while growing Old—

AFTER all, youth is often more a matter of nerves than of years. You see that proven almost every day—this man of thirty, nerves wrecked and old before his time—that man, sixty but bright-eyed, sprightly because he kept his nerves youthful.

It is in this care of the nerves that Sanatogen is of such signal service. For to the hungry nerves, impoverished by overdrafts, illness, worries and neglect, Sanatogen brings just the foods they must have for speedy restoration to health—pure albumen and organic phosphorus in easily taken-up form.

And by thus nourishing the weakened nerve-cells and tissues, Sanatogen helps bring back the ease of digestion, the restful slumber and the vigorous health of youth.

And you—if the enthusiastic letters of 19,000 physicians and the grateful praise of scores of noted people—if that testimony means anything—you will not long delay giving Sanatogen its opportunity to help you.

Sanatogen is sold by good druggists everywhere in three sizes from $1.00 up.

John Burroughs, the distinguished naturalist and author, writes:

"I think the Sanatogen did me much good—it gave me much strength, steadied my nerves and greatly improved my sleep. It comes the nearest to being a remedy for old age I have yet struck, and I want to thank you for suggesting it."

After clothes had been sold for two centuries in this city, it remained for us to think of two new things to improve them:

1. To present ready-to-wear clothes designed expressly to meet the peculiar requirements of the town.
2. To make these clothes FIT BETTER than anyone had ever thought ready-to-wear clothes could fit.

The finest woolens and the best style in the world meet their Waterloo in the wrinkles and puckers of a misfit.

One of the reasons our clothes look so well is because we do not permit a suit to go out until it is fitted as well as a suit can be fitted.

BALL IN WONDERFUL UNDERGROUND ROOM

A $35,000,000 PALACE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 13.—Welbeck Abbey, Nottinghamshire, world famous for its vast underground apartments, was the scene to-night of a memorable ball to celebrate the coming of age of the Marquis of Titchfield, eldest son of the Duke and Duchess of Portland. Over 1,000 guests were invited.

The dancing took place in the wonderful underground picture gallery, which has been described as "the largest and most magnificent private room in England."

All the subterranean marvels of Welbeck are due to the eccentric fifth Duke of Portland, who was consumed with a passion for privacy. From his succession to the estate in 1854 to his death in 1879 he spent, it is said, $35,000,000 in creating new wonders for Welbeck. Of these the most celebrated is the picture gallery. It is entirely below ground, excavated from solid clay, 160 feet long, 64 feet wide, and 22 feet high. At night eighteen exquisite glass chandeliers reveal the priceless old masters that cover the walls. The flat roof is level with the garden above, and one can walk on the soft green turf without knowing the beauties below.

To-night pink was the prevailing tone. The chairs, divans, and settees were pink and gold, harmonizing with the beautiful flowers from the Welbeck conservatories. Great palms almost hid the orchestra.

The rose corridor, 150 yards long, had been arranged under the supervision of the Duchess of Portland, as a sitting room. Here, too, pink was the prevailing tone. Exotic plants lined the corridor.

Underground apartments ordinarily used as storerooms were converted into comfortable smoking rooms richly decorated and artificially heated.

Supper was provided by the Welback staff, reinforced by over 100 waiters. It was served in three underground rooms adjoining the picture gallery.

Four hundred persons sat down to supper at a time.

PRINCE OF WALES ATHLETIC.

Despite His Slight Physique, He Tired Out Expert Ski Runners.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 13.—The Prince of Wales, despite his frail looks, has been giving proof of untiring energy. He was practicing polo in Windsor Park at 8 this morning.

In the course of his recent visit to Germany, it is related, the Prince, after a day's automobiling, dismayed the two German officers attached to his suite by insisting upon leaving the automobile and returning to the palace, a distance of fifteen miles, on foot. The Prince finished comparatively fresh, but only one officer, sorely distressed, was with him; the other was left some distance behind.

Again on a recent trip to Norway, the Prince astonished everyone by his remarkable endurance on skis. On each of the five days spent at Finse he took long skiing expeditions, and when those who accompanied him told of the distances covered they were not altogether credited. One day two expert skiers, army officers, set out for a trip. An hour and a half later the Prince followed them with a party. As the officers were starting back the Prince arrived, and the royal party lunched on the sandwiches carried in their haversacks. The Prince then began his return journey and passed the experts long before Finse was reached. He had written several letters before the officers, thoroughly tired out, reached home.

MAY BAR DECOLLETE GIRLS.

Archbishop of Besancon Denounces the Existing Dress Styles.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

GENEVA, April 13.—Threats of partial ex-communication for all who fail to satisfy certain self-appointed religious censors of dress have been thundered from the pulpits of Besançon, France.

Recently the Archbishop of that diocese, which touches nearly the whole of the Swiss western frontier, has been denouncing present-day feminine fashions. His latest move is to have read in all the churches under his control the following:

"Young girls must not have their arms bare, and, above all, must not come to church in décolleté.

"If the present ridiculous fashions continue we shall be obliged to make examples by refusing to admit for Confirmation and Holy Communion girls dressed according to these modes."

CHOOSING IDEAL DANCE.

Congress of Teachers in Paris Debates Merits of Various Steps.

PARIS, April 13.—The International Academy of Dancing Masters discussed at its annual meeting to-day various dances from which it is hoped to select one which may serve as a typical figure for all the world during the coming year. Forty-five dancing masters from the United States and Europe attended the congress.

In the course of the session the delegates debated at length the desirability of the "Tango," which was attacked in some quarters and warmly defended in others. Finally it was decided that the "Tango" might be danced on condition that it be purged of certain objectionable features.

A Parisian professor of dancing, who has invented a figure known as the "tatao," with the object of maintaining the purity of the art, argued against the regrettable tendencies of certain teachers, who were, he said, responsible for conditions which had aroused violent hostility on the part of a large section of the public.

Demonstrations were then given of a number of new dances, including the "tatao" and the "Furlana." The "Furlana" is really not a new dance, as it was first practiced by the Venetians in 1650, but it is new to many parts of the world. It is the dance that Pope Pius is said to have recommended.

At a later session of the Congress the choice of the best dance will be announced.

ARTIST DIES BY BULLET.

A Victim of Cancer and Despondent, Stephens Commits Suicide.

Charles Arthur Lloyd Stephens, an artist, who long had suffered from a cancer which physicians told him was incurable, committed suicide yesterday afternoon at his home, 697 Elmore Place, in the Vanderveer Park district of Brooklyn, by firing a bullet from a revolver into his right temple. His wife, who heard the report of the revolver, found him lying half dressed on the floor of his sleeping room. A piece of paper was pinned to his coat, and on it these lines were scrawled:

> Close his eyes, his work is done;
>   What to him is friend or foeman,
> Rise of moon or set of sun,
>   Hand of man or kiss of woman?
> Lay him low, lay him low,
>   In the clover or the snow;
> What cares he? He cannot know;
>   Lay him low, lay him low.

Mrs. Stephens told the police that her husband had been despondent for several days because of his illness.

DELAY INTER OCEAN BIDS.

Counsel Hint at Some Development in Chicago Newspaper Receivership.

CHICAGO, April 13.—Receipt of bids for the property of the Chicago Inter Ocean in the Federal Court here was postponed to-day until April 18 at the request of counsel, who intimated that it would be to the interest of the parties to allow another week to elapse before closing the matter.

The courtroom was crowded with several hundred persons interested in the disposition of the newspaper, which has been for some months in the hands of receivers.

RIOTERS ATTACK CLERGY IN ITALY

PRIEST AND ACOLYTES SHOT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, April 13.—An extraordinary series of religious disturbances spoiled the Easter festivities in various parts of Italy.

At Pagnano, in the Province of Treviso, the parish priest and acolytes were shot at and wounded while carrying a sacred image in a public procession. One of the canopies was riddled with bullets.

In Porto Ferrajo Cathedral, where about 3,000 worshippers were present, a dispute between rival religious confraternities for precedence in a procession developed into a riot. According to the Corriere della Sera many women, children, and old men were injured in a panic-stricken rush for the doors of the cathedral.

Similar disgraceful scenes occurred at Santo Stefano, near Messina. The peasantry of two adjacent Sicilian villages fought for precedence in an open-air cortège. Sticks, stones, and hay-rakes were freely used, and the clergy and monks were put to flight. All the sacred images were smashed to pieces and scores of persons were injured.

Reinforcements of carabinieri had to be summoned by telegraph.

Catanzaro Cathedral in Calabria was also the scene of amazing riots. The new Archbishop attempted to supress certain popular local customs involving the use of pagan symbols, and, owing to his instructions being openly disobeyed, had laid a neighboring church under a three days' interdict. When the Archbishop appeared in the cathedral to celebrate Easter High Mass an infuriated throng shrieked curses at him. As it was feared that he would be assaulted the clergy hurried him away by a private exit.

Troops were sent for to drive the mob out of the cathedral.

2,000 SIEGEL BOOKS IN.

Depositors Enter Their Claims on the $400,000 Available.

The depositors of the failed firm of Henry Siegel & Co., bankers, went in large numbers yesterday to the temporary offices of Receiver Henry Melville, 100 Broadway, and left their pass books, so that the accountants for the receiver might begin computation of their pro rata share of the fund of more than $400,000. When the offices of the receiver were thrown open in the morning at 8 o'clock, there was a long line of depositors waiting, and that line was in formation for the better part of the forenoon. When the receiver's clerks and accountants quit work at 5 o'clock they reported that 2,000 depositors had either brought their pass books in person or sent them by mail.

The depositors have sixty days in which to file proof of their claims with the receiver. In lieu of filing due proof of claims, those depositors who desire to do so may send their pass books, and the receiver is empowered by order of the United States District Court to accept the pass books as proof of claims and make payment on the balances at his own discretion. Depositors who send in their pass books by mail will be the first to receive their checks, and after they have been paid those depositors who wish to receive their money in person will be paid.

May Smith to Deny Siegel Charges.

Miss May Smith, mentioned in the suit of Mrs. Marie Vaughan Siegel against her husband, Henry Siegel, for divorce as "Miss Smith," filed a notice of appearance with County Clerk Schneider yesterday. The notice means that she intends to protest against the mention of her name. Her counsel is Mortimer Boyle.

TROOPS IN ITALIAN STATIONS

According to Some, the Railway Men Seek Compromise.

ROME, April 13.—The question of a strike of the railway men throughout Italy still hangs in the balance, but the Government, in order to be in readiness for any eventuality, has already occupied certain stations with detachments of troops. Arrangements have been made to replace with bluejackets the sailors on the postal steamers plying between the Continent and the islands, while the engineers and stokers of the warships will, if necessary, assist the military engineers to carry on the train service.

In several cases damage has been done to engines, and those responsible have been dismissed.

The operating forces permanently engaged by the Italian State railways, including officials of all classes, number about 115,000 individuals, who are joined in a league which has been pressing for increases of wages and diminution of hours of work.

The men's chief demand is for a minimum wage of 60 cents a day. Some now get only 34 cents a day. Twenty cents extra per night for night work is demanded. Engine drivers and firemen want to work not more than ten hours by day and eight by night out of the twenty-four when working slow trains, and ask that their hours be diminished as the speed augments until they are reduced to a minimum of five hours daily. They ask that all men have thirty-four hours' rest weekly in the town where they reside.

Traveling officials, according to the demands, are not to work more than twelve hours a day, with a thirty-four-hour rest weekly, while station agents are not to work more than ten hours a day or less than eight. The maximum for night work to be twenty nights a month, and the men are to have a thirty-six hours' rest every week.

The guardians at the flag stations and the grade-crossing women are to work ten hours a day, with one day of rest a week, the latter having no night hours and no work when maternal duties interfere.

GETS FRENCH AIR LICENSE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 13.—America will have two representatives in the waterplane race for the Schneider Cup at Monte Carlo on April 21. Weymann will have as flying partner William Thaw of Pittsburgh, who is now in Paris.

The story of the entry of Thaw, told by Cortlandt Field Bishop, is an interesting one. It was discovered only last Saturday that Mr. Thaw did not possesse a French aeroplane pilot's license. The entries for the cup closed that midnight.

At midday Saturday Messrs. Bishop and Thaw set out in an automobile to seek an official steward of the Aero Club of France in order to obtain a license. An official was found and consented to be present at a trial the same day. The three motored to Bezons, where a Curtiss waterplane, which had recently arrived from America, had just been mounted.

Thaw took out the machine and passed all the official trials in brilliant style within an hour, receiving his license late in the afternoon, and his entry for the cup was registered.

Mr. Bishop, speaking of America's prospects, said there was every chance of success this time.

BRITISH GOLFERS COMING.

Duncan and Braid Expected to Compete in the Open Tournament.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 13.—It is highly probable that another effort will be made by two famous British professionals to capture the open golf championship of the United States this year.

George Duncan has promised to represent Great Britain if another first-class professional accompanies him, and it is understood that James Braid is likely to agree to make the journey with him.

NIAGARA DENIES MISHAP.

French Liner Will Reach Port on Time, Captain Reports.

Paul Faguet, agent of the French Line, received a wireless message at noon yesterday from Capt. Juhan of the steamship Niagara, bound from Havre to this port, denying reports concerning that vessel.

There was a report in London that the Niagara had met with an accident and had started for the Azores leaking. There was another rumor that the steamship had put in at the Azores on April 9. As soon as he heard the rumors Mr. Faguet sent a message to Capt. Juhan asking for information. This reply was received:

> Passed Cape Race 7 P. M. Sunday, making regular speed; all well on board; no trouble; not behind schedule; will arrive in New York on Wednesday afternoon.

The Niagara has about 300 passengers. Mr. Faguet said an investigation would be made to ascertain how the report of an accident started.

A later wireless message received gave the ship's position at 7:30 A. M. yesterday as being 800 miles east of Sandy Hook.

SAYS 'BILLY' SUNDAY HELPED PITTSBURGH

Rev. Maitland Alexander Praises Revivalist to Meeting of Ministers Here.

POKER REPLACED BY BIBLE

Attorney Tells How Scranton Card Players Are Converted and Now Study Scriptures.

What "Billy" Sunday has done for Pittsburgh and other parts of Pennsylvania was told in a forceful manner to several hundred ministers and officers of New York City churches yesterday afternoon in the Marble Collegiate Church, Fifth Avenue and Twenty-ninth Street. The Rev. Dr. Maitland Alexander, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh, spoke of a recent eight weeks' evangelical campaign in that city.

Dr. Alexander said his church bore somewhat the same relation to Pittsburgh as Trinity Church did to New York, in that it was in the lower end of the city and surrounded by office buildings. Since Feb. 1, he had added 419 new members, he said, nine department stores were now holding prayer meetings every morning at 8 o'clock; every Thursday afternoon he was teaching a Bible class of 242 public school teachers, and another large class had been organized among women working in the big stores.

Perhaps the most remarkable fact Dr. Alexander had to tell was that as a result of the meetings, the Cambria Steel Company, one of the largest steel concerns in the country, had organized a religious department with an ordained minister in charge.

"This is the first time in the history of the country, I believe," added Dr. Alexander, "that such a thing has been done by any large business corporation."

"Billy Sunday succeeded in moving the City of Pittsburgh from one end to the other," said Dr. Alexander, "and that to my mind was the greatest result of his meetings. It is easy to talk about religion now in Pittsburgh. Men especially are thinking of it as never before, and the great majority are no longer in the middle of the road. They are on one side or the other. I never knew a man who could speak to men with such telling effect as Billy Sunday. I covet his ability to make men listen to him. It was necessary in my church, which, when packed, holds 3,200, to hold special meetings for different groups, such as lawyers, doctors, bankers, &c., and they were always crowded. In the big Tabernacle, which was built for the campaign, and held more than 20,000, the men from the big steel shops, after the second week, came in bodies of 1,000 to 3,000, in many cases headed by their leading officers."

William Atherton, an attorney of Wilkes-Barre, told of Billy Sunday's more recent work in that city and Scranton. He told of the garage bible club which had acquired considerable local fame. This, he said, was organized by a group of wealthy men who used to meet at different homes every week for a poker game. It was really a gentleman's poker club. One man bet a friend $15 that he would not go to hear Sunday. But they all sneaked off, one by one, and heard Sunday, added Mr. Atherton, and as a result the poker club was abandoned and in a garage belonging to one of the members they organized a bible class which had become famous as the Garage Bible Class.

"The saloons have been almost put out of business by Billy Sunday," said Mr. Atherton, "and I have been told that many saloons frequented by the miners which formerly took in $25 to $40 a day now hardly take in $5. I confidently believe that within five years Pennsylvania will have local option if not constitutional prohibition. That is one big thing that Sunday is doing for the community."

A POEM BY KEATS.

Five Hitherto Unpublished Verses from Lord Crewe's Album.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, April 14.—The Times prints the following hitherto unpublished five-verse poem by Keats, from an album in the possession of the Marquis of Crewe:

You say you love but with a voice
  Chaster than a nun's who singeth
The soft vespers to herself
  While the chime bell ringeth.
    O love me truly!

You say you love but with a smile
  Cold as sunrise in September,
As you were Saint Cupid's nun,
  And kept his weeks of ember.
    O love me truly!

You say you love, but then your lips,
  Coral tinted, teach no blisses;
More than coral in the sea,
  They never pout for kisses.
    O love me truly!

You say you love, but then your hand
  No soft squeeze for squeeze returneth;
It is like a statue's, dead,
  While mine to passion burneth.
    O love me truly!

O breath a word or two of fire;
  Smile as if those words should burn me;
Squeeze as lovers should; O kiss,
  And in thy heart in-urn me!
    O love me truly!

LADY WALDSTEIN WINS SUIT.

Gets Extra Third, About $1,250,000, of Father's Estate.

Justice Giegerich decided in the Supreme Court yesterday that Lady Florence Waldstein was entitled to two-thirds of the estate of her father, the late David L. Einstein, and that Mr. Einstein did not try in his will to circumvent the law. The decision gave her an extra one-third of the estate, which amounted to about $1,250,000.

Mr. Einstein was a woolen manufacturer. He died in May, 1907, leaving three children, Florence, Amy, and Lewis. Florence married Sir Charles Waldstein, and Amy married Dr. Joel Elias Spingarn, one time a professor in Columbia University.

Lewis Einstein was graduated from Columbia, and became Third Secretary to the American Embassy at Paris. He married Helen Railli, who had been married twice. She was older than he, and was of a different faith. The marriage angered Mr. Einstein. His will gave each one of the three children $125,000, and the residue, amounting to about $3,750,000, was divided into three shares. Two of these shares were to go to Lady Waldstein and one to Mrs. Spingarn.

Dr. Spingarn contended that, under a secret agreement, Lady Waldstein was to give the third share to her brother if he would consent to get a divorce, but that if he refused the money was to be divided between the other two heirs. His objection appeared when Lewis Einstein refused to abandon his wife. Lady Waldstein settled upon her brother $20,000 a year.

Dr. Spingarn brought suit to have the third share, known as Share C, construed by the courts. It was pointed out by the lawyers that if Mr. Einstein had said his son should share equally if he would consent to divorce his wife it would have invalidated the will. Therefore, it was said, Mr. Einstein sought to accomplish the same end by creating a secret trust in the hands of his daughter.

Justice Giegerich decided that the evidence was wholly insufficient to establish the existence of any secret trust. He said the only question to decide was whether Lady Waldstein had the power to appropriate Share C to herself. He did not think she had, but he said she had the power to appropriate the income of the share to herself and to dispose of the principal after her death.

MASTER STROKE

In business, in diplomacy, in art, in letters, what is known as the master stroke, is the inspiration of genius which suddenly lifts the whole project forward on the very floodtide of success.

It is a master stroke on a building operation, for instance, to ensure its quick, safe, and economical conduct to completion, by hiring The Thompson-Starrett Company to do the job.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., April 13.—Exercises celebrating the ninety-fifth anniversary of the founding of the University of Virginia were held to-day on the university campus.

James M. Beck of New York was orator of the day, speaking on "Thomas Jefferson, the Scholar in Politics." In the course of his address he paid tribute to Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson. Of the latter he said:

"Virginia's last contribution to the Chief Magistracy, President Wilson, aptly illustrates that a philosopher fresh from the cloistered shades can guide the fiery steeds of democracy like the most experienced charioteer in the political arena."

WORLD'S SURGEONS IN SESSION HERE

Dr. Depage, President of International Congress, Protests Against Cruelties of War.

TRANSPLANTATIONS FAIL

The Fourth Congress of the International Surgical Association, which was organized in Brussels in 1905, and has met triennially in that city since its formation, opened at the Hotel Astor yesterday for a four-day session. About one hundred foreign delegates were present, many of them being accompanied by their wives and approximately the same number of surgeons accredited to this country. Membership in the United States is limited to one hundred. The absence of delegates from Great Britain was noticeable, although the delegate who traveled the greatest distance to attend is a British colonial, Dr. Hamilton Russell, a noted surgeon of Melbourne, Australia.

Surgeon-General William C. Gorgas of the United States Army, the great sanitarian who won enduring fame by making the Panama Canal Zone habitable and the building of the Canal possible, was the first to extend the official welcome to the visitors when they assembled in the ballroom of the Astor at 11:30 o'clock yesterday morning.

"I am sent by the President of the United States," said Gen. Gorgas, "as his representative to welcome you and to express his regrets that he was unable to do it in person. On account of the press of public affairs, it was impossible for him to be away from Washington at present. The President and the Government consider it a great honor to have the International Surgical Association hold this meeting in America, and in the name of the President I welcome you."

Our Debt to Europe.

Dr. William J. Mayo of Rochester, Minn., President of the American Surgical Association, welcomed the visitors on behalf of that organization.

In the absence of Prof. Willems, Dr. J. P. Hoguet of this city, secretary of the congress, read his address in French. Dr. L. L. McArthur of Chicago, chairman of the American Committe of the Association in place of the late Dr. Roswell Park of Buffalo, also made a brief address of welcome, in which he said:

"There are no limits to the field of surgery—our country is the world."

There are two sets of officers, one for the association and one for this particular congress, so that while Prof. Willems is head of the association Prof. A. Depage of Brussels is President of the congress. In the course of his address Prof. Depage said:

The International Surgical Society in quitting the neutral soil of Belgium and in choosing New York as the seat of this meeting shows the high esteem in which it holds our American colleagues and at the same time the confidence it feels in the final triumph of the ideas of peace and civilization that the United States personifies throughout the whole world.

We surgeons necessarily represent by our profession itself a mute and constant protest against the evils of war by organizing help for the wounded and working during the periods of peace to anticipate all the horrors of the battlefield, so as to be ready and waiting with our help.

The time has passed when the art of war was but a manifestation of exalted personal courage. The art of war has called science to its help, and the response has been a fearful perfecting of the means of destruction. At the same time in the countries of Europe the general military service is becoming universal, in such a way that a number of combatants unparalleled before, is to be foreseen in future wars. We should, therefore, be employed in perfecting our sanitary organizations. The technicians of war have been able to proportion the thickness of the armorplate to the penetrating power of the projectiles; they have multiplied the means of defense in the same degree that the force of the engines of destruction has increased.

Should Prepare for War.

With us rests the task of developing the organization of our war surgery, so that it may remain on a level with the sad needs of our times. American surgery here again has furnished us with important illustrations.

I must be permitted to draw attention to the existing state of affairs. That the international understanding should be reinforced more and more by the organization of help for the victims of war is a thing greatly to be desired.

Without doubt this understanding already exists; the Red Cross is the most striking illustration of it, and at the time of the last Balkan War we saw ambulances which had come from all countries.

When I arrived at Constantinople in November, 1912, with the Belgian ambulance I already found the American ambulance installed and in full working order, under the direction of your eminent countryman, Dr. Ford.

At a meeting of the Imperial Surgical Society at Constantinople in December, 1912, just at the time when we could hear the thunder of the cannons of Tchataldja every day, we expressed the fervent wish that the use of the shrapnells might be abolished on the same grounds as the explosive bullets.

To military men this wish may appear naive. I do not deny it, but at the same time let me tell you that I am not in any way ashamed of it.

Many papers on surgical subjects, written by the visitors and other surgeons, were circulated, among them one by Dr. Alexis Carrel of the Rockefeller Institute on "The Transplantations of Organs." It will be discussed at to-morrow's meeting. Here is a part of it:

During the last few years it has been definitely established that autoplastic transplantations of organs are practically always successful; that homoplastic transplantations, although the immediate results may be excellent, are nearly always ultimately unsuccessful, and that heteroplastic transplantations are always unsuccessful. Although the technical part of the problem of the transplantation of organs was completely solved long ago, this operation cannot yet be applied to human surgery. Homoplastic grafts alone would be of use; but before being practicable homoplastic transplantations must be rendered as safe as autoplastic transplantations.

Autoplastic transplantations are those in which the organs are returned to the same animal from which they were taken; homoplastic transplantations are those in which organs are transplanted from one animal to another of the same species, while heteroplastic transplantations are that in which organs are transplanted from one animal to another of a different species.

Carrel Discusses the Problem.

Dr. Carrel continues:

In all my experiments I have found that, although autoplastic transplantations were always successful, homoplastic transplantations invariably proved unsuccessful. It is probable that by using animals closely related, such as a mother and son, for instance, better results could be obtained.

The investigator also described several experiments in the grafting or transplantation carried on by Dr. James B. Murphy of the Rockefeller Institute. Here is one of them:

Dr. Murphy attempted to discover how a homoplastic or heteroplastic graft could be made to develop indefinitely on its host. In these new experiments he grafted on to rats a mouse tumor which had never taken on rats previously. He extirpated the spleen from the rats and observed that the mouse tumor could grow actively on these rats for twelve or thirteen days, that is, longer than on the controls; at the end of that time the tumor became absorbed. Next, he studied the effect of benzol, which has the power of diminishing the activity of leucocytes, (white blood corpuscles.)

In rats injected with benzol he found that the duration of the life of the mouse tumor was longer and that resorption did not occur before fifteen days; but although the results were positive the action was too small to be of any use.

He next attempted to use Röntgen rays, and the action of this treatment was very pronounced. The mouse tumor developed very rapidly and extensively on rats exposed to the Röntgen rays, and after thirty-five days this tumor is still growing. It is too soon to draw anw definite conclusions from these experiments. Nevertheless it is certain that a very important point has been acquired with Dr. Murphy's discovery that the power of the organism to eliminate foreign tissue was due to organs such as the spleen or bone marrow, and that when the action of these organs is less active a foreign tissue can develop rapidly after it has been grafted.

It is not possible to foresee whether or not the present experiments of Dr. Murphy will lead directly to the practical solution of the problem in which we are interested; but it is certain that he has contributed a very important step toward this solution. It is not possible that by using Dr. Murphy's or some other method it will be possible to regularly obtain the excellent results which we have observed in animals which presented a general infection.

The surgical side of the transplantation of organs is now completed, as we are now able to perform transplatations of organs with perfect ease and with excellent results from an anatomical standpoint. But as yet these methods cannot be applied to human surgery, for the reason that homoplastic transplantations are almost always unsuccessful from the standpoint of the functioning of the organs. All our efforts must now be directed toward the biological methods which will prevent the reaction of the organism against foreign tissue and allow of the adapting of homoplastic grafts to their hosts.

The afternoon session of the congress was devoted to the reading and discussion of papers on amputations. Those who participated were Dr. O. Witzel of Bonn, Dr. P. von Kuzmik of Budapest, Dr. M. Durand of Lyons, Dr. E. Ranzi of Vienna, Dr. Ceci of Pisa, and Dr. J. F. Binnie of Kansas City.

Visitors Attend Clinics.

During the day many of the visiting surgeons attended clinics at the New York Hospital by Dr. C. L. Gibson, Dr. Johnson, and Dr. Burton J. Lee, and another at Bellevue Hospital by George Woolsey, Professor of Surgery at Cornell Medical College. The operations performed were such as come to the surgeons' attention in the ordinary course of the day's work.

The American Surgical Association entertained the visitors and their wives at a 5 o'clock tea.

The visiting surgeons and the ladies accompanying them were the guests at dinner last evening of the American Medical Association at the Astor. Dr. Dudley B. BROKEN MAIN FLOODS LONG ISLAND TUBES

NEAR-BY CELLARS AWASH

Railroad Traffic Switched to Adjoining Tunnels and Hotel Guests Are Not Inconvenienced.

A six-inch main carrying water into the middle east side section of the city broke at 4 o'clock yesterday morning at a point in Thirty-third Street just west of Fifth Avenue and in front of the main doors on the south side of the Waldorf-Astoria. Before the water could be cut out at the Fifth Avenue water gate the pavement caved in, cellars were flooded, and the two Long Island Railroad tubes, which run some fifty feet under Thirty-third Street, were put out of commission. Traffic had to be switched to Tunnels 1 and 2, which follow the line of Thirty-second Street to the East River. There was only slight interruption of traffic, though the tubes were not cleared of the water until late in the afternoon.

Policeman Jacobson reported the accident to the West Thirtieth Street Police Station at 4:10 o'clock. It was not until 4:45 o'clock that complaint was received at the repair station of the Department of Water Supply, 212 West Thirty-fifth Street. An emergency force was sent out and within a few minutes after their arrival the water had been cut off, and the work of repairing the break was under way. All this took time, and before the water gate was closed the great volume of water had undermined the street. A section extending from curb almost to curb caved in, leaving a hole about forty feet square and about fifteen feet deep.

The reserves were sent from the West Thirtieth Street Station in a patrol wagon and they roped off the danger zone. Night Manager Clark of the Waldorf and Chief Engineer Bingham of the Water Department went down into the sub-basement of the hotel to investigate. They found that the water had entered the humidor of the Waldorf-Astoria Cigar Company and ruined about $2,000 worth of fine cigars. Water also got into the wine cellar and into the bakeshop. In the bakery it reached a height of ten inches before the flow was stopped and the pump was able to cope with the inflow. The bakers did not stop work, as the water did not get high enough to put out the fires.

The management say that very little damage was done to the hotel property. While the water supply which is taken into the hotel from the Thirty-third Street side was cut off by the accident, the guests were not greatly inconvenienced, as the supply from the Thirty-fourth Street side was sufficient for most pressing needs. The worst trouble was experienced in the kitchen, where the workers had to carry water from other parts of the house.

Water penetrated into the basement of the ten-story Cambridge Building, 2 West Thirty-third Street, putting the machinery that runs the elevators out of business. The basement of the Security Bank, 4 West Thirty-third Street, was also flooded.

The engineers who keep watch over the tubes of the Pennsylvania and Long Island Railroad system reported having first noticed a seeping of water into Tubes 3 and 4 at the point where the break in the water main occurred, some time after 10 o'clock on Sunday night. This is only important, they say, as showing that the break in the main had developed even at that time. This seeping kept up, and when the main broke the water began to flow in so fast that at one time there was at least two feet and a half in the tunnels. Before the water had reached this height word had been sent to the Pennsylvania station and electricity had been shut off and traffic both ways through the two upper tubes was discontinued. Emergency pumps were set to work to clear the tunnels, but not much headway was made until the water was turned off in the water main.

An official of the Pennsylvania Railroad said that no damage had been done to the tunnels, and that the delay in traffic had been slight. This delay had not been of any inconvenience to the traveling public, he said, for the accident happened at a time when travel was at its lightest. Later, when the morning rush began, the train service was running smoothly through Tunnels 1 and 2.

There was no shortage of water in dwellings when the main was cut off, as another connection was made that provided a supply in that section of the city. Chief Engineer Bingham of the Water Supply Department had his men at work until the early afternoon. The broken section of the pipe was cut out and replaced.

No cause for the accident is given. It is believed that either jarring or pressure developed a flaw in the pipe or that the settling of the earth after the digging of the tunnels left a part of the pipe unsupported.

CELEBRATES PAAS FESTIVAL

St. Nicholas Society Hears Dean C. Worcester at Delmonico's.

The St. Nicholas Society met at Delmonico's last night to celebrate the Paas Festival, an ancient Easter Monday ceremony which has descended from the early Dutch settlers of Manhattan. Mirth, melody, and the St. Nicholas punch were features. The society stood at attention while the ancient weathercock, which formerly stood on the Dutch Stadthuis at Pearl and Stone Streets, and was rescued for the Society by Washington Irving, was carried in by stewards and servitors and placed on the President's table.

Charles Isham, President, introduced as the only speaker of the evening Dean C. Worcester, late Secretary of the Interior in the Philippines, who gave a lecture, illustrated by moving pictures and colored lantern slides, on some of the wild tribes of Northern Luzon. The two tribes taken up in particular were the Ifugaos and Bontoc Igorots, both formerly head hunters, who have been reformed by American rule.

DIED $2,348,360 IN DEBT.

Ernest G. Stedman Was Killed by Subway Train After Bankruptcy.

Ernest G. Stedman, real estate lawyer and treasurer of the J. C. Lyons Building and Operating Company, which failed in 1907 for $8,000,000, died in debt to the extent of $2,348,360, according to an appraisal of his estate filed yesterday.

A bankruptcy petition was filed against the J. C. Lyons Company on Dec. 20, 1907. Six days later Mr. Stedman, who had invested all his fortune in the Lyons Company and had persuaded many friends to become heavily involved, jumped in front of a Subway train at Fourteenth Street. Some said that an attack of vertigo caused him to fall, but the general belief was that he committed suicide.

Mr. Stedman's liabilities amounted to $2,601,793, and his assets to $254,433. The assets weer made up as follows: Realty, $18,450; bank accounts, $1,022; cash, $21; household and personal effects, $3,000; automobile and carriages, $1,161; office furniture, $242; law library, $150; bond and mortgage, $19,958; promissory note, $16,000; insurance, $15,000; due for loans, $123,018; stocks, $27,245, and money due for legal services, $28,162. He owned property in Manhattan, Brooklyn, and the Bronx, nearly all of which was heavily mortgaged. His home, at 15 West Thirty-fourth Street, was mortgaged for its full appraised value of $344,500.

Of Mr. Stedman's liabilities, $186,793 was for funeral expenses and household and other personal bills. The other deductions, amounting to $2,415,000, represented debts incurred in connection with the J. C. Lyons Co. The notes he had indorsed for the company alone totaled more than $500,000.

MRS. VANDERBILT AT TOMBS

In Course of Her Fight on Drugs She Visits the City Prison.

Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., accompanied by Miss Alice Smith, probation officer of the Women's Night Court, yesterday inspected the Tombs and talked with some of those who are confined there for using drugs. Mrs. Vanderbilt is at the head of a movement to wipe out the use of cocaine, morphine, opium, heroin, and other habit-forming drugs.

Before she visited the Tombs, Mrs. Vanderbilt sat in Special Sessions during the arraignment of Marian Young of 220B West Thirty-ninth Street on the charge of having cocaine in her possession. She became interested in the case through Miss Smith, and went to court in the hope of getting the young woman released, on condition that she was taken care of by some society. The drug found in the possession of the prisoner was not cocaine, but heroin, and, as that is not covered by the present law, she was discharged.

When Mrs. Vanderbilt went to the Tombs she was not recognized by the doorkeeper, so she went back to Special Sessions and got a note from Chief Clerk Smith. She presented this to Warden Hanley, who showed her through, and later received her congratulations on the neatness and discipline in the prison.

FEARSOME FREAKS IN FAKERS' SHOW

F. L. Neitzert Wins $5, Three Cents, and Mince Pie with His Painting at Art Exhibit.

"PRUNE" GETS FIRST PRIZE

"The Early Warning" took the booby prize at the annual Fakers' Exhibit, or, in art students' language, the "Twenty-third Annual Maxixie" of the Art Students' League, in its rooms in the National Academy Building, which opened yesterday, and will continue through Friday of this week, when the various exhibits will be auctioned off.

Miss Zella de Milhau gives the prize for the "worst" of the fake pictures, $5, 3 cents and a mince pie. It is to be hoped that it will be a big pie, for the picture deserves it. The original, as shown in the National Academy exhibit on the floor below, is "Early Morning," by Edward Dufner, A. N. A. It is a picture of delicate idealism and soft, hazy tones. A woman, an undraped figure, sits upon a bank, while sailing gently toward her on the water at her feet is a swan.

The "worst" fake picture is by F. L. Neitzert, and "The Early Warning" which he has painted shows early-rising females what a dangerous thing it is to sit on the grass in the morning dews wearing not even a "nightie," and possibly in some one's dooryard at that. The lady in the fake picture is also undraped, while coming toward her with a furious air and waving her upraised arm is a woman who would make a militant suffragette sit up and take notice.

Not one of the seven "Light Housekeepers," after Randall Davey's "Capt. Dan Stevens, Lighthouse Keeper," took a prize. One of the fakers said that he thought the strength of the realism put into the first of these exhibits, to be seen as one enters the door of the fakers' paradise, was the reason.

"Prune" Gets the First Prize.

The first prize of $25 was given to Julian Garnsey for "Prune," a take-off on Alexander's beautiful "June," the fake showing an elderly female holding aloft a prune. The second prize of $15 went to G. D. Goodwin for "The Venetian Goddess," after Sargent Kendall's "Venetian Brocade," the figure of the woman in the second picture which, in outline, follows the original, winking one eye and holding in its hands a cigarette and a cigarette box. The third prize of $15 also went to Julian Garnsey for "After Joe's," from Jonas Lie's "Afterglow," and was much on the lines of the original.

There was never so gorgeous a fakers' exhibition, for never before were there such brilliantly dressed damsels as those taking part in it. It was a Spring fashion exhibit which outdid the real Spring fashions, and this is saying a great deal, The minaret skirt, the short-wired affair, was one of the most popular styles, so popular that it was copied in the costumes of the whole of "That Damn Band"—quotation from the fakers' own programme. The minaret skirts of the band were worn over blue striped white trousers and with wonderful tall hats, a full half yard in height, topped with small yellow balloons. It can be safely said that no band of its size ever made more noise.

Returning to the costumes of the pretty young artistes, they resembled the band in other things than minaret skirts—the colors were so striking that they made almost as much noise. Brilliant orange was a favorite color, not only in dress, but in wigs. There were some perfectly lovely orange wigs, worn with orange scarfs. The prettiest girl of the lot was in a beautiful crimson wig, with pearl ornaments, pearl trimmed décolleté frock—or the upper part of a frock, for the lower part was a pretty little short gauzy minaret skirt, pearl trimmed, with long straight white satin trousers.

Trousers were very much in evidence. They were the real thing, not to be disguised under the name of harem skirts or pantalettes, but they were made of pretty soft, feminine materials. The fakers were showing up the women of to-day in their costumes as they did in the pictures—only perhaps there was not quite so much exaggeration in the costumes.

Enormous checks and pronounced stripes were combined with the brilliant colors. One pretty girl, wearing a trouser skirt—not the real articles this time—had the upper part of her costume in big black and orange checks and one with orange and black checks in the lower part of her costume had the upper part in plain orange. Vivid green, orange and broad black and white stripes was another combination. There were wonderful things in hats and collars and little yellow balloons figured in the headdresses.

There was much original talent shown in the side show going on with the musical accompaniment in the men's life classroom on the upper floor. The scenery was also original and effective. The jokes were received hilariously. An artist coming out to sing looked around to get the limelight:

"Where's the spot?" he calls.

"Bring out something to spot, you fool," was the answer, at which the audience roared.

The side show is given afternoons and evenings, and the pictures are always on view. There is real realism in one of these, which is a take-off on William M. Chase's still life of "Fish" in the Academy show. It shows a fish about life size on a board, and is a fishdealer's sign from New Jersey.

'HOUSE OF MYSTERY' ARREST

Pittsburgher, Taken Back from Washington, Wanted as Witness.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Royal R. Nichols, said to be a prominent young business man of Pittsburgh, was taken back to that city this afternoon in charge of County Detective McMahon, who came to Washington to get him. His wife accompanied him. According to report, he is wanted in the Pennsylvania city as a witness in the case involving the "Mystery House," where Dorothy Arnold was said to have been.

Nichols has been under arrest here since Saturday on charges of larceny, involving $125 of jewelry and receiving stolen goods. The arrest was made at the request of E. E. Clark of Pittsburgh, Chief of County Detectives.

Nichols declared that he had never heard of the "Mystery House" until he read of it in the newspaper, and had never been in Bellevue, the suburb in which the house is situated.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., April 13.—Chemicals placed in the coffin in an attempt to destroy the body of Mrs. Myrtle B. Allison, who died in the "House of Mystery," in Bellevue, March of last year, acted as a preservative and furnished a means by which the woman was identified, it was announced today. Attorney Rody P. Marshall, who represents Dr. Meredith, visited the latter in jail this morning. Mr. Marshall says that since Dr. Meredith is only accused of administering illegal medicine and treatment, his client cannot be held

The women who were killed, Mrs. C. L. Shackford and Mrs. Edith Bemis, jumped from windows.

Mrs. Shackford's husband was badly burned before he was rescued by firemen. Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Rogers and Miss R. Adams escaped from the fourth floor by a rope ladder made from bed clothing.

The building was wholly destroyed, but all persons are believed to have been taken out. The loss probably will reach $200,000.

HOTEL MEN FLOCK HERE.

The Liquor Question Is Likely to be a Live Issue at Their Reunion.

More than 800 members of the Hotel Men's Mutual Benefit Association of the United States and Canada will gather this morning at the Waldorf-Astoria for the opening session of their annual reunion. They arrived in flocks yesterday, and until midnight the registration clerks in the rooms of the New York City Hotel Association, in the Cambridge Building, Thirty-third Street and Fifth Avenue, were busy receiving them.

The hotel men are here for business and pleasure. As the guests of William A. Brady they attended the performance last night of "The Things That Count" at the Playhouse in Forty-eighth Street, and after the theatre as the guests of William Morris they enjoyed a Tango party on the New York Roof. They will be the luncheon guests of George C. Boldt at the Waldorf-Astoria to-day, and they give their own official banquet in the same hotel to-night.

Breakfast at the Park Avenue Hotel, a trip up the Hudson on the Berkshire during the day, an automobile ride in the afternoon, another banquet at the Biltmore at night, and a "bon voyage party" aboard the steamship George Washington, on which 200 members of the association, are going to Europe, will be features of to-morrow's programme.

COUNT DODGED MATRIMONY.

"Let Them Bring a Golden Baboon Who Is Nice," He Wrote.

Count Guillaume d'Arschot, Secretary of the King of Belgium and one of the chief beneficiaries under the will of his aunt, the late Countess Wilhelmina d'Arschot, testified yesterday before Justice Greenbaum in the Supreme Court, in the contest over her will. He told how he wrote a letter to his aunt protesting against efforts to lure him into marriage.

The letter told about one effort to induce him to marry the granddaughter of Nubar Pasha, Prince Regent of Egypt. The Count did not like it at all, despite the million and a half dowry with eight or ten millions more to come along later. The proposal, he wrote, "upsets all my plans, is going to put me to further expense of between 1,000 and 1,500 francs, and at the end of a year in which I have had enormous expense." The Count said in his letter that he had no thoughts of matrimony. In another letter the Count wrote of marriage:

"To discard the common people appears to be very difficult. People with a coat of arms have, except in a chance case, very small fortunes. Let them bring a golden baboon who is nice."

The case will be continued to-day.

GIRL ROBBED, YOUTH HELD.

One of 'Unemployed Army' Accused of Theft at I. W. W. Meeting.

Solomon Kaplan, who said that he was "one of the army of unemployed," was held in $1,500 bail by Magistrate Simms in the Tombs Court yesterday on a charge of snatching a purse from Miss Jessie Osiem of 115 Division St., at an I. W. W. demonstration on Sunday. Kaplan said he was 19 years old and lived at 176 Clinton Street.

Miss Osiem testified she felt some one tug at her purse, and the thief used such force that her fingers were badly lacerated and required treatment at Gouverneur Hospital. Patrolman Haase of the Madison Street Station, who arrested Kaplan after a chase, said he saw the youth drop Miss Osiem's purse. Kaplan denied that he stole the purse.

QUEEN'S COURIER TO SEE BRYAN TO-DAY

Eleanora of Bulgaria Will Arrive Here for Tour on May 30.

LECTURE OFFERS COME IN

William Caspar Says Royal Visitor Won't Even Make a Speech—Ellis Island to Interest Her.

William Caspar, advance representative for the visit of Queen Eleanora of Bulgaria, will go to Washington to-day to confer with Secretary of State Bryan in regard to the attitude of the State Department with reference to the Queen's visit, and what preparations, if any, the Government will make toward entertaining the Queen. Mr. Caspar will be accompanied by Charles Campbell, Secretary of the Legation at Sofia and Consul General to Bulgaria, who arrived here on Sunday from Sofia to advise officially the State Department of the Queen's approaching visit.

Since Mr. Caspar arrived on the Imperator, he has been very busy making inquiries and listening to suggestions and drawing up tentative plans. Clayton Rockhill, the newly appointed first Bulgarian Consul General to the United States, has been conferring with Mr. Caspar much of the time. It was learned yesterday that Queen Eleanora has definitely planned to sail on the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria, which is due to reach New York on May 30. After his arrival here the other day Mr. Caspar sent a cable suggesting that her Majesty defer her departure from the other side until the sailing of the new Vaterland on her first trip. A cable received late on Sunday night from Dr. Graetz, physician to the royal family, said that the Queen's plans could not be changed, and that she would adhere to the sailing date already determined upon.

Queen Eleanora will naturally travel incognito on the ship. It is thought she will use the title of Countess of Samakov or Princess of Varna. While Mr. Caspar says that all the particulars of the Queen's party and her intentions will not be made known until the arrival of Prof. Bainbridge, the Oxford University lecturer, who is due here in a few days, it is undehstood that her Majesty will be accompanied by a suite numbering between fifteen and twenty. Besides two or three of her ladies-in-waiting and several physicians, there will be several aides-de-camp and officers of high rank. Gen. Savoff, a relative of the Commander-in-Chief in the war with Turkey, is mentioned as one.

Mr. Caspar is an American who has lived a long time in Bulgaria. He is a contractor to the Government. About a year ago he made it possible to transport troops to places where they were needed by obtaining a big supply of coal for the railways when the country's supply was practically gone. He hoped to find in New York J. Colvin Brown, Commissioner of Exploitation for the Panama-Pacific Exposition, who, as told recently in THE NEW YORK TIMES, was royally entertained by King Ferdinand when he was in Bulgaria. Mr. Brown and his fellow commissioners were entertained at luncheon at the royal palace near Sofia, and the King made the Orient Express wait forty minutes for his American guests, and then had his own private engine attached to the train so that the lost time could be made up.

It was learned yesterday that Queen Eleanora at first contemplated coming to the United States much earlier than has been announced. Indeed, she once thought of coming over several weeks ago on a ship leaving from a Mediterranean port. However, her plans could not be perfected in time.

According to Mr. Caspar, the principal interest of the Queen in coming to the United States is to investigate American methods of hospital administration and charitable work. Also she wants to learn how immigrants are looked after, as Bulgaria faces a serious problem in the care of 200,000 refugees from Macedonia.

Letters and telegrams have poured in upon Mr. Caspar asking whether Queen Eleanora's services may be obtained for lecture circuits and individual lectures. Her Majesty will not deliver any lectures or speeches, according to Mr. Caspar, who says, however, he is having difficulty in getting this thoroughly understood. One inquiry received yesterday morning inquired what the Queen was going to charge for a lecture.

Mr. Caspar said he would not be able to speak with any degree of definiteness regarding the itinerary of the Queen in this country until after his return from Washington.

JENNINGS AT PLAZA FEAST.

Former Outlaw Talks About His Political Aims.

If Al J. Jennings had appeared in one of the fashionable hotels in New York a matter of fifteen years ago, he wouldn't have found an audience of thirty-six persons who would have listened to him with the same degree of pleasure as did Dr. Katharine B. Davis, Commissioner of Correction, and about thirty-five others yesterday. Mr. Jennings's address on that imaginary occasion would have been brief and emphasized by a "covering" with a pair of .44's, and the audience would have been concerned for what they carried in their pockets.

The fact that Mr. Jennings is an ex-outlaw and at present candidate for Governor of Oklahoma, and that he was the guest in whose honor a luncheon was being given by Charles J. Hite of New Rochelle at the Plaza made some difference. Besides Dr. Davis and Mrs. Hite, among those present were Mrs. Frank Drake, Director of the Criterion Club; Mrs. William R. Chapman, President of the Rubinstein Club; Mrs. Clarence Burns, Honorary President of the Woman's Republican Club; Miss Florence Guernsey, President of the Woman's Federation of Clubs; Mr. and Mrs. George F. Kerr, Mrs. Ambrose McCall, President of the New York Dinner Club; Col. J. Frank Supplee, Miss Ruby Allen, F. F. McIvor, W. R. Johnston, Crawford Livingston, Felix Kahn, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Lonergan, Miss Violet Hite, Addison Jones, J. Cairns, Carroll Fleming, Mr. and Mrs. Roy McCardell, Will Irwin, and C. R. McAuley.

"When it gets back home that I have been dined in this sumptuous place people are apt to say that I have been advertising," said Mr. Jennings. "But I want to tell you that while I am making a fight for the Governorship, I have really no ambition to be Governor. I am fighting for something higher. I am working for these 48,000 men who every year are turned out of the prisons and penitentiaries. I want them to get a human chance of making good. The only real difference between them and thousands of others who have not seen the inside of a jail is that they got caught.

"After a man has paid his debt, and the law has been vindicated by his punishment, he should have a chance in the world. As things stand at present this is denied him.

"I am working for another thing, and that is that some day the law of the land shall be no respector of persons; that it shall reach out in justice toward the high as well as the low and really get those that are guilty of wrongdoing. I may as well tell you that I hope that it will not get quite all of them, because there would be so very few persons left."

Mr. Jennings asserted that he had been attacked by the press of his own State, and accused one of the Oklahoma dailies, which said his story was bad advertising for the State, of having sold out to an opponent for $10,000. He said he did not write the story printed, but that Will Irwin had put into shape his "humiliating confession," because he himself hoped it might be the means of saving some one man from the "downward plunge."

"This morning," he went on, "we read of the death of four men whom the world would class as convicted and punished according to law. No matter what they did and how, there was something unexplained that made them die like men. I have seen many men put to death, and I do not believe one can go to his death with a lie on his lips. I cannot help thinking that to-day a murder was committed.

"My fight in Oklahoma is on the unevenness of the law. Out there, as elsewhere, the 'man higher up' escapes, and the 'fall guy' has to pay. In my own case, I was guilty, but not of the crime of which I was convicted.

"I sometimes get a little tired of the game, and this moment I feel as if I would rather go back to my little wife and my four dogs and take them out to the mountains of Arizona. Those dogs, ladies and gentlemen, are the only things that have never questioned my past."

Dr. Davis, who was next introduced, said it seemed rather significant that, while there was a State Department of Prisons, the city office corresponding thereto should have been named the "Department of Correction," and she wondered who was responsible.

"It has seemed to me peculiarly fitting that the first city department to be put in the care of a woman should be this department," she continued. "In the family it is always the woman who had to do the correcting. When there is any such to be done, father always gets out of the house and delegates the work to mother.

"Perhaps one reason why success has not always attended the work of the department is that a man has worked alone in it. Since the days of Adam and Eve things have always turned out better when man and woman worked together. In present day conditions, and in working out problems certainly woman's help is needed.

"Yet my experience of late has led me to believe there is a great misapprehension as to the limitations of the duties of my position. Some think that if anything goes wrong, all they have to do is to call me up, no matter what the problem is.

FIGHT FOR MILLIONS OF W. R. H. MARTIN

Mrs. Elsie K. M. Smith Contests Will, Charging Undue and Fraudulent Influence.

CALLS TESTATOR DERANGED

Testaments of Earlier Date Than That Offered for Probate Are Concealed, Niece Asserts.

Mrs. Elsie Kumble Martin Smith, a niece of the late William R. H. Martin, principal owner of Rogers Peet & Co., began proceedings in the Supreme Court yesterday to break his will. He died on Jan. 30, 1912, leaving an estate of $3,000,000. Mrs. Smith lived with her uncle from 1896, when she was 14 years old, until 1909. She said that Mr. Martin made several wills between April 3, 1907, and Dec. 21, 1911, the date of the execution of the will which Mrs. Smith contended was invalid.

In each will, except that of December, 1911, she said she was a beneficiary, the bequests to her ranging from $37,000 to $100,000. The fortune which her uncle left, Mrs. Smith said, was built upon a $1,000,000 fortune left by her grandfather to him with the provision that she should receive a large income during her lifetime.

Mrs. Smith contested the will on the ground that undue and fraudulent influence was brought to bear upon her uncle and that wills of earlier date had been suppressed and concealed. Elizabeth B. T. Martin, her aunt; Lucius T. Martin, her cousin, and Edwin Trowbridge Hall, one of her uncle's executors, were responsible, Mrs. Smith alleged, for the suppression of the wills.

During the thirteen years that she was a member of her uncle's household, Mrs. Smith asserted, she was treated by her uncle as though she was his own daughter, and she, in turn, treated him as she would a father, their relations becoming more and more cordial as time went on. Her uncle's attitude toward her showed more affection than his attitude toward his son, Lucius. In the will of December, 1911, however, Mr. Martin provided that practically his entire estate should be held in trust during their lifetime for his wife and son, and that the money was to go after their deaths to his grandchildren, George Desire Martin, known as John Martin, and William R. Martin and Elizabeth K. Martin.

Mrs. Smith also charged that her uncle was not of sound mind at the time the alleged last will was drawn up. He had been suffering from Bright's disease, she said, and in August, 1911 he became mentally deranged, often lapsing into incoherent talk and staring absently about him. He was 70 years old. In November, 1911, according to the contestant, Mr. Martin was found wandering about Madison Square Garden, without any apparent knowledge of where he was.

In the last illness of her uncle, Mrs. Smith declared, she was not permitted to call upon him until the middle of December, when she threatened to use violence if she was not admitted. She was then admitted to his bedchamber, but her uncle was unable to recognize her.

Mr. Martin, whose will was offered for probate on Feb. 15, 1912, owned many valuable pieces of New York realty, which include the Martin Building, the Marbridge Building, and the Hotel Martinique.

TELLS HOW TRINITY HELPS ITS TENANTS

Annual Report Says Conditions Are "Contrary to What Seems to be the Impression."

PROPERTY VALUE $15,812,400

Its Buildings Are Low, Not Crowded, and Are Guarded from Sanitary Dangers, It Is Asserted.

The Year Book and Register of the Parish of Trinity Church for 1913 was made public yesterday. It is the most comprehensive report of the kind rendered, giving in detail the history of the parish. One of the most interesting chapters is that devoted to "Trinity's dwelling homes," in which it is asserted that the conditions are quite "contrary to what sems to have been the popular impression." The Year Book contains 500 pages.

The parish statistics show that the number of communicants now enrolled in the parish is 8,890, a small increase over last year. During the year 9,382 public services were held in Trinity's nine churches. There were 446 confirmations, 458 baptisms, and 321 marriages.

The financial statement, says the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, the rector, again shows a deficit. The voluntary offerings were $127.920, as compared with $109,183 in 1912. The assessed valuation of all Trinity's property is now $15,812,400.

The report on Trinity's dwellings was prepared by Miss Emily W. Dinwiddie, formerly Secretary of the Tenement House Department of the Charity Organization Society, who was engaged by the vestry to give special assistance in matters pertaining to the social welfare of the tenants of the estate. Miss Dinwiddie first calls attention to the fact that rents have not been increased by the corporation, in spite of the increased demand for accommodations. The average, she says, is still very low, about $1 a week, or between $4 and $5 a month a room. One tenant renting the whole of a very small house pays only $12 a month, while at the other end of the scale a two-family house pays a monthly rental of $100. Concerning the control of sanitary and moral conditions she makes this comment:

> The corporation has kept the houses free from gambling places and immoral resorts and from rag shops, junk shops, and other business places likely to introduce sanitary dangers. One question that has been raised by some of the tenants is that of permits for home work; that is, in their case, for the finishing in tenement houses, of garments to be sold by factories or stores. The Child Labor Committee, the Consumers' League, and other agencies interested in the improvement of industrial conditions are actively opposed to home work in tenements.
> The corporation has not been willing to encourage home work in the living rooms of the tenants and has declined to apply to the Department of Labor for permits for such work. Two houses have been licensed technically for home work, but in reality merely to allow work by adults in tailor shops which happened to have doors leading to living rooms and thus under the law were required to have permits.

It is pointed out also that there is but one saloon on property owned by Trinity. The occupant of the saloon holds a forty-year lease which has not expired. Of the general conditions Miss Dinwiddie, after a thorough examination, says:

> The average number of families to a house in the dwellings now belonging to Trinity is 2.5. Of the total number of residence buildings 107, or 31 per cent., are occupied by one family each; 128, or 37 per cent., are two-family houses, and 111, or 32 per cent., have accommodations for as many as three families each. Contrary to what seems to have been the popular impression, the majority—over two-thirds, in fact—of the residence properties are thus private dwellings for one or two families, and less than one-third would come under the legal definition of tenements—that is, houses for three or more families.
> Only one house is occupied by a large number of tenants. This is a building, erected years ago as a model tenement, containing 21 apartments—82 rooms. The next largest number of families in a house is 13, and the next is 10.
>
> Not only is the number of families to a house small, but there is also in these old-fashioned dwellings, dating from an earlier generation, a freedom from overcrowding of ground areas, which is unusual in downtown New York. Many of the buildings cover less than half of the lots on which they stand. Large yards are the rule, and are commonly utilized by the tenants for the cultivation of flowers and in some cases of vegetables as well.
>
> There is abundant sunlight in the yards, as Trinity's houses are low compared with other buildings in New York. Three of the corporation's residence buildings are only two stories high, 284 are two stories and attic or three stories in height, 53 are four stories, and only 6 are five stories high; not one is the height of the six-story New York tenement.

Another fact brought out is that the number of ordinary dwelling houses now owned by Trinity has been reduced to 346, as compared with 366 last year. Twenty-seven houses were taken over by the city and one torn down. On the other hand, five were purchased from former owners holding ground leases, and another building sandwiched in between two of the corporation's buildings was also taken over.

There were accommodations for 850 families, or between 3,000 and 4,000 persons, in the houses owned by Trinity Corporation on Nov. 1, 1913.

Dr. Manning, in his introductory statement, said that it was the one desire of the clergy, the vestry, and of all concerned that the historic parish should render the highest and truest service possible to the church and to the community. Churches and parishes in all parts of the city, he added, are open to all and are in constant use every day. This is not a new thing, he asserts, and adds:

"It is, however, a gratifying fact that the ideal and aim of the parish seems now to be better understood than it once was. Concurrently with the strong feeling of affection and reverence for 'Old Trinity' which has always existed, there was an unhappy hostility to the Mother Parish, sometimes latent, often openly and bitterly expressed. This feeling seems now to have wholly vanished. May it never reappear."

The report contains in full detail concerning the work at all of Trinity's parishes and its charities.

KILLED ON TOP OF TRAIN.

While he was stealing a ride last night on the top of a freight train on the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, in the hope of reaching his home in Middletown, Conn., to-day in time to attend his sister's birthday party, Frank Smith, an elevator runner employed at 47 Leonard Street, was shocked to death by electricity when his body struck a charged wire under the railroad bridge at 156th Street.

Daniel Maloney, towerman near the Hunt's Point station at 163d Street, was the first to notice that something was wrong as the train passed beneath the bridge. He saw a flash of light and then, he said, it appeared to him that some object on top of one of the cars was on fire. He telephoned to the station to have the train stopped and with Engineer Eugene Cohn and Policeman Malloy made an investigation. They found the body on top of the car. The clothes were badly burned and the flesh was scorched.

Smith was identified by a letter found in his pocket signed by the Superintendent of the Leonard Street building and recommending him as a competent employe. There was another letter also from Smith's sister, Catherine Matilda Smith, in which she told of the elaborate plans which were being made for her party. It was the first she had ever given, she wrote, and she urged him to make every effort to be home in time for it.

Only a few cents in change was found in Smith's pockets by Coroner Healy.

TRY CHAUFFEUR FOR MURDER

His Car Killed Two as the Result, It Is Charged, of a Race.

Anthony Deiso, a chauffeur, who, on the evening of July 30, ran down and killed Emily V. Roode, an infant in a baby carriage, and Robert Scott, a middle-aged man, while he is alleged to have been racing another car down White Plains Avenue, was placed on trial for murder yesterday in the Criminal Term of the Supreme Court.

The car ran up on the sidewalk and continued there for a block. Fifteen witnesses testified before the Grand Jury as to the manner in which Deiso had been racing with another car before his own became unmanageable.

A jury was drawn at yesterday's session.

JAMES SELIGMAN, 90, CELEBRATES TO-DAY

MOVING PICTURES A FEATURE

Children Will Dance Tango and Maxixe on the Screen—Financier Takes Keen Interest.

James Seligman, senior member of the banking firm of J. & W. Seligman & Co., is 90 years old to-day. Still active enough to go to his office every morning, and alive with interest in many things of the past and the present, Mr. Seligman will receive the members of his family and a few of his closest friends this afternoon in the home of his daughter, Mrs. Benjamin Guggenheim, with whom he lives in the Savoy Apartments, 793 Fifth Avenue.

The birthday celebration will begin with a reception and conclude with a motion-picture entertainment in which thirty members of Mr. Seligman's family, including himself, will appear. One of the principal scenes of the pictures will be that of a pinochle game between Mr. Seligman and his one great-grandchild, Margery Seligsberg, 9 years old, granddaughter of De Witt J. Seligman, the aged banker's eldest son. The scene was made a few days ago in Mrs. Guggenheim's apartment.

Mr. Seligman's six living children and twelve grandchildren will be the chief actors in the other scenes. In some the younger grandchildren will appear dancing the modern dances—the one-step, the hesitation waltz, the maxixe, and the tango. Mr. Seligman often sees the young folks in these dances in his daughter's apartment, and he particularly asked to have the motion-picture dance numbers on his birthday. The children also will act short picture plays written for the occasion.

The films are all ready for exhibition. All except the one in which Mr. Seligman himself appears have been made at a motion-picture studio, where Mrs. Guggenheim inspected them yesterday. She pronounced them excellent.

The reception will include a march of the relatives and friends through Mrs. Guggenheim's apartment to Mr. Seligman, who will meet them in a front room and receive the individual congratulations and best wishes of every person in the line. There will be more than 100 children, grandchildren, nephews, nieces, sons-in-law, and daughters-in-law. Besides the Directors of the Temple Emanu-El, 521 Fifth Avenue, of which Mr. Seligman is President, the only outsiders present will be two or three of Mr. Seligman's closest friends.

Mr. Seligman was as eager as a child yesterday in anticipation of his "birthday party." Although almost completely deaf, he insisted upon asking Mrs. Guggenheim and her daughters what was being done and how the arrangements were progressing, and he received their answers with evident enthusiasm.

The nature of the "party" and Mr. Seligman's interest in it are strikingly illustrative of the activity and freshness of mind of the nonagenarian banker. His attention is not held by "things as they were" as much as by the Wall Street of to-day, modern books and ideas, automobiles, motion pictures, the latest dances, and all of the inventions and institutions that were unknown and undreamed of when Mr. Seligman came to the United States from Stadt Bayersdorf, Bavaria, his birth place, seventy-five years ago.

Mr. Seligman came to this country with $40 in his pocket, given him by his mother. He had learned the weaver's trade, but upon his arrival in America he went to Bethlehem, Penn., with his brother William and learned carpentry. One of the buildings of the Young Ladies' Seminary there which he helped to shingle is still standing.

In 1840 the two brothers in Bethlehem and their two other brothers in America, Joseph and Jesse, opened a dry goods store in Mobile, Ala. They were so successful that within a few years they had branches in Selma, Greensboro, Eutaw, and Clinton, Ala.

James Seligman returned to New York in 1844 as buyer for his brothers, and eight years later he started an importing business in this city. At the time the civil war began, the Seligman brothers had accumulated sufficient money to justify an investment medium, and they organized the present banking house of J. & W. Seligman & Co., which gradually from its foundation began to absorb all of James Seligman's interest. He is one of the oldest members of the New York Stock Exchange, which he joined May 3, 1869, and he goes to his office at 1 William Street every Monday morning.

TOOTHACHE ENDS IN DEATH.

R. H. Terhune Contracts Blood Poisoning in Removing Teeth.

Richard H. Terhune, a prominent manufacturer and a member of one of New Jersey's oldest families, died of blood poisoning and hemorrhages yesterday at his home, 30 Maple Street, Kearny, N. J., as the result of the extraction of two teeth ten days ago.

Mr. Terhune suffered from a severe toothache. He went to a dentist who pulled a tooth. After he returned home he was still in pain, and finding that two other teeth were loose tugged away with his fingers until he had dislodged them. He began to suffer great pain three days ago, and a physician found that blood poisoning had set in. There was no hope for his recovery.

Mr. Terhune was descended from the Sanfords, early settlers. Capt. Oscar Sanford purchased that part of the State now known as Hudson and Bergen Counties from the Indians for a small sum of money. Mr. Terhune was 65 years old and was connected with the Arlington Company of Arlington, N. J. He is survived by a widow and five children.

CHELSEA DEFEATS BOLTON WANDERERS

LONDON, April 13.—A big list of games was set for decision for the second Easter Bank holiday, and several important changes are made in the standing of the teams engaged in the soccer championship series in the first division. Chelsea entertained Botton Wanderers before a crowd of 60,000, who saw the home team win a fine game by 2—1, but Tottenham Hotspur went all to pieces in their away from home game with Middlesborough, losing by the score of 6—0. Manchester United scored a surprising win over West Bromwich Albion by 5—2 away from home, while Aston Villa, by beating Derby County by 3—2, regain their lost position as runners-up to Blackburn Rovers. The scores:

Manchester City, 0; Newcastle United, 1; Bradford City, 1; Liverpool, 0; Everton, 0; Oldham Athletic, 2; West Bromwich A., 2; Manchester United, 5; Chelsea, 2; Bolton Wanderers, 1; Aston Villa, 3; Derby County, 2; Middlesborough, 6; Tottenham Hotspur, 0.

Bradford caused a big surprise by losing their game with Notts Forest by 1—0 and lose the advantage they had over Woolwich Arsenal, who easily beat Stockport County by 4—0 and now, through Bradford's failure, have a splendid chance of promotion to the first division. Bury did well to defeat the difficult Hull City Club 1—0 away from home, while Leeds City won by the same score against Bristol City. The scores:

Blackpool 0, Notts County 0; Notts Forest 1, Bradford 0; Woolwich Arsenal 4; Stockport County 0; Grimsby Town 3, Glossop 0; Leeds City 1, Bristol City 0; Clapton Orient 2, Birmingham 2; Leicester Fosse 2; Lincoln City 0; Wolverhampton W. 2, Huddersfield 0; Hull City 0, Bury 1; Barnsley 1, Fulham 0.

Crystal Palace dropped a point to-day by only drawing their home game with Brighton and Hove, and allowed Swindon Town, who beat Merthyr Town by 3 to 0, to get a point ahead at the top of the Southern League. The improved Cardiff City Club put up a great fight with West Ham United, which ended in a draw. All the home teams picked up points, four winning outright, while the remaining five halved the games. The scores:

West Ham United, 1; Cardiff City, 1; Bristol Rovers, 2; Queen's Park Rangers, 1; Reading, 0; Portsmouth, 0; Southampton, 1; Milwall, 0; Exeter City, 0; Plymouth Argyle, 0; Norwich City, 2; Gillingham, 0; Crystal Palace, 0; Brighton & Hove, 0; Southend United, 1; Coventry City, 1; Swindon Town, 3; Merthyr Town, 0.

HARVARD SOCCER VICTORY.

Crimson Defeats Haverford, 2 to 1, in Intercollegiate Series.

Special to The New York Times.

HAVERFORD, Penn., April 13.—In ideal soccer weather and with a big crowd looking on, Haverford completed her intercollegiate schedule for the season with the game against the champion Harvard team. The Crimson made amends for the defeat at the hands of Pennsylvania on Saturday, and took today's game by the score of 2 goals to 1. Haverford, with two defeats, is now out of the race for the trophy, although tied temporarily for the lead with Pennsylvania—unless her rivals lose their remaining games. Pennsylvania, not having lost a game outright, is now favorite for championship honors, with Harvard a close second. The line-up and summary:

RINK'S OPENING DELAYED.

No Application eYt Made by Gibson for His New Club.

What was expected to be the "big" news at yesterday's meeting of the State Athletic Commission, namely, the application by "Billy" Gibson for a license for the Stadium A. C., which is to hold boxing exhibitions at the St. Nicholas Rink, failed to materialize. No positive reason was announced, but it is conjectured that Gibson is probably withholding his application until the complaint of the bonding company which has a claim of $861.50 against the previous lessees of the rink has been settled.

The bonding company was represented by New York attorneys at last week's meeting, and at that time it was arranged that the matter would come up for final action and money settlement at yesterday's meeting. However, the bonding company representatives failed to appear and the case went over until next Tuesday.

It has been stated that Gibson prefers to open the new club with all affairs and details as they should be, so, under the circumstances, it is not likely that the Stadium A. C. will open as previously announced, on April 20, to be followed a few days later with a big show.

The commission granted a lincense to the Union Settlement Athletic Club of the east side. In granting the license the commission complimented the east siders for their application, and expressed the hope that other organizations of the kind would emulate the example of the Union Settlement boys by applying for licenses.

It was announced that the Collar City A. C., of Troy had settled a $25 claim of "Johnny" Daly, which they acknowledged after the Commission had ordered them to pay. "Frankie" Madden appeared before the commission with a two-fold complaint. First, was a claim for $100 which amount he had handed the Atlantic A. C., prior to a recent bout to guarantee weight and appearance in the ring. The club had neglected to return the money to Madden and now that he has, with the Commission's assistance, refreshed the Atlantic folks in the matter, the latter will return the deposit. Second, Madden informed the commission that he had not entered the Navy as had been erroneously published. His explanation was that it must be someone of the same name who has become a "jolly tar."

JEFF SMITH WINS EASILY.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., April 13.—Jeff Smith, the American pugilist, easily outpointed Pat Bradley of Australia at the Stadium to-day. Bradley was so badly punished that the police stopped the bout in the sixteenth round.

K. O. Brown and Callahan to Box.

The matchmaker of Brooklyn's newest boxing club, the Broadway Sporting Club, has arranged three ten-round bouts for the club's show to-night. In the main event Knockout Brown of New York will be seen in a return engagement with Patsy Callahan, the clever Brooklyn lightweight. In the previous meeting of the two opinions as to the winner differed, and in order that a more definite decision might be reached, and as both boys were anxious for a return, the contest was arranged as the star attraction. Frankie Burns of Jersey City will try conclusions with Dutch Brandt of Flatbush, taking the place of Kid Williams of Baltimore, who was originally matched, but withdrew. The opening contest will bring together Battling Lahn of Brooklyn and Gene Gannon of Milwaukee.

PRINCETON NINE DRUBBED.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 13.—Princeton dropped the second game of the series to Georgetown to-day. With Tyson pitching in good form and Georgetown hitting Deyo hard and timely, there was no chance for Princeton to win. Fury's home run drive over Cook's head was the feature of a slow game. The Tigers were noticeably weak in hitting, especially with men on bases. Princeton ended her southern trip to-day returning to Princeton at midnight. The score:

Seton Hall's Games This Week.

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J., April 13.—The Seton Hall College baseball nine is to play three of its hardest games of the season this week when it opposes the Holy Cross College team of Worcester, Mass., to-morrow afternoon on the Jersey City International League grounds, the Jersey City Internationals on the same grounds Thursday afternoon, and the Manhattan College team on Setonia Field Saturday afternoon. The student body is most interested in the game with Holy Cross, the quarter of a century baseball rival of Setonia. This is usually the most spirited game on the local collegians' schedule. Kerrigan and Ralston, the leading moundsmen for the South Orangeites, are getting in trim for the contest, and a tooth-and-nail game is predicted.

NEW LINKS AT VAN CORTLANDT ASSURED

Work to Start Soon on the Eighteen-Hole Public Golf Course.

Work will be started at once in building a new eighteen-hole golf course on the plateau above the present links in Van Cortlandt Park. Tentative plans have been approved, and a professional will be consulted for expert advice. Announcement to this effect was made yesterday through the golfers' committee.

A. C. Johnson, Jr., is spending his Easter vacation in going over the course with surveyors, and he will be in consultation with various officials several times this week. Nine of the holes were laid out several years ago and partially completed, and these holes will be finished at once. Work on the other holes will be started immediately afterward, so that the whole circuit will be ready by next Fall.

Thomas W. Whittle, Park Commissioner, has put in force the permit system, with a fee of $1, as suggested by the golfers' committee, and it will take effect with the formal opening of the present Van Cortlandt course on May 1. Enlarged locker facilities and piping to keep the greens at Pelham supplied with water in dry weather are greatly needed and more than likely will be provided.

Special Train for British Golf.

For the accommodation principally of Americans who wish to attend the British amateur golf championship which is to be held at Sandwich, England, on May 19, 20, 21, and 22, A. G. Spalding & Co. have engaged a first-class Pullman special train, which will run to Sandwich from London each day of the tournament. All the hotels at Sandwich have been booked for the tournament [illegible] least two months, so that it will be necessary for people who have not already secured rooms to make the trip back and forth from London each day.

Smith and Carpentier Matched.

Gunboat Smith and Georges Carpentier, champion pugilist of France, have been matched for a bout in England [illegible] is the promoter of the bout and has agreed to offer a purse of $25,000 [illegible] ion, and other details are to be arranged later. Jim Buckley, manager for Smith, has cabled his acceptance of the match.

OUIMET CLOSE TO FORM.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LODON, April 13.—Francis Ouimet for the first time since his arrival here struck his real form on the Weston Super Mare links this afternoon. He had one or two bad holes, but did the eleventh, 330 yards; the sixteenth, 266 yards; seventeenth, 235 yards, and eighteenth, 315 yards, in three strokes apiece, taking 34 for the last nine houes and 72 for the round. He placed iron and mashie shots close to the holes, not leaving himself a single long putt.

Boxing at the Olympic A. C.

Irving Margolis, ex amateur champion featherweight, and "Jimmy" Duffy made a draw of their ten-round bout last night at the Olympic Athletic Club. Margolis showed skill and was cool at all stages, but in Duffy he met a strong, willing boy, who knew the game from all angles. Their exhibition was clean and lively, with just sufficient hard hitting to make it interesting.

John Lester Johnson bested "Willie" Langford in ten rounds, during which Johnson did most of the work and had by far the lead in the hitting. Johnson was inches taller and had much advantage in reach. The go was not particularly interesting, as clinching and supposed foot work took up more than two minutes of each round. The one best punch landed by Langford was a right swing to the face just as the bell closed the tenth round. Aside from the name, "Willie" bore little resemblance to the Boston Tar Baby.

In the ten-round go between "Young" Munday and "Danny" Foy, a new arrival from Ireland, there was plenty of action from start to finish. Foy was not overburdened with skill, while Munday was fairly clever. However, the Irish lad was game, and while Munday had the better of the go he failed to gain much margin because of his lack of hard hitting.

Willard Knocks Out Dan Daly.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 13.—Jess Willard of Kansas knocked out Dan Daly of Newcastle, Penn., in the ninth round of what was scheduled for a ten-round bout here to-night. With the exception of one round, Willard showed to better advantage throughout. A smashing right uppercut after one minute of fighting in the ninth round put Daly down for the count. Willard weighed 236 pounds and Daly 207.

Special to The New York Times.

BRISTOL, R. I., April 13.—A fire in a joiner's shop at the works off the Herreshoff Manufacturing Company this afternoon placed the America's Cup sloop Resolute in great peril, but she escaped damage. Although the cup boat is of steel and bronze, and not, therefore, inflammable, the building in which she is being finished is of wood, which, if destroyed by fire, would warp and destroy the lines of the craft beyond its original shape and place the Vanderbilt syndicate in a peculiar predicament.

The Fire Department of the Herreshoff works did not call upon the city department, but handled the blaze itself, which was on the roof of the joiner's shop, within twenty feet of the north shop, where the cup yacht Resolute is being built. A gangway only of that width separates the two wooden buildings.

It was 4 o'clock when several of the employes saw the flames being swept by a northerly wind directly toward the north shop, where the defending craft stands. The fire organization of the shops responded with apparatus and forced several streams of water upon the burning roof of the two-story structure and succeeded in less than twenty minutes in putting out the fire. Nat Herreshoff, the designer, was a busy man during the exicting half hour, directing the fight upon the blaze. It was said this afternoon that Resolute will be put in the water Saturday, April 25, at 5:30 o'clok P. M.

AMHERST, Mass., April 13.—Spring football practice will begin to-morrow at Amherst College and will consist largely of kicking, forward passing, and the developing of formation work under the direction of Capt. W. H. Warren, Prof. Nelligan, the physical director, and the graduating 'Varsity men. Coach Riley, who is at present in Michigan, will keep in touch with the squads.

MAY CLOSE RACE TRACK.

TULSA, Okla., April 13.—No attempt was made to-day to interfere with the operations of bookmakers at the race meeting of the Tulsa Jockey Club, which opened here this afternoon.

Frank M. Canton, Adjutant General, is in Tulsa with instructions from Gov. Lee Cruce, it is said, to call out the militia if necessary to prevent violations of the State anti-betting laws.

Neither the Adjutant General nor Assistant Attorney General Smith, who also is in Tulsa, would make any statement to-night. An officer of a local militia company stated, however, that injunction proceedings may be brought to-morrow seeking to have the track closed.

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 13.—If betting is permitted at the Tulsa race track to-morrow Gov. Lee Cruce to-night said he would direct Frank M. Canton, Adjutant General, to order out a company of militia to assist him in enforcing the State's anti-gambling laws Wednesday.

New World's Bowling Record.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 13.—The Genesee team of Rochester to-night established a new world's mark for five-men teams at the National Bowling Association tournament by rolling an aggregate of 3,035, thirty-eight pins over the former record, made by the Grand Centrals, Rochester, at Paterson, two years ago. Capt. Sutton was high man of the quintet with 642, an average of 214. The New Yorkers did not put up an especially brilliant individual game, but each member played consistently.

Senators May Get German Measles.

BOSTON, April 13.—Discovery that one of the newspaper correspondents accompanying the Washington American baseball team was suffering from the German measles caused Manager Clark Griffith considerable worry to-night. Many of his players have been exposed. The team opens the season with the Red Sox here to-morrow.

Mr. E. A. Stattler,
Sales Manager, Overman Tire Company,
250 West 54th Street, New York City.

Dear Sir:—

Referring to yours of February 24th. I have two Overman Pneumatic Tires on the rear wheels of my 60 horse-power Alco limousine car. The car weighs something over 5,000 pounds and the tires have made 4,000 miles, without punctures or any tire troubles whatsoever. Their present condition is very good. I do not believe the non-skidding qualities have deteriorated at all. I have not used a chain on these tires this Winter, with the exception of the last week, on account of the snow in the country.

Yours truly,

OVERMAN
Cushion-Tread Pneumatic
TIRES

The Overman Cushion-Tread Pneumatic Tire is a new tire. It is constructed on a new principle, a principle which the severest tests have shown to be scientific in theory and sound in practice.

In offering this tire to the Public, our claims for it are based not on what we believe the tire will do, but upon what it actually has done and is doing in daily use on the cars of hundreds of private owners.

DURABILITY—We guarantee the Overman Tire for 5,000 miles. If any Overman Tire fails to give that mileage, we will make good the difference to the purchaser. 5,000 miles is what we guarantee, but the Tire itself is better than our guarantee, and with any kind of proper care will give greater mileage.

RELIABILITY—While not absolutely puncture-proof, punctures with the Overman Tires are very rare occurrences, so rare indeed that this fundamental and disagreeable weakness of all pneumatic tires has been reduced to a minimum. In fact, it has been almost eliminated. Blow-outs and rim-cuts are practically unknown.

And It Will Stay Good —that Light Lozier Four

CAN YOU BE CERTAIN the same will be true of that cheap Six you are being importuned to buy?

THIS SEASON more than ever before, it behooves the buyer of an automobile "around $2000" to consider well the enduring qualities of the various cars that are offered him.

FOR THE TYPE OF CAR that is cheap only in first cost and good only while new, has now invaded this field, this price-class—under the guise of "sixes."

THERE'S A CLASS OF MAKERS who, seeking quick fortune rather than lasting fame, have always been found following—at a distance—in the wake of makers of the best class of cars, and by making cheap imitations of the real featuring as "talking points" the more prominent points of the high priced cars—have thrived for a time—and continued to thrive from season to season only by changing design every year.

JUST NOW THESE ARE FEATURING "sixes," "lightness" and "cheapness"—three factors any one of which in itself is desirable—but the combination of which is incompatible. Lightness and cheapness may go together; Lightness and Six will agree fairly well; but sixes and cheapness—that combination can only result in disappointment and grief.

AND CAN ANYTHING BE more disappointing, disheartening, than to pay a goodly sum for a motor car, feeling you are entitled to one that will be good in performance and appearance not only while new, but for some years at least—and then find after only a few months and a few thousand miles that it's finish is shoddy and its mechanism only an imitation.

NEW YORK'S THREE TEAMS ALL STRONGER

GIANTS DEPEND ON "VETS"

Defection of Shafer May Leave a Weak Spot at Third Base—Brooklyn Well Balanced and Strong.

Granted favorable weather conditions the sixteen clubs composing the National and American Leagues will open the 1914 baseball season this afternoon. The familiar slogan "Play ball" will ring out around the circuit and another six months of America's national sport inaugurated. With hardly a break the clubs will struggle for supremacy in the two leagues and the climax will come with the playing of the world's series in October between the pennant-winning clubs of the two organizations.

The present season will mark the thirty-ninth year of play in the National League and the fourteenth in the American League. National League history dates back to the Spring of 1876 and during the ensuing years thirty-eight pennants have been won by eight clubs. Chicago leads with ten championships to its credit; Boston is second with eight, and New York third with seven. Pittsburgh accounted for four, Brooklyn three, Baltimore three, Providence two, and Detroit one. Since the opening year of the American League play in 1900 fourteen championships have been won, of which the Philadelphia Club secured five, Boston three, Chicago three, and Detroit three.

During the past Winter many changes have occurred in the ranks of the major leagues. The Federal League secured from the older organizations a number of veterans and promising recruit players in its efforts to establish itself as a contender for baseball patronage. Several sensational trades and the appointment of new managers also caused decided changes in the combinations of various clubs. The National League was particularly active in this respect, the changes beginning with the selection of a new President in the person of John K. Tener and extending down through the ranks of owners, managers, and players. Thus on the eve of another season the various clubs face the pennant campaigns in the following condition:

New York, the National League pennant winners of last season present virtually the same line-up as a year ago. With the exception of Herzog, now managing Cincinnati; Shafer, who refused to return to the game, and the acquisition of Bescher for the outfield, the Giants will enter the 1914 race with the identical line-up that faced the Athletics in the world's series last Autumn. Manager McGraw is inclined to the belief that he can fill the gap at third satisfactorily, despite Shafer's defection. If such proves to be the case, the New York Club will be as strong, if not stronger, than was the case twelve months ago.

In Mathewson, Demaree, Marquard, Tesreau, and Fromme the Giants have a string of clever, experienced twirlers, with several promising recruits in reserve. To hold up the younger members of the staff will be the work marked out for Catchers Meyers and McLean. When either of this pair is combined with Mathewson, Marquard, or Tesreau, there is a formidable battery formed, which has a decided advantage over the average National League battery.

Backing up this battery material is an infield and outfield which is effective, and at times brilliant. At present the left side of the diamond is weaker than the right, due to the loss of Herzog at third. Neither Snodgrass nor Stock has shown the ability to play up to the standard set by Herzog or Shafer. A weak spot at third will have a tendency to slow up Fletcher, Doyle, and Merkle, and McGraw will have to develop a satisfactory player to round out the combination.

The outfield, on the other hand, has been strengthened by the acquisition of Bescher from Cincinnati. With Burns and Murray flanking the former Redland star, the Giants are well equipped in this department. Several fast substitutes are also available, including Thorpe, and McGraw has no reason to worry about any position on the team if he can solve the third-base problem.

The Brooklyn Club starts the season with brighter prospects than has been the case for several years. With Wilbert Robinson as manager, the team will have the benefit of a seasoned and capable baseball general in charge and material for a fast, clever playing combination. If Robinson can spur the players to sustained effort the team should prove a formidable opponent for every club in the National League circuit.

The team is particularly strong in battery material and on the infield. In Rucker, Reulbach, Ragan, Wagner, Brown, and Aitchison the Brooklyn Club has six twirlers who should work successfully all season, with the possibility of one of several others earning a place among the regulars. Behind the plate the Superbas are also well fortified, with McCarty, Fischer, Miller, and Erwin, all dependable catchers.

The infield combination, consisting of Daubert, Cutshaw, Egan, and Smith, with Hummel and Elberfeld in reserve, presents a line-up strong in both offensive and defensive play. While Egan is not quite the calibre of Tinker, the former Cincinnati player has strengthened the infield, and Brooklyn presents a strong barrier around the diamond on the eve of pennant play. The outfield is not so impressive, but in Dalton, Stengel, and Wheat the Superbas have excellent players, and Manager Robinson will undoubtedly weld together a satisfactory combination before the present season closes.

Shot almost to pieces in the raids of the Federal League, the Philadelphia National League team has reformed its lines and will make a determined effort to show well in the pennant race in the senior organization. Having lost Knabe and Doolan, two important infield men: Brennan and Seaton, dependable pitchers, the Phillies enter the pennant race much below last year's strength, when they gave the New York Giants a battle for first place.

Manager Dooin, through a fortunate trade last season, has Bobby Byrne, a seasoned player, to fill Knabe's place, and is using Ireland and Murphy, promising youngsters, at shortstop. He has strong hopes that the club will not suffer much in these two positions. The pitching problem, however, is more difficult. Alexander and Chalmers, veterans, will be depended on for the heaviest work. There is a long string of younger pitchers to draw upon. They are Mayer, Marshall, Oeschger, who showed good form against the Athletics in one of the Spring games: Jacobs, Mattison, and Tincup, the Indian.

The Cubs will start the season with a new manager, an infield new in its combination, though made up of experienced men, and a pitching staff of veterans strong enough to offset in a measure what is believed to be a lack of hitting power. The make-up of the inner line of defense finds only Zimmerman in a position new to him, but the rest of the quartet have had great schooling in taking care of the bases to which Manager O'Day has assigned them, while a number of first-class utility men are ready to help in the infield. With Humphreys, Vaughan, Cheney, and Lavender ready to take regular turns on the slab, and Pierce, Stack, Charles Smith, Koestner, and Zabel forming a reserve squad of ability, the club is well fortified with pitchers. The development of Hargrove as a catcher of merit makes the catching department look strong, with Archer and Bresnahan in shape now to do the heavy work. On the theory that a "clean-up" hitter is needed to help the rear guard manufacture runs, O'Day has practically decided to drop Saier, who led the league in triples last year, to seventh place in the batting order. The addition of Jimmy Johnstone, the Pacific Coast League's champion batter last year, is expected to strengthen the Cubs' scoring ability.

The Pittsburgh National League team which starts the 1914 season is different in many respects from the team which started out in 1913 with such bright prospects. There are new faces in the infield, in the outfield, in the pitcher's box, and behind the plate. Drafts, recalls, trades and purchases have added much new material to the Pirate machine. The trade with St. Louis, by which the Pirates obtained infielders Konetchy and Mowrey and Pitcher Harmon, has added strength, in the opinion of the management. Hendrix and Simon, a good battery, were the Pirate loss in the Federal invasion. New men are exepcted to fill their places.

The Pirate infield will be probably the strongest part of the 1914 machine. With Konetchy, Viox, and Mowrey guarding the bags and the veteran Wagner at short, the infield will be as strong on the defense as it will be powerful on the offense. Viox, at second, has improved over last year's form, when he made a sensation by his good work. The veteran Gibson and Coleman and Brenegan, recruits, will do the catching.

In the outfield Carey is the only player sure of a place. Mitchell has shown good form in Spring practice, and may secure a position. The third place lies between Jim and Joe Kelley, with Jim Kelley having the better chance. Mensor and Hyatt will be the substitutes.

The pitching staff is the greatest problem. McQuillan, Adams, O'Toole, and Harmon will be regulars. Kantelhner and Cooper, young left-handers, will have to show big league calibre. Much is expected of Kantelhner. Delhi and Conzelman have had experience and are expected to show improvement. Duffy and Mamaux are undeveloped as yet.

The Boston Nationals aspire to first division honors this year. With a team that has been practically made over since he took charge last season, Manager Stallings predicts that Boston will finish at least fourth, and possibly third. The Braves closed last season's race in fifth place.

The accession of Johnny Evers, crack second baseman and manager of the 1913 Chicago Cubs, and the resultant loss of Bill Sweeney, was probably the most notable change in the team. Much is expected by local fans from the combination mid-infield play of Evers and young Maranville, the diminutive shortstop of last year. Recruits will cover the other infield positions, Schmidt, at first, replacing Hap Meyers, and Deal, at third, filling a position uncertainly occupied for several years. Both are from the International League.

Boston's only serious loss to Federal League incursions was in battery material. Pariden's defection left Whaling, a player of one season's major league experience, as first string catcher, with Gowdy, who returns again to the big leagues, as second choice. Jack Quinn was taken from the pitching staff. But there remain pitchers of worth in Tyler, Perdue, Rudolph, and Hess, and of promise in Cocreham, Meikel, Crutchers, and Beck.

Baseball fans will note many changes in the personnel of the Cincinnati National League team this season. First and probably foremost, the team will have a new leader in the person of Charles Herzog, formerly of the New York Giants, who succeeds Joe Tinker, now manager of the Chicago Federal League Club. There are also changes in both the outfield and infield and a large squad of recruits for the pitchers' positions.

In the outfield Herb Moran will fill the vacancy created by the trade of Bob Bescher to the New York Nationals. Manager Herzog will play shortstop, while another change in the infield will be the appearance of Niehoff at third base in place of Johnny Dodge. Niehoff was obtained by draft from the Louisville American Association Club last Fall. Tom Clarke will undoubtedly be the first string catcher.

Earl Yingling, one of the players involved in the trade with Brooklyn, which was indirectly the cause of Tinker leaving the National League, is depended upon to be one of the team's mainstays in the box. He will be assisted by Rube Benton, Johnson, the Indian, and Jack Rowan, while Herzog will choose several from his squad of pitching recruits, all of whom, he says, look good.

The strength of the St. Louis Club, which finished last in the National League race of 1913, is an uncertain quantity on the eve of the new season. Manager Huggins has considerable new material secured in the trade with Pittsburgh and from other sources, but no definite idea of the playing ability of the new combination will be available until the team has faced several rival clubs during the early days of the pennant play.

NEW FACES ON YANKEES.

Pitching Staff and Infield Strengthened—Outfield Still Uncertain.

The New York American League Club, under the leadership of Frank Chance, makes its 1914 début with a virtually new line-up. With the exception of Roy Hartzell, second base; Ed Sweeney, catcher, and several pitchers, the personnel consist of players who joined the club late last season or this Spring. Under the circumstances, any definite forecast of the playing ability of the team as a whole is out of the question. According to Chance, Spring training conditions at Houston, Texas, were far more satisfactory than was the case in Bermuda last year. This statement is borne out by the work of the team since its return to New Y

Both collectively and individually the players show better physical condition and team-work than at the beginning of the 1913 season. Considered in the light of the exhibition games played just previous to the opening of the pennant race, the Yankees are fully 50 per cent. stronger than twelve months ago. Chance appears to have a fairly satisfactory and consistent pitching staff, with King Cole, Warhop, Caldwell, Hale, and Keating as the most promising twirlers at this time. Behind the bat Sweeney and Gossett will be the mainstays, and Sweeney has improved remarkably in every department of defensive play.

The infield, consisting at present of Williams, Hartzell or Boone, Peckinpaugh, and Maisel, is far superior to that of last year. Williams, under Chance's coaching, has developed into a fast, clever first baseman. Peckinpaugh at short and Maisel at third promise to be an exceptional pair in the field and on the bases. Considerable experimenting is likely before the final outfield combination is selected, but in Walsh, Gilhooley, Cooke, and Channell the club has four outfielders of more than average ability.

Taken as a whole, the team appears to be a fast fielding and base running combination, which has already begun to show signs of using up-to-date baseball tactics. Unless Hartzell can play up to the speed of Peckinpaugh and Maisel, however, second base may prove a weak link in the chain.

Another seasoned catcher to relieve Sweeney and Gossett in case of accidents is also essential. Offensively, the squad does not appear at this time to be overstrong in batting, but Chance believes that this department of the game will improve with more practice and play.

The Philadelphia Americans will enter the campaign standing pat on the team that won the championship of the world for the Quaker City in 1913. Like John McGraw in the National League, Connie Mack probably has fewer troubles regarding the personnel of his team than any other manager in the American League. As is his rule, the silent leader of the Athletics is not predicting that his champions will again finish in front this year, but the supporters of the club expect to see, barring accidents, the team in another world's series in October.

This year Bender and Plank will again be the mainstays of the pitching corps. Mack is not relying on Coombs, who is still in the convalescent stage from his long illness, but is depending much upon Bush, Shawkey, and Brown.

With but one veteran pitcher who can be relied upon and practically the same line-up, man for man, that put the team in second place last year, the prospects of the Washington American League ball club of equaling that performance this year are not particularly bright. The team lacks batting ability, and Manager Griffith has failed in his efforts to strengthen this department. Unless he can pick up one or two good stickers during the season or the veterans show unexpected improvement, his team is going to be weak. Griffith himself admits it. Gandil, the first baseman, is Washington's best sticker, and as he batted better than .300 last year much is expected of him.

The Cleveland Americans, finishing third in last year's league race, hope to do as well in 1914, but the team's future is problematical.

Pitcher Fred Falkenburg, star right-hander last year, has jumped to the Federal League. One of three youngsters, Hagerman, from the Pacific Coast League; Collamore, from the American Association, and Bowman, from the Central League, must be developed to take his place. Pitchers Fred Blanding and George Kahler, also right-handers, jumped to the Federals and then back to Cleveland. The courts may enjoin them from playing with Cleveland.

If Blanding and Kahler are lost to the Federals, and none of the youngsters show big league class, Manager Birmingham will have a weak pitching staff. In addition to the youngsters named above he will have Cullop and James, experiments last year, to help out Gregg, Mitchell, and Steen. Gregg and Mitchell are star left-handers, and Steen is a good right-hander, but it is generally agreed that they cannot pilot the team to a high position without aid. Outside of the box the team is practically the same as last year. Shortstop Chapman, because of a broken leg, will not be able to play before June, but Infielder Olson will fill his place acceptably.

With three star players recovering from illness, the Boston Red Sox will be handicapped during the opening stages of the pennant race. Tris Speaker has been suffering from a cold since his return from the world tour. He will probably be able to start the season, however. Recovering from an operation for appendicitis, Joe Wood will not be able to pitch until after May 1. Capt. Wagner, the shortstop, has been unable to take part in Spring practice because of rheumatism, and will not get into the game for two or three weeks.

Notwithstanding these setbacks in development, Manager Carrigan expects the Red Sox to finish well within the first division. With the convalescents in playing form the team will be substantially that which won the world's championship two years ago, and will have reserve strength in the addition of substitutes of high rank.

If the White Sox have added a bit of batting power and a little more speed on the base lines they are likely to prove factors in the race. Even without a return to old-time form by Ed Walsh, the pitching staff is one reckoned on to damage batting averages, with Russell, Scott, Cicotte, Benz, Lathrop, and Roth in shape. Ray Schalk is expected to do most of the catching for Manager Callahan, as he did last year, but the back stop department has been materially strengthened, it is believed, by the addition of Daly, whose good hitting is an additional factor that makes him valuable.

For the first time in four years the Detroit Tigers will open the American League playing season without big George Mullin on the pitching mound. Mullin, dropped from the major leagues of organized baseball last season, is now with the Federals, and John Dubuc, the ranking member of the pitching staff is expected to send the first ball flashing across the plate in the first game of the 1914 season.

The Spring training trip furnished an unusual problem for Jennings to decide. During the last five years weeding out poor material was comparatively an easy task for the manager. The squad this season, on paper at least, proved to be of unusual calibre. Only three men have been sent to the minors. Youngsters—and they include players who starred in Class AA leagues—are fighting hard for positions which veterans have not clinched. Recently Jennings was quoted as saying he would not attempt to decide upon his regular line-up until at least a half dozen of his recruits were subjected to major league opposition.

The St. Louis Americans this year will be a right-hand club, twenty-one of the Browns swinging from the right side and eight from the left. Four of the batters can hit from either side of the plate. Of the pitchers, but two—Weilman and Leverenz—are southpaws, the other seven twirling with right arms. Two of the right handers are veterans of last season—Baumgardner and Mitchell—while the new men are James, (Portland, Pacific Coast League;) Taylor, (Austin, Texas League;) Fred Witte, (Danville, Ill.;) Edward Manning, (Montgomery, Southern League;) and Harry Hock, (Binghamton, New York State League.)

Manager Rickey is well fortified at first base, Jack Leary, secured from the Utica Club, (New York State League,) and Ivan Howard, from the Los Angeles Club, (Pacific Coast League,) showing well. Leary has the better chance of getting the regular assignment.

Pratt and Wares, the latter secured from Montgomery (Southern) last season, will work at the second sack, with the veteran Wallace at shortstop, to alternate with Bisland, who came to the Browns at the end of last season from the Southern League. Jimmy Austin, Captain, will hold down the far corner of the infield.

Of the new outfielders, Messinger (Birmingham, Southern League) looks best. Last year he led his league in base stealing. Bill Rumler in the outfield also looks good. He came to the local club from the Central Association by draft.

On the catching staff, with the veterans Agnew and Grossin are Joe Jenkins (Keokuk, Central Association) and Jack Enzenroth, a free agent.

Dee Walsh, who tried out at shortstop last year, will try this year with John Lavan, who was secured from the Philadelphia Americans, to whom he was traded by the local club at the close of last season. Lavan will not report until June, when he finishes his studies at Michigan University.

YANKEES AT POLO GROUNDS.

Athletics Will Tackle Chance's Team in Opening Game of Season.

The budding baseball season will bloom in New York to-day at the Polo Grounds, where the Yankees will play the world's champion Athletics, and at Ebbets Field, where Brooklyn will tackle the Boston Braves. The weather promises to be fair and warm, (perhaps,) and all four managers, when interviewed last night, admitted that they would win.

There will be a band concert at the Polo Grounds by Prince's Band, beginning at 2 o'clock, and the gates will open at 1 o'clock. The game will begin at 3:30. Lieut. Gov. Robert Wagner will throw out the first ball.

The Athletics will present the same line-up as when they trooped off the same field last Fall after beating the Giants for the title of this whole big footstool. Connie Mack will probably call on either Chief Bender or Joe Bush to pitch the opening clash. Both seem to be quite up to the job. The famous infield of McInnes, Collins, Baker, and Barry is in working order, and Oldring, Strunk, and Eddie Murphy will patrol the gardens. Li Hung Schang will catch.

Manager Chance of the Yankees will pick Caldwell, Keating, or McHale to pitch. The citizen who displays the most "stuff" on the ball in the warming-up pan will get the assignment. Williams, Hartzell, Maisel, and Peckinpaugh will cover the infield, with Walsh, Holden, and Cook in the outfield. Ed Sweeney will be behind the bat.

TENER TO PITCH AGAIN.

Governor of Pennsylvania to Throw Out Ball in Brooklyn To-day.

The opening of the National League season in Brooklyn between the Dodgers and the Braves is going to be embellished with the presence of President John K. Tener of the National League. Gov. Tener will toss out the first ball, and, having been a pitcher himself once, he will do it right.

Before going to the game, Mr. Ebbets is going to take the Governor around Brooklyn in an automobile and show him the churches and vacant lots. The rubberneck trip will start early, because there is plenty to see, but the fans of Brooklyn hope that the car won't develop any trouble and get stalled out in the wilderness and delay the game.

The game in Brooklyn will begin at 3:30. Shannon's Twenty-third Regiment Band will play a concert, and a new march to Wilbert Robinson, called "Our New Manager," will be tackled for the first time. A new American flag will be unfurled in centre field, and Mr. Ebbets will wear a new Easter cravat. The price and quantity of peanuts will be as usual.

Manager Robinson will pick either Ruelbach or Pat Ragan to do the pitching. Brooklyn would rather see its popular idol, Nap Rucker, in the first game, but he is ill with tonsilitis. George Stallings will probably use Hub Purdue, the Gallatin Squash, for mound duty. Johnny Evers will make his début in a Boston regalia, and it is expected that John and young Rabbit Maranville will display some sensational feats.

The Giants will open the season in Philadelphia.

Athletics Take "Rubber" Game.

PHILADELPHIA, April 13.—The Philadelphia Americans captured the Spring series from the local National League team at Shibe Park, when the world's champions won to-day's game in ten innings by the score of 2 to 1. It was a pitchers' battle between Jacobs, Oeschger, Houck, and Pennock. In the tenth inning Pennock doubled and went to third on a wild pitch by Oeschger. Eddie Murphy then hit to Lobert, who made a low throw to the plate, and Pennock scored the winning run. Score:

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 13.—Timely hitting combined with errors by the Providence Internationals, gave the Washington Americans to-day's game by a score of 4 to 1. The weather was cold, and made the fielding slow. Manager Donovan tried out most of his recruits. The home team's only run was forced in by Pitcher Shaw, who passed Burns in the eighth inning with the bases full. The score by innings:

TWO $25,000 SUITS AIMED AT FEDERALS

Boston and Philadelphia Clubs Sue for Loss of Players to Rival League.

In a suit for $25,000 which was brought before the United States District Court in Baltimore yesterday by James E. Gaffney of the Boston National League Baseball Club against the Baltimore Federals for alleged conspiracy, Mr. Gaffney declares that President James A. Gilmore not only broke his promise with him, but also persuaded Jack Quinn to jump the Boston Club to Baltimore, when he knew that Quinn had accepted terms with Gaffney's club. The Boston Club owner names as defendants in the suit President James A. Gilmore of the Federal League, Edward Hanlon, a Director of the Baltimore Club; Otto Knabe, manager of the Baltimore Club, and Pitcher Jack Quinn, whose right name is John Picus.

One interesting incident of the case concerns a meeting held at the Waldorf-Astoria during the last meeting of the National League here. It was attended by Gilmore and his attorney, Edward Gates of Indianapolis, and Mr. Gaffney and William F. Baker, President of the Philadelphia Club. Previous to this Mr. Gaffney and Mr. Gilmore had met, and it is said Gilmore told Mr. Gaffney that he would not do any business with Quinn until he had looked over his contract wth the Boston Club.

At this meeting, Gaffney accused Gilmore of breaking his promise, and a lively argument followed. The two men raised their voices to a high pitch, and matters were becoming so interesting that, it is stated, Mr. Baker and Mr. Gates took a hand in the controversy, and in that way avoided the serious complications which were impending.

Quinn pitched for the Yankees for several seasons and in 1912 he was sold to Rochester. Boston bought him last year and he reported late in the season. Mr. Gaffney says that he offered Quinn a 1914 contract which was accepted. This contract had been examined and approved by David Fultz, President of the Players' Fraternity. The fact that Quinn had accepted terms was announced in the official bulletin issued by President John K. Tener of the National League.

It is also set forth in the complaint that Quinn was approached by Hanlon and Knabe, who, in spite of the knowledge that the player had accepted terms with Gaffney, gave him a check for $3,500 which Quinn accepted, signing a Baltimore contract. It is set forth further in the complaint that Gilmore knew before Quinn signed the Baltimore contract that he had accepted the Boston Club's terms.

It was stated yesterday that Quinn has made overtures to Gaffney to return to the Boston Club, provided that he would return to the Baltimore Club the $3,500 which the outlaws had advanced him. Gaffney would not consider the pitcher's proposition.

Mr. Gaffney is represented by John C. Toole, counsel for the National League.

Mr. Gaffney said yesterday that the action was brought to recover damages to which the Boston Club is entitled by reason of the alleged conspiracy of the parties which resulted in Quinn breaking his contract and leaving the Boston Club. Mr. Gaffney also said: "I personally communicated the facts of the Quinn case to Gilmore and he, in the presence of witnesses, declared that in view of the correspondence and conversations between Quinn and myself he would take no action toward trying to get Quinn to desert the Boston Club. Instead of keeping his word with me, he and Edward Hanlon immediately made an effort to get Quinn to jump his contract and by offering him a large sum of money succeeded in getting him to desert. I don't want Quinn as a pitcher on my team under any circumstances, but I do propose to show the baseball world the actions of Gilmore, Hanlon, and others in carrying out their conspiracy to get this player to jump his contract."

PHILLIES SUE FOR $25,000.

CHICAGO, April 13.—The Philadelphia National League Baseball Club filed two suits here to-day in the United States District Court against the officials of the Chicago Federal League club. The suits ask for $25,000 damages, and for an injunction restraining the Federal League from interfering with the Philadelphia club's players.

The first suit named as defendants Charles Weeghman, William M. Walker, James A. Gilmore, Joseph Tinker, Robert B. Ward, and Walter F. Ward, the two latter of New York. It asked for an injunction restraining the defendants from alleged attempts to disrupt the Philadelphia National League team by taking away from it Players Seaton, Brennan, Killifer, Doolan, and Knabe. The suit prayed that the Federal League be restrained from attempting to get these players or from other alleged attempts to interfere with the business of the Philadelphia Nationals.

Only the praecipe was filed in the damage suit. It asked for $25,000 damages from the same defendants.

Summonses were issued for each of the defendants named, and were placed in the hands of Marshals who expected to serve them on all the defendants in this jurisdiction to-night or early to-morrow. It was expected that preliminary hearing might be obtained to-morrow.

The petition for a restraining order recites alleged ills that have been suffered by the Philadelphia Club because of the activities of the Federal League, asserting that the new league, "well knowing of the existence of contracts between the complainant and each of the ball players, conspired to induce these ball players to leave complainant's service.

"In furtherance of the conspiracy, the defendants offered large pecuniary reward to the players, and succeeded in inducing Seaton, Knabe, Doolan, and Brennan to withdraw from the complainant's service and join the defendant's service. At the same time Seaton and Doolan had agreed with the complainant as to the amount of salary for 1914."

The bill tells of the recent suit at Grand Rapids over the service of William Killifer, and adds:

"The motion of the complainants, (in the Killifer case,) who were officials of the Chicago team of the Federal League, for a temporary injunction, was overruled, but the bill is still pending.

"Pending the disposition of said motion, (for an injunction against Killifer,) the defendants made divers public threats and announcements to the effect that if the motion was overruled the defendants would renew their efforts to induce players to quit the service of the complainants.

"It is believed that the defendants will act in accordance with their announcement and that, unless restrained they will continue to interfere with business of complainant by tampering with its employes."

BALTIMORE, Md., April 13.—The Giants completed their exhibition series here to-day by defeating Jack Dunn's Baltimore Orioles by the score of 3 to 2. The game from the local rooters' viewpoint was a sideshow affair, for all Baltimore turned out for the Federal Leaguers' opening, some 25,000 fans filling Ned Hanlon's wooden stands. About 1,000 fans who could not get into the Federals' park or were loyal to organized ball witnessed the Giants' game.

Although the Giants began their game fifteen minutes later than their Federal League opponents, they handed the Birds a clean lacing and managed to make a getaway to the hotel before the Terrapins and Buffalo Federals pulled stakes for the day.

The Giants, priming themselves for the opening game at Philadelphia to-morrow, came from behind in the seventh inning and pulled over the necessary runs with two men out. Jack Dunn advertised either Matty or Marquard to pitch, but the duty finally fell to Ferd Schupp and "Bunny" Hearn. Schupp limited himself to six hits, but had to pitch to hold the Birds in check. He was taken out in the seventh to let Meyers bat for him, the score at that time being 2 to 1 in favor of the Orioles. When Hearn started the Giants had regained the lead. Hearn held the locals hitless duirng the three frames he worked.

"Babe" Ruth, a youngster, opposed the Giants, who made nine hits off him. Four double plays, all started by Claude Derrick, who handled twelve out of the thirteen chances, kept the Giants from scoring more runs.

The home fans had to put the blame on somebody, so they laid it at Umpire McAtee's door. In the fourth Cree smashed a grounder down the left field foul line and two runs came in. McAtee, however, declared the wallop was a foul, which decision resulted in a lively wrangle. Cree finally flied out. The Birds, subsequently drew a run over on Twombly's double. Dunn, who was rather piqued over McAtee's decision, figured he should have had four.

Bob Bescher came to the front as a run getter. He started the pastime off with a triple and later scored on Burns's three-bagger. Bescher later drove home the tying and winning run with his single in the seventh. Four times he was on the paths, garnering three hits and getting a life on another occasion.

The Giants left to-night for Philadelphia, where they will open the National League season with the Phillies. Matty will probably be McGraw's pitcher for the first game, and Milton Stock, who has been doing so well at third, will cover Art Shafer's old station. The score:

BALTIMORE, Md., April 13.—When Mayor Preston of Baltimore, with Mayor Fluhrmann of Buffalo standing beside him, tossed out the ball for the opening game of the Federal League opening series between Baltimore and Buffalo, and President Gilmore gave the signal for the raising of "Old Glory" on the tall pole in centre field, over 25,000 people, filling every place except the diamond in Terrapin Park, yelled. It was the biggest crowd that ever assembled at a Baltimore ball game, and it was also the most enthusiastic. There was scarcely standing room in the Federal Park, but just acrossthe way in Oriole Park, the diamond of which could be seen from the Terrapin Park grand stand, John McGraw's famous New York Giants and Jack Dunn's International League Orioles, which had been pitted as a strong counter-attraction to the Federal opening, played before about 1,000, even the bleachers being but one-third filled. McGraw took it good naturedly, but it was galling to the erstwhile Baltimore favorites, whose personal popularity heretofore never failed to draw a big crowd in his home town.

The tremendous ovation which the Federals received was Baltimore's approval of the change in baseball conditions here. Hundreds of lovers of the game have not seen a game played in this city since the National League team was dropped out here, but they were all on hand to-day. So intense was the interest that at 6 o'clock this morning a line had formed at the gates to buy tickets.

A parade from the heart of the city preceded the game. In the carriages were Federal League officials, including President Gilmore, President Robertson of the Buffaloes, and George S. Ward of Brooklyn.

At the park, just before the line-up, John E. Madden, on the part of Knabe's Philadelphia friends, presented the manager with a silver loving cup. The score by innings:

David L. Fultz, President of the Baseball Players' Fraternity, issued the following statement last night:

"The Baseball Players' Fraternity has expelled William Killifer, a member of the Philadelphia National League team, from its membership for contract jumping.

"This action was taken in conformity to a resolution prohibiting such breaches of contract passed by the Board of Directors at its annual meeting last October.

"While the Fraternity wishes to go on record as being absolutely opposed to this practice, and while it wishes to rebuke Killifer for his action, it does not feel that he is half as much to blame as the older and more experienced men who [illegible] to violate his agreement. NEW YORK, TUESDAY, APRIL 14, 1914.

AVERAGING THE RESERVE BANK DISTRICTS.

It is well known that there is no such person as the "average man." We owe it to the Organizing Committee that there exists during the perhaps brief term of tolerance a round dozen such abnormalities and impossibilities as average reserve districts. Not that the twelve districts are equal in all respects. The genius of even the organizers was not equal to that. All that they could do was to make them as equal and average as the existence of cities allowed. One unit the organizers used was population, and they worked wonders by producing one district surpassing New York. They were less successful with the dollar as the unit, for New York has almost double the banking capital of any other district. The only factor the organizers neglected to use is the actual and normal course of business. It is in the legal mandate, but there is not a trace of it in the product. The theory of the law is that the dollar is above the man in the lair of the money trust, and that the man should be above the dollar when banking is what it ought to be. Accordingly the country confronts an ideal solution of the difficult problem. A man is a man obviously either in Dallas or in New York, and a dollar in Texas is made as good as any dollar in New York—as nearly as the organizers are able to solve the problem set by Congress.

By no possibility can that theory be treated with respect. There is nothing better established in finance than that the velocity of either currency or credit is as important as the volume, and that both are proportioned to population. Those who have a taste for curious learning can find these facts for each country. With exceptions which prove the rule they are true universally—except in the United States as it is to be under the perfected banking now proposed. It is tedious to demonstrate the obvious. In New York the distances are so short and the railways so excellent that every dollar will find its banking home within the day. The Dallas district spreads east and west through Arizona, New Mexico, Texas, and Louisiana. Railways there are poor, and not built with reference to communications in that direction. In Dallas the dollars will be most of the time on the road riding, while the dollars in New York are working.

Besides, there are more possibilities for the use of dollars in New York than in Dallas. Dollars are very light on their feet in centres of capital, and are notoriously slow moving in agricultural centres. The organizers can order the reserve dollars to Dallas, but they might as well sentence them to exile as far as commercial use goes. At Dallas the money will be loaned on cotton for a crop movement extending over the greater part of a year. Or the reserves of that district will be loaned upon land, over a series of years, and for purposes of use in a panic they might as well be sunk in the sea. Under such conditions reserves are absorbed with amazing speed. When the customary unit is a bale of cotton held for the rise, or forty acres and a mule, which will be sold under no conditions, or a bunch of steers which will be marketed when "finished," statutory reserves are not sufficient. When the secondary reserves are loaned upon instantly marketable collateral, with a surplus above the price of the moment, the reserves can be kept fully employed, and yet be instantly available for the use of the continent. That is untrue of every reserve district where the reserves are massed by edict, and cannot find such employment as in New York, which is treated with studied inequity.

For Dallas and Texas any other reserve centres may be substituted without injury to the principle involved, which alone is under discussion at the moment. That principle is unavoidable in its workings, and according to it the selection of reserve centres will work to the detriment of the country without the expected benefit to Dallas or injury to New York. Dallas will get money which it cannot use, and New York will not be deprived of the money which it must have if the country is not to suffer. If, in fact, the money is diverted from New York that is not the loss of New York. The significance of the diversion is the impairment of the velocity of the currency or credit, with a reflex influence upon prices. If money is slow of movement and inaccessible more of it will be needed for any given operation. Money being more in demand, more of other things must be given for it in order to get it. In other words, dollars will be worth more, and other things will be worth less in terms of money. Thus the question of reserve centres is transmuted into the money question, and New York knows more about that than either Dallas or Washington.

THE SURGEONS.

That reporters employed by the newspapers and by the press associations are freely admitted to the sessions and the clinics of the International Surgical Association, now holding its fourth congress in this city, is sufficient commentary on the recent resolution of the New York Academy of Medicine that deplored the dispensing of medical news to the lay public. The most important outgivings of great medical authorities are made at these congresses. They show no petty spirit of mystery and secrecy about the progress of the healing sciences, no fear that the people, who are apprised in flaring advertisements of nostrums purveyed by quacks, will suffer because a little of what is being sincerely and intelligently done to alleviate human ills gets into print.

The frank and open policy of the surgeons' congress taking advantage of the best means for spreading among laymen authentic information about surgery, provides for the public a safeguard against quackery. It recognizes the principle that there is nothing truly good or great achieved in the specialized professions that will not submit to being stripped of its technicalities, and translated into the general tongue for the better understanding of everybody with sense and intelligence. Why else should society support the professions and endow research, if its missionaries of science are not to return with tidings of advancement and discovery?

This is not saying, of course, that reports should be made prematurely, or that the press should not be held responsible for accuracy in treatment of the news when full facilities for obtaining it have been afforded. In many cases facilities have been denied, the use of which would largely have prevented inaccuracy and sensationalism. It is a matter for congratulation, therefore, that the present congress has adopted a more generous policy toward the public.

DEMOCRACY AND REPEAL.

Secretary BRYAN and Senator GORE have made a substantial contribution, if not altogether a novel one, to the settlement of the question of the repeal of the special privilege accorded to the coastwise shipping monopoly in the use of the Panama Canal. Mr. BRYAN in a careful and really brilliant review of the matter in The Commoner has shown what should logically and honorably be the view of loyal Democrats. Mr. GORE by a poll of 418 members of the Democratic National Convention of 1912 has shown how the great body of Democrats do think on the question.

Mr. BRYAN's review is from the party standpoint, though it is by no means wholly partisan. He speaks with the authority of long experience, and of intimate acquaintance with the actual methods and customs of party conventions. He points out how little actual consideration the resolution relating to the exemption had or could have in the convention and how surely it would have been rejected had the convention understood, first, that it was in flat contradiction to the position assumed in the same platform as to subsidies, and, second, that the privilege had been granted by a Republican majority with only a minority of Democrats supporting it.

But even if the convention had surrendered the Democratic position as to subsidies, direct or indirect, and had committed itself to the favor asked by the shipping monopoly, the conditions are now so changed that the President would be quite justified in urging repeal. The question has become an international one, involving the maintenance of the national reputation for good faith. "No nation," says Mr. BRYAN, "can af-"ford to purchase a small advantage "in the face of a universal protest. "If a nation desires to array itself "against the world, it should be sure "that the thing which it is to gain is "worth what it costs." Mr. BRYAN sums up in conclusion:

> When we come to consider the repeal measure upon its merits there are just two questions to be decided: First, is it desirable for the Democratic Party to abandon its historic position and become the advocate of subsidies and bounties? And, second, if it is desirable, what is the Democratic Party willing to sacrifice in international prestige and in world influence in order to secure the advantage which these subsidies promise to a few people?

Even more striking than the able argument of the Secretary of State are the cold figures of Senator GORE's poll of the members of the convention. He began his inquiry only a few days ago. He has received answers from 418 of the members of the convention. Of these only 11 are noncommittal, 69 are opposed to repeal, and 338 sustain the course of the President. Of the number who have an opinion five-sixths are in favor of repeal. Undoubtedly all these voted for the adoption of the platform, with the miserable little "joker" in it, but they unquestionably had no notion of what they were doing in that regard. They have not changed their opinions; they simply did not form any opinion at the time of the convention, and, practically, had no means of doing so. It is probable to the verge of certainty that these gentlemen fairly represent the feeling in the rank and file of the Democratic Party at the present time. The longer the matter is discussed the surer is public opinion, not merely among Democrats but among self-respecting and well-informed men of all parties, to sustain the manly, candid, and intelligent policy of the President. We think that he can await with confidence the outcome of the contest which the subsidy hunters are waging against him.

THE GOVERNOR'S PROCLAMATION.

In issuing his call for an extra session of the Legislature Gov. GLYNN registers his "resolve to confine legislation" strictly to the State's finances. That is an important subject. Upon it alone the Governor based his annual message to the Legislature. That body quarreled over the Appropriation bill and the Supply bill, and came to a deadlock, necessitating the extra session. The Governor is in a measure justified, therefore, in restricting extra legislation to this one subject.

But the restriction is severe, and in one or two instances, it seems to us, made at too great cost. It would be in the interest of financial economy, we think, to provide the Sullivan Investigating Committee with funds to seek out and obtain indictments against the men who have swindled this State out of millions of dollars voted to improve the highways and canals. That item may be included in the appropriation bills without departing from the Governor's instructions, but it is so important that it deserved special mention.

Because of the scandal of monumental stealings and extravagance, the safeguarding of next Fall's elections is of grave concern to the State. They are not safeguarded, as the Governor himself indicated by urging specially the passage of the Primary Reform bill at the regular session. The Democratic primaries under the present law will have Murphy watchers instead of bi-partisan watchers; they will be held without applying the signature law to identify the voters, and a "joker" in the election law defines a resident voter as one having a "place of stay." That makes the marshaling of "floaters" easy. The way is paved for a corrupt election. Was it necessary that Gov. GLYNN should instruct the Legislature to confine itself solely to finance?

THE PENALTY PAID.

There were on the whole fewer exhibitions of sentimental folly over the "gunmen" executed yesterday than might have been expected. The community behaved well under a pretty severe test. The test was severe because our abominable system of criminal procedure prolonged unconscionably the interval between execution and sentence. When guilt has been proved and sentence of death pronounced, execution should follow at the latest within a month. An appeal in a murder case, properly tried, is a monstrosity, and it is the appeal that is the cause of the scandal of keeping four wretches a year and a half in prison under sentence of death.

The proof in the case of the murder of ROSENTHAL was altogether convincing, and the dying statement of CIROFICI, whatever value it may have as a whole, amply confirms the jury's verdict. Yet the long-deferred execution was a direct incitement to those who are a trifle below par in mind or judgment or common sense to display their weakness by appeals for sympathy and for mercy. There were some such appeals heard, some such arguments made. But for the most part they were confined to the vain efforts of counsel or to the immediate friends and family of the condemned. No criminals were ever less deserving of sympathy than these four men. They were hired assassins, they killed for pay a man who had never done them any wrong and whom they did not even know. ROSENTHAL was practically under the protection of the court, actually under the protection of an officer of the court. He was a gambler and according to his own statement he had taken a high police officer into partnership with him in order to be sure of protection against raids. His place of business was raided and he was so much wrought up over the matter that he went to the District Attorney with his tale of wrong and police corruption. For that he was killed, and according to testimony in the trial he was killed at the instigation of the very person he relied upon for protection. A more horribly cold-blooded crime could hardly be conceived of.

Immeasurably more commendable than the mistaken sympathy of weak sentimentalists in this case are the efforts of those persons and organizations whose benevolent activities are directed to checking so far as possible the recruiting of the criminal class from the ranks of the misguided or wholly unguided youth of the city. The four men put to death yesterday were schooled in the streets of New York. They may have been handicapped by inborn "bad streaks." Some of them had reformatory experience, which did them no good. Their standards, their highest ideals, were those of the gang, and in the gangster's view the noblest exhibition of heroism is defiance of the police. There are plenty more criminals of this type undergoing their training in the city. To win them from their evil associations, to turn them from the path which leads straight to the electric chair is a far nobler work, and gives better proof of soundness of heart and judgment than exhibitions of mawkish sentiment and foolish pleas in behalf of degraded criminals such as those who went to their doom yesterday.

A BANNED ADJECTIVE.

The reason for the avoidance of the adjective "bloody" in polite conversation in England is as difficult to discover as the source of the antipathy to the useful and harmless word "stomach." "Bloody" as an expletive is assuredly low, but it is not easy to understand why it should be considered profane or offensive. As a descriptive adjective "bloody" has never been avoided by the poets. Prefixed to the given name of the elder daughter of HENRY VIII. it serves to distinguish her in history as perhaps she would never have been otherwise distinguished. "Blood" is accounted a harmless word and there is no ban on "bleeding," yet it is one of the inconsistencies of British social life that one who would be tolerated in good company must never say "bloody." Indeed the London correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES says that some of the newspapers will not even print the word, though they print tolerably bad words every day, and in common conversation there is much more freedom in England than there is in old-fashioned decent American society. We must admit, however, that old-fashioned decency is rapidly going out here.

The interest in the first English performance of SHAW's "Pygmalion" centred in the heroine's utterance of this banned word. It was waited for with trembling, heard shudderingly, and, presumably, when the shock subsided, interest in the wit of the recent CONGREVE dwindled. All of which indicates that the English have their little queernesses, though they are no queerer than other folks. The tendency to give a word a popular meaning which is either only a part meaning or else a wholly wrong one is common enough in this country. The French eschew certain harmless words in polite conversation and use others which seem to us worse. But it would be interesting to know how the prejudice against "bloody" arose in England and how old it is. The books do not tell us.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Mistake Easily Pardonable. That we had a fair and sunny Easter instead of the dark and rainy one which the Weather Bureau, with elaborately explained confidence, had prophesied for this part of the country, will not, of course, count anything like as heavily in the public mind against the Government forecasters as did the opposite and very dreadful blunder they made regarding a never-to-be-forgotten Inauguration Day. The mistake was noted, however, by millions of people, and it will have the unfortunate effect of increasing the undeserved distrust which so many feel for what is really a valuable, because efficient, institution.

That the weather prophets are not always right is true, but their hits far exceed their misses in number, and if their record were compared with that of the rivals who trust to old saws, goosebones, and mushquash houses, for knowledge of the meteorological future, its enormous superiority would be better appreciated than it is. Such comparisons are never made, unfortunately for the reputation of the Government service, and, curiously enough, it is the failures, not the successes, of the scientists that are remembered, while every lucky guess of the quacks is widely advertised and kind oblivion veils all of their innumerable errors.

As a matter of fact, however, the Weather Bureau's forecast for Sunday was wrong only in that the predicted rain came a few hours before it was expected. Anybody who was out late Saturday night knew that the precipitation segment of the cyclone circle was here on time. That it passed on so soon was, presumably, the result of an irresponsible "high" that came in from the almost unobserved southeast and disturbed the orderly progress of the storm.

Newspapers have a special reason for defending the Weather Bureau, the reason being that about three people out of four hold the newspapers responsible for the weather predictions they print, and when the predictions are wrong the popular delusion that "you can't believe anything you see in the newspapers" is strengthened. Thus a double injustice is done. Yet it is not for nothing that almost everybody's second, if not first, glance on getting either a morning or an evening paper, is "to see what the weather is going to be." And they do see, about eight times out of ten, which, considering what a young science meteorology is and the proverbial uncertainty of the weather, is certainly worth while.

Farm and Factory Competition. That farm labor and factory labor can be better co-ordinated than they are now, with a decrease in both the cost of living and the number of the unemployed, is doctrine that has often been preached by THE TIMES, but the extent to which this could at once be done was proclaimed with a confidence beyond our own in the letter from one of our readers printed yesterday. THOMAS M. UPP, its author, saw the situation exactly as we do, and saw, too, as clearly, that the farmers will never get the sort of "help" they want and need while they continue to offer employment for only a part of the year.

Doing that, naturally and inevitably they fail to attract the "good men," to all or most of whom the factories can give work at fair wages throughout the twelve months. Instead, the farmer who cuts down his force to next to nothing in the Winter must take what he can get when Spring comes, and what he can get is too often poor in quality and scanty in quantity. The remedy, according to Mr. UPP, is the establishment of small factories in villages and small towns, also to be run on the "seasonal" system, and suspending or diminishing operations during the months when agricultural labor is in demand.

The plan is undoubtedly good. Indeed, there are already in all parts of the country not a few factories of various kinds that are conducted in just that way, to their own and the farmer's advantage. Unfortunately, the really important industries must be carried on continuously, or with but little variations between seasons, and these, for various reasons, seek the large cities. A problem, however, is not insoluble merely because its solution is not easy, and the more intelligent farmers, especially those who realize that agriculture in the East as in the West must be on a large scale to be profitable, are providing Winter employment for enough of their men to make the additions required in Summer comparatively small.

The more this is done the more successful will farm rivalry with the factory become. But the fact will always remain that farm work is more "seasonal" than any other great trade, and this is a disadvantage that will never be fully conquered. It must be remembered, too, that to reduce the prices of his products is not the farmer's ambition; that is only the hope of us consumers, and its realization is a long way off, judging by the recent course of quotations in the provision markets.

A Change Indeed Mysterious. According to the annual report of the New York Public Library, it now for the first time has as patrons more men than women. Whether this means that men have taken up reading and women dropped it, or that as many women read as before, while the number of men who have turned from non-readers to readers has increased—this the statistics at hand do not reveal.

Possibly the recent prevalence of unemployment has had something to do with the change, but this can hardly account for the whole of it. The suggestion that women are less interested in books than hitherto is the least plausible of all that come to mind, for most of the new activities receiving feminine attention tend to promote the reading habit rather than to suppress it. Anybody who undertakes to argue with modern women soon discovers that they have been consulting the authorities, orthodox and heterodox, to purposes good or bad according to whether their conclusions agree or disagree with one's own. Evidence that men have suddenly acquired a taste for literature, either heavy or light, is not so abundant.

The library figures, however, are, of course, unquestionable, and perhaps the noted decrease in the demand for fiction should be a cause for solemn rejoicing. But one hesitates to exult. The cause of it may be that novels are not as good as they used to be, and that, if proved, would be most dreadful.

DR. HEISER'S WORK STANDS.

Dean C. Worcester Defends Philippine Health Director.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is pleasanter to be able to praise than to be forced to criticise. I have just received thoroughly reliable information relative to the outcome of the effort to discredit Dr. Victor G. Heiser, Director of Health in the Philippines, whose sanitary work there has attracted worldwide attention, which I take genuine satisfaction in making public.

Gov. Gen. Harrison has proved himself to be a stanch friend of sanitation in the Philippine Islands and has given effective support to the Bureau of Health during some very trying times, undeterred by the fact that this has made a serious drain on his popularity in certain quarters.

Dr. Heiser has been recently shamefully maligned and slandered. Filipino doctors began to misdiagnose cholera. When he called them to account he was bitterly attacked by the native press. At this time Gov. Gen. Harrison took upon himself the responsibility for an intensely unpopular order for autopsies, stating that it had been issued at his request.

A bill which would have placed the Director of Health practically under the control of a "Council of Hygiene" and disrupted the sanitary work passed the Assembly, but was defeated in the commission. A similar bill, which would have taken control of the great Philippine General Hospital from the Director of Health, who had labored unceasingly for its establishment, and was very efficiently conducting it, ran a similar course.

In spite of an indictment against Dr. Heiser containing forty-three counts made by an Assembly committee, and of twenty-two additional charges, presented by another Assembly committee, of alleged irregularities at the leper colony, Dr. Heiser has been stanchly supported, and the health structure reared at such a cost of time and work still stands firmly.

The one unfortunate event has been an appointment by which the work of the Director has been materially augmented when it should have been lightened.

WOMEN IN SWITZERLAND

Never Had the Vote So Could Not Fail in Use of It.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of April 10 there appeared a dispatch from Geneva, Switzerland, which was headed "Women Didn't Use Vote." The dispatch stated that four years ago the local Government passed a law permitting women to vote for and enter the tribunal of "prud'hommes" as members, and the claim is made that the women did not use their rights, and the petition to suppress the "prud'femmes" was the result.

According to Mlle. Emilie Gourd, editor of Le Mouvement Feminist, which is published in Geneva, this statement is far from the truth.

She says in the March issue:

> We have at this moment in Geneva a striking example of the way in which democratic institutions can be used against women.
>
> Four years ago—in February, 1910—a law was passed which gave women the vote and eligibility to the Courts of Prud'hommes (professional courts.) This law was never applied, and last year a popular initiative (the right of citizens to demand the adoption or suppression of a law) was started to demand the abrogation of the law, and on pretexts such as this—that it is too great an expense to the State to register women electors!
>
> Thus by this popular initiative, which is clearly one of the most democratic features of our Constitution, this law of the prud'femmes will again be submitted to the people of Geneva, probably next month. The result of this popular vote causes us some anxiety, and we are devoting our energies and all the means at our disposal to secure a favorable result.

It thus appears that the fact that a law is passed in Geneva does not mean that it is put into operation. In the present instance women never had the chance to vote, and yet your Geneva correspondent accuses them of not using their rights.

THE FOUR "GUNMEN."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Thousands of persons who have seen the youths' photographs in the newspapers must have noticed one curious circumstance in regard to the "gunmen" who were executed at Sing Sing—they all looked alike. "Dago Frank," "Gyp the Blood," "Whitey Lewis," and "Lefty Louie" seemed cast in a single mold.

Not, to outward appearance, an unpleasing mold. They had bright, clean-cut faces—those four terrible examples of what certain tendencies in the life of New York are doing for a portion of the youth of the city. A physiognomist would probably say that they had cruel mouths, but it is doubtful if he would say it if he did not know the boys' records—and the mouth is the feature which is most quickly modified by selfishness and viciousness and crime. The conclusion seems inevitable that the "gunmen" were the result, the product of some deplorable mistake in our social organization, our system of education.

For the "gunmen" were "educated"—in the present-day sense of the word—graduates of public schools, rather promising scholars, according to some accounts. What does this "education" mean? Mr. Frank Moss tells us that the "gunmen" were "fair representatives of a large class which has been spawned by New York's slums, corruption, greed, and shamelessness"; that he is appalled by the consideration of what the city will be when the present generation has grown up; that the public schools, instead of making good citizens of these "gunmen," made them members of gangs; that in them during their boyhood were implanted no ideals above the ideals of the criminal.

What does it all mean? It means, it would seem, that the modern idea of "education" is in some aspects the most ghastly fallacy with which humanity has ever deceived itself.

The idea of progress, as it is ordinarily understood to-day, is a false idea. There will be no progress in the socialistic or anarchistic or syndicalist state to which we are tending. It is not progress, it is retrogression that confronts us. A fifteenth century German or Italian craftsman who could make a perfectly beautiful object was infinitely more "educated" and infinitely happier than the half-baked products of the schools of to-day.

HOMES, NOT VOTES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The delicate compliment conveyed by Mrs. Hepburn in her recent letter in your columns, in her reference to the "beautifully gowned" anti-suffragists, is indeed deeply appreciated by the members of the Wage Earners' Anti-Suffrage League. As most of us not only make our gowns but make them over, we rejoice that our efforts in this direction call forth such praise.

We must, however, take issue with Mrs. Hepburn anent her interpretation of Mrs. Martin's statement that the real need of women is homes, not votes. Just why Mrs. Hepburn, bulwarked by an attractive home—and husband—should decry Mrs. Martin's ideal it is hard to fathom. We, who know only too well what our economic independence is costing us, consider we have the right to refuse political independence. The privilege of participating in that most ineffectual medium of expression of public opinion, i. e., the ballot, will not recompense us for the precious time and effort spent as watchers at the polls, electioneering for some candidate who indorses suffrage, &c., as these things mean added work and worry.

COMMUTERS' GRIEVANCF.

Redressed if Governor Signs Bill Upholding Public Service Decision.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

My letter supporting the bill now before the Governor, which would confirm the findings of the Public Service Commission and restore the old commutation rates on the New Haven Railroad, referred to the New Haven Road's consistently illiberal treatment of its suburban towns in respect to rates. It never to my knowledge, which is detailed and extensive, issued excursion or round-trip tickets. It never issued family trip tickets until compelled to do so, which was long after all the other trunk roads out of New York had done so voluntarily. Its old commutation rates, which this bill would restore, were from 16 to 41 per cent. higher than the old rates of any of those trunk lines. This is according to the evidence on which the commission based its decision. Further than that, the New Haven old rates, which we ask restored, are higher than most of the new rates on those other trunk lines.

We of Westchester County will feel sadly out and injured if we wake up in a few days to find that the New Haven and the Central have the right not only to charge us 5 per cent. more freight toll, but also have the Governor's sanction, practically perpetuating their new commutation rates, which the Public Service Commission has declared to be unreasonable. There is necessity for being fair to the railroads, but there is no room or reason in hard-hit Westchester County for both increases.

NOT LONESOME.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You have published so much about the lonely girl, which was read with great interest. But really no young woman ought to feel lonely so long as she has a position and earns her living; she ought to be happy and thankful, as she can always find a young woman's club to join for very little a month or year, where she can always find girls and make friends.

But how about a young woman being out of work for six months, who must support her aged mother, and, not being able herself to be on her feet, can only take a sitting position? Does not her case warrant looking into?

It is no easy task to go out every day and look for work and not find any. This young woman is a bookkeeper and office worker, speaks the English and the German language fluently, is conscientious, and a good daughter to her mother, who has been a widow for fourteen years. She is her mother's sole support; although she has always kept at home evenings, she never yet had a lonesome evening or missed going out among others, as she finds her pleasure in her home reading, corresponding with friends, a little sewing, trimming her own hats, &c. She would be thankful for the chance to earn her own and her mother's living.

Why is it necessary to have a high school diploma to be a trained nurse?

I am only a grammar school graduate, but I have lived all my life among people of cultivation and refinement, and I think I can claim for myself a certain amount of knowledge not to be acquired in elementary schools, as I take interest in many subjects and am fond of reading—both for information and pleasure.

And still, the other day, on inquiring at one of the training schools for nurses, I was dismissed in the rudest and most unkind manner.

WHAT THE SOIL IS

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A new chapter in the history of the Rothamsted Experimental Station opened in 1902, when A. D. Hall was appointed director. During the progress of the older experiments at this station great advances had been made in chemistry, botany, bacteriology, and other subjects that lie at the foundation of agricultural science, and the principles discovered were brought in practice all over the world. This new knowledge had to be carefully examined to see what light it could throw on agricultural problems, and while the agricultural investigator was thus put into possession of new means for attacking old problems the need for new work became more emphasized. For some years past economic causes had compelled the farmer to reconsider his methods—to effect economies in management and to raise larger crops at reduced cost. But so good was the practice of the best farmers that no market advance could be hoped for until an adequate knowledge was obtained of what the soil really is and how the plant grows there.

To obtain this knowledge is the object of the newer investigations at Rothamsted. For many years before their death the late Sir John Bennet Lawes, the founder, and Sir J. H. Gilbert, his associate, devoted their attention exclusively to crop production, and this policy has been adopted by their successors. Investigations at Rothamsted are now restricted to soil and plant nutrition problems, and no attempt is made to deal with such subjects as plant breeding, animal husbandry, &c., for which provision is made elsewhere. A further feature of Rothamsted is that it has no local duties to perform; the staff are not called upon to analyze fertilizers or feeding stuffs, to advise, or to conduct demonstration plots of an educational nature.

The limiting factor in crop production in England is commonly the nitrogen supply; it very generally happens that an increased application of a nitrogenous fertilizer leads to increased crop yields. For this reason fertility problems in this country often resolve themselves into questions of the nitrogen supply, and such questions therefore claim a very large share of attention. Investigations are made into the decompositions going on in the soil, giving rise to the production of ammonia and nitrates; the losses of nitrates and nitrogen from the soil; losses in the manure heap, and so on. Of course the other factors are borne in mind as well, but the keynote to much of the work is the necessity for understanding more fully the nitrogen cycle in the soil with a view of ultimately controlling the changes that take place, reducing the losses and increasing the production of ammonia or of nitrates.

The second line of investigation has to do with the possibility of the stimulation of plant growth as apart from plant nutrition. Is it possible to find substances which are not themselves nutrients but which will stimulate the plant to greater activity in assimilating the nutrients from the soil or in those photosynthetical processes that enable it to utile the carbon dioxide of the atmosphere? This work is complicated by the difficulty of finding an exact definition for a nutrient on the one hand, and eliminating secondary effects on the other.

Lastly, investigations are being started on the influence of soil conditions (manures, &c.,) on the composition of the crop. In England considerations of quality of the crop play a very prominent part; the feeding qualities of root and hay crops, the malting quality of barley, the baking quality of wheat being all matters of importance in determining the prices. Usually the ordinary analytical processes afford but little guidance to the chemist, and quality depends, as a rule, on some factors that have hitherto escaped us. As a first step in these investigations it has become necessary to ascertain more closely what substances are present in the crop and to what variations they are liable with change of conditions. This aspect of the work is being developed exhaustively, as it must form the basis of any true elucidation of the rather vague characters summed up in the word quality.

The new work has involved an increase in the staff and requires a considerable increase in the laboratory accommodation. It has been proposed to erect a new laboratory to commemorate the centenary of the birth of Sir John Lawes in 1814 and Sir Henry Gilbert in 1817, and for this purpose a public subscription list has been opened to collect the sum of $30,000; if this amount can be collected the Government will give another $30,000. It is felt that the most appropriate way of celebrating the centenary of the birth of these two great men is to erect a laboratory where their work can be continued.

Young Father Crippled.

The future looked dark enough to a young workingman when an accident deprived him of his right hand. His employer was in business in a small way and fled the country at the prospect of a suit for damages. What he could earn by selling papers when he came out of the hospital did not go far toward food for his wife and three children and the rent of the home. His wife found sewing, but 25 cents a day was often the extent of her earnings. An opportunity for the man to learn a trade has been found, and he is taking hold with a will. Twenty-five dollars a month is needed to supplement the woman's earnings and the irregular help their church will give. The Charity Organization Society asks for $150 to provide this while the man is being prepared to do work by which he can again support his family.

Gifts may be sent to the office of the society, 105 East Twenty-second Street.

The society acknowledges with thanks the following contributions sent in response to previous appeals in THE TIMES: "Cash," $5; "B. B.," $1; "B. M. R.," $1; "W. F. C.," $5; Mrs. Eli Strouse, $1; H. AN AIRSHAFT SONG.

Oh, wirra! whin the Spring comes 'round
  'Tis loth I am th' cook to be,
I stand by th' stove all day, house-bound,
While my feet is achin' for soft green ground
  And my heart for th' buddin' tree—
Now all the little woods is primrose-carpeted
Around Tralee!

Across the airshaft from my room
My hungry eyes have watched thim bloom
Like little lamps in all th' gloom
  Instid of ironin' Missis' frills—
The dells are all gray-blue with noddin' hyacinths
Around Tralee!

Outside, the sweet south wind blows free,
  God's sunshine doesn't cost a cint,
And I'd give me ears to-day to be
Strollin' wid Mick in the ould countree
  Down the woodland path we always wint—
Around Tralee!

UTILITIES BOARD HIT BY MAYOR'S VETOES

Bill to Enable Commission to Build Subway When Necessary Is Not Approved.

CURB ON CONTRACT LETTING

Limit of $10,000 on Awards Not Made Publicly Is Maintained—Four Measures Signed.

Mayor Mitchel signed four more legislative bills and vetoed five others yesterday. Those he approved allowed the Dock Commissioner to enforce certain rules and regulations, which could not be made by the Aldermen; allowed Magistrates to send young girls to the Jewish Protectory and Aid Society; allowed the Fire Commissioner to exercise jurisdiction over factories and to order fire drills, and allowed the city to widen Queens Boulevard through two cemeteries in Queens.

One of the bills the Mayor vetoed was to amend the Rapid Transit act so as to allow the Public Service Commission, with the approval of the Board of Estimate, to employ persons and purchase machinery to construct a subway road "when the public interests so require," and to permit the commission to award contracts not exceeding $25,000 without public letting. The present act prescribes a limit of $10,000 for contracts without public letting. Of this bill the Mayor said:

"I am of the opinion that before a change be made allowing $25,000 contracts without public letting there should be contained in the amended section a paragraph distinctly calling for the consent of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. I do not feel, however, that an increase from $10,000, to $25,000 is at all necessary. Under Section 36 of the act, the Public Service Commission is at present allowed to make contracts 'where there is an extraordinary emergency involving danger to life and property.' Other city departments are only allowed to make contracts without public letting when they do not exceed $1,000. A big margin has already been given the Public Service Commission."

Another bill the Mayor disapproved amended the city charter so as to permit the Board of Estimate to waive costs in test cases. Regarding this the Mayor observes that the proposed bill allowed the Board of Estimate to absolve a taxpayer or plaintiff from costs which had been entered up against him on his defeat, but there was no provision, he pointed out, for a case where the city might lose and costs be taxed up against the city authorities.

A bill allowing the Sinking Fund Commission to change the lease of the Deaf Mutes' Association into a fee the Mayor also disapproved, saying:

"The Sinking Fund Commissioners in the case of the New York Child's Nursey and Hospital approved a compromise secured by the Controller whereby the property in question was put up at auction and a division made of the proceeds between the city and the hospital at the rate of 60 per cent. to the hospital and 40 per cent. to the city. Of course, this particular division was based on the peculiar circumstances disclosed in that case, but it points out a workable plan whereby these long leaseholds may be extinguished."

A bill to allow the Board of Elections to order the publication of elections and another measure to aid property owners affected by a change of grade of the streets that led up to the Manhattan Bridge the Mayor also disapproved.

The Mayor held public hearings on other bills, among them being one to limit the height of skyscrapers, regulate noxious trades, and permit division of the city into zones for residences, industries, &c. No one appeared to oppose the bill, and George McAneny, who was on the committee that framed it, urged the Mayor to sign it. The Mayor said he would approve it unless good reason could be shown why he should not do so. He also said that he probably would approve the bill to create a new Department of Licenses, with a Commissioner and two deputies. The plan is to consolidate all license bureaus into one, and if it is signed Commissioner of Licenses George H. Bell and Julian Rosenthal, Chief of the Mayor's Bureau of Licenses, probably will be continued in the new offices.

Another bill on which there was a hearing and which the Mayor favored was to amend the charter in relation to licenses to auctioneers and permit the Vice Chairman of the Board of Aldermen to preside at trials, thus relieving the President of that duty.

There was a hearing on still another bill authorizing the Supreme Court to entertain proceedings to review the determination of the Board of Education relative to the removal of Augusta B. Frank. Seventeen years ago Miss Frank was dropped from her post as teacher of German in two city schools. Twice the Court of Appeals has decided against her, and the bill, which contains no waiver of back salary, is in effect a recall of these two decisions. Mayor Gaynor vetoed one bill on the ground that it was mandatory, but those who appeared in favor of the bill yesterday said that it was now drawn so as to be permissive. The Mayor, it was said, was opposed to the measure.

CHILDREN WILSON'S GUESTS

Thousands of Youngsters Join Egg Rolling on White House Grounds.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—President Wilson had as his guests to-day the children of the national capital. The occasion was the annual frolic and egg-rolling on the White House grounds. From early to-day until nearly dusk the little folk, with the full freedom of the grounds, enjoyed the President's hospitality.

Ideal weather favored the children, and thousands of them gathered on the spacious lawns for the day's merry-making. The admissions were restricted to children and accompanying parents, guardias or nurses. Adults unaccompanied by children were not admitted. Thousands of grown-ups, however, watched the fun from near by.

Sally and John McAdoo, children of the Secretary of the Treasury; the seven youngsters of Secretary Tumulty, John Bryan, grandson of the Secretary of State; Elizabeth Howe Wilson and her sister, Virginia Wilson, both daughters of the Secretary of Labor; Ned and Nancy Lane, children of the Secretary of the Interior, and David Houston, son of the Secretary of Agriculture, joined in the frolic.

MOVE TO CONFIRM McNALLY.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The Senate to-day voted to reconsider the nomination of James C. McNally of Pittsburgh to be Consul at Nuremberg, Germany, but failed to reach a final decision because of lack of a quorum. McNally, who formerly was Consul at Tsingtau, China, was cleared of charges after a thorough investigation by Solicitor Folk, but the fight against him was continued when the President nominated him for the post at Nuremberg. Last week his confirmation was defeated by a vote of 26 to 24. After hearing explanations, Senators Sheppard of Texas and Smoot of Utah said they would change their votes and support McNally, and Senator Sheppard agreed to move a reconsideration of the matter. But to-day only twenty-one Senators favorable to McNally were present, and the nomination was left pending.

The Administration is using its influence to obtain confirmation.

WEIRD COSTUMES AT CUBIST BALL

All the Colors Known to Man and a Few Others Worn by Society Waitresses.

PURPLE COW ON LANDSCAPE

The Cubist Ball for the benefit of Stony Wold Sanatorium brought out a large and fashionable crowd to the Biltmore ballroom last night and netted $3,000 for tubercular patients. It was such a ball as has never been seen before in New York. The ballroom had one huge decoration, a Cubist "painting" that covered one end of the room and formed a background for the dances. It was designed by Miss Margaret Means, and on the canvas were pasted oddly shaped sections of gay-colored cloth, that fused into a Cubist landscape with such realistic details as a purple cow, a house upsidedown, and trees like the old-time figure 4.

There was also an excellent supper served in the balcony of the ballroom by society girls in weird costumes displaying all the colors known to man, and a few more besides, and their headdresses no one could accurately describe.

General dancing was preceded by several original exhibitions of dancing. One, the Post Impressionist dance, "Nature Morte Pathetique," was a clown dance, in which Mrs. Clarence Wyckoff was the chief clown and solo dancer, and the others were Mrs. Harold F. Hadden, Jr., the Misses Jean Roosevelt, Mildred Gibert Townsend, and Jeannette Whitlock, and Messrs. Cleveland Cobb, Anderson Dana, F. W. Kobbe, and John Sweetser. Another number was the Futurist dance, otherwise "The Blue Mood" symbolized, which brought out six débutantes, the Misses Louise Butler, Louise Dixon, Cordelia Hepburn, Margaret Seton Porter, and Joy Williams who wore Bodacea gowns of blue and blue wigs.

A Cubist Dance, "The Absence of George," was a take-off on the "Absence of Mabel Dodge," a picture shown several weeks ago at a national arts club exhibition. It was danced by Harold Otis and Page Ely to music on weird made-for-the-occasion instruments by Hugh D. Rose, John Cook, and C. D. Noyes.

Colored lights were thrown on the dancers to produce cubist and impressionist effects in color.

The Floor Committee included Kenneth Boardman, W. B. Boulton, Jr., W. Bruce-Brown, Howland S. Davis, W. Montague Geer, Jr., Oliver Wagstaff, Langdon Geer, Horton Ijams, Edward Shippen, and Percy Weeks. The Executive Committee who arranged the dance were Mrs. George S. Franklin and the Misses Marion Dell Carrere, Katharine A. Crane, Anita H. Emmet, Alice Fox, Ina Kissel, Helen Maclay, and Alice Wardell.

Most of the patronesses were present and brought guests with them, a number giving dinners before the dance. Among them were Mrs. John Claflin, Mrs. Henry E. Coe, Mrs. F. P. Delafield, Mrs. Philip Franklin, Mrs. Langdon Geer, Mrs. Cass Gilbert, Mrs. John A. Hartwell, Mrs. F. L. V. Hoppin, Mrs. Alfred Hinton, Mrs. W. Strother Jones, Mrs. John B. Lawrence, Mrs. H. H. Landon, Mrs. Philip Livingston, Mrs. Junius S. Morgan, Mrs. Walter G. Oakman, Mrs. W. C. Orr, Mrs. William Church Osborn, Mrs. Charles Howland Russell, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., Mrs. H. C. Sturges, Mrs. Samuel A. Tucker, Mrs. Allen Wardwell, Mrs. Benson B. Sloan, Mrs. William A. Read, Mrs. Thomas D. Friends of President's Daughter and Secretary McAdoo Learn the Date.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Although there has been no formal announcement from the White House as yet as to the date of the wedding of Secretary McAdoo and Miss Eleanor Randolph Wilson, youngest daughter of the President and Mrs. Wilson, friends who are in a position to know say Friday, May 8, has been tentatively selected. The affair is expected to be private, Mr. McAdoo's colleagues in the Cabinet being practically the only guests outside of the two families.

During the last few days Washington society has come to accept as settled that the wedding would take place during the first week in May, and also that the invitation list would be small. It is taken for granted that whatever preparations are made for the event will not require the time and busy activity which preceded the Wilson-Sayre wedding last November. Miss Wilson's trousseau, it is said, is practically completed.

DETECTIVE BARNEY IS VERY AMUSING

WELL ACTED BY MR. TRUEX

And While This Play by the Authors of "The Argyle Case" Is Talky, It Has Originality.

Chal Fisher	Arthur E. Hohl
Jim Cocoran	John N. Wheeler
Walter Babbing	Joseph Brennan
Barney Cook	Ernest Truex
Agnes Meredith	Edith Shayne
Trumbell Meredith	Frank Connor
Beryl Meredith	Joyce Fair
Rose Hart	Ada Dwyer
Spider Hart	Edward Ellis
Pat Geoghan	Joseph Tuohy
Sinker Simonson	Charles Mylott
Antoine	Nicholas Judels

Harvey J. O'Higgins and Harriet Ford, who joined forces as the authors of "The Argyle Case," have taken the Detective Barney stories by Mr. O'Higgins, turned them into a four-act comedy and called that comedy "The Dummy." This is the play that was shown here for the first time at the Hudson Theatre last night, and it proved to be enjoyable because the collaborating playwrights have veered off at every possible opportunity from the groove worn well by all the many crook plays of this and other seasons. "The Dummy's" progress is rather ambling, but it takes unexpected turns, and for this reason and because it is fairly well lighted by a shrewd and pleasant humor, the new crook comedy is agreeably entertaining.

Here we have a crook play where the crooks are not so very crooked after all, a melodrama that is not so very melodramatic, a pursuit of kidnappers that is not so very exciting, for the simple and rather welcome reason that it does not try to be. It is a crook play without a single revolver shot or so much as a dictograph, but with just a small messenger boy from down Hudson Street way in hot pursuit of the kidnappers because he wants to make a showing as a "detectuf." And when the kidnapped child is rescued a happy ending is provided all around, not only for the father and mother, but even for the crooks themselves. Presumably a happy ending for kidnappers, where a complete escape is out of the question, is the chance to turn State's evidence, and so the precious four of this comedy, while they go out manacled, also go out serenely.

And of course there is a happy ending for the weary Barney. He is to be a full-fledged sleuth all the rest of his days, and incidentally he wins the $10,000 reward.

"Count it," says Detective Barney.

The play gets its title from the fact that when Barney is dispatched as the green operative of the detective agency to get in touch with a little girl who is being held by blackmailers, he is put temptingly in their way, so that he, too, will be stolen, and he wanders around loose in their house because he poses as a dull-witted deaf and dumb boy.

This situation is really rich in its opportunity for theatrical suspense. On this same stage of the Hudson Theatre, before its removal to the Liberty, "Lady Windermere's Fan" was playing, and in its superb third act the interest in every casual word that is said by the idling group of men is immensely heightened, because they, but not the audience, are all unconscious of the fact that hidden in this apartment of Lord Darlington are Mrs. Erlynne and Lady Windermere. Just so all the banter and the plotting among these fleeing kidnappers takes on a double dramatic value, because the boy huddled unnoticed in the corner is really possessed of a keen pair of ears and the roving eyes are shrewdly noting everything that is afoot.

This, then, is material for good suspense in the theatre, but the authors of "The Dummy" are keener for amusement than suspense, and Barney spoils it all before long by falling into a doze, and when he is in his dreams he mutters drowsily:

"I'm a detectuf."

He manages to wriggle out of it neatly enough, and as the frightened captors take up in all haste their flight toward Canada, Barney is left in a lonesome mountain bungalow, and the third act curtain sees him starting back for New York afoot, with a shotgun over his shoulder and his arm chivalrously shielding the small cause of all the trouble.

After this point, the playrights are rather at a loss to fill out the evening with another whole act and to keep the story in some state of complication they are driven to the not particularly ingenious device of having Barney and the little girl go to sleep in another room and stay there till it is nearly time for the final curtain. It must be admitted that this act and the first are taken up overmuch with aimless conversation so that there is a strong temptation to observe that "The Dummy" is too talkative.

Fortunately, however, while a great deal is said in the course of "The Dummy," not a little of what is said is touched with that keen observation and friendly humor which is to be found in Mr. O'Higgins's short stories, so that altogether this play, which he has written with Harriet Ford, is agreeable enough for an evening at the theatre.

That this is so is due in no small degree to the skillful playing by Ernest Truex as Detective Barney, and Edward Ellis and Joseph Tuohy help by their performances. That competent actress, Ada Dwyer, is sadly out of place as the woman who rather roughly mothers the kidnapped child, but it is not easy to believe that the authors of "The Dummy" had any such person in mind when they wrote the part.

"NATOMA" AT THE CENTURY.

Natoma	Helen Stanley
Barbara	Lena Mason
Lieut. Paul Merrill	Orville Harrold
Don Francisco	Gilbert Wilson
Father Peralta	Alfred Kaufman

The last week of the season at the Century Opera House—a season already long, but abbreviated to permit of changes in the auditorium to be finished before the Autumn—is devoted to "Natoma," music by Victor Herbert, book by Joseph D. Redding. It was the first American opera that has been given at the Century Theatre, and the only one, except "The Bohemian Girl," whose libretto was originally written in English. It did not appear from last night's audience that the public interest in Mr. Herbert's opera was very strong; the audience was a small one and only occasionally roused to polite applause.

And yet Mr. Herbert's opera is said to have had a large number of performances in the West, a sign of popular interest. In New York it has had few. It was first given here on Feb. 28, 1912, by the Chicago Opera Company, guests of the Metropolitan Opera House, and was heard then three times. The performance then was a fine one, with the best members of the Chicago forces in the cast. Last evening a creditable performance was given. The work is difficult, presenting some unusual problems. An extra period of preparation had been allotted to the production, and there were plentiful signs of the care and attention and labor that Mr. Szendrei had put into the preparation. If the orchestra were a better lot of players and the chorus a better lot of singers they would have made the signs still plainer.

"Natoma" is a work that has pleasing qualities, and that in certain respects does credit to Mr. Herbert's musicianship and ambition. What success it has is due to Mr. Herbert, and has been made in spite of the libretto, which is a singularly weak and conventional effort. The prose in which much of it is written is bald and commonplace; the lyrics are in the most hopelessly conventional operatic style of the bad old kind; constructed on Valtaire's theory that what is too foolish to be spoken is appropriate to be sung. Improbability of the most typical operatic kind is at the basis of the whole action. The audience is asked to believe much at which reason balks, and is practically asked to surrender all sense of reality in an opera of realistic intention.

Mr. Herbert, in his determination to make a "grand opera," left nothing undone, and made heavy demands upon his eclectic and very docile muse. There is plenty of opportunity for gay and highly colored music of the Spanish type which he has utilized fully; but most stress is laid upon the use he has made of Indian motives. These are derevid from native sources in part; though the only real Indian music that he has quoted in full is the so-called "dagger dance" and the "hawk song," sung by Natoma.

The Indian music, the attempt to utilize it as artistic material, gives now as it did on a first hearing, a sense of monotony. It is for the most part difficult and intractable material, heavy and unappealing. Some of it has the suggestion of Irish or Scotch tunes—though without their beauty—because of the frequent appearance of the pentatonic or five-note scale and of the "Scotch snap." Mr. Herbert has been more fortunate in the Spanish tunes he has written, though soce of these are so facile that there is a strong flavor of comic opera aoout them, and some of the lyrics belong unmistakably to the sentimental side of that school of art.

Mr. Hubert has often written cleverly for the orchestra. The prelude to the third act is incomparably the finest thing in the opera; and in it the composer has not only made the most skillful use of his Indian material, but has done his most skillful and impressive writing for the orchestra. The churchly chorus in the last act is finely sonorous and appropriate.

The principal singers showed competency and understanding of their task. Miss Helen Stanley was a picturesque and appealing figure, lithe and sinuous, as Natorina, and sang well. Mr. Harrold's voice sounded light and of little power; its quality has much that is pleasing, and he made as much of the part of Lieut. Merrill as its conventional outline would admit. Miss Lena Mason was attractive as Barbara, with a dash of acid in her voice.

'Red Canary' and 'Governor's Boss.'

"The Red Canary," a new musical comedy, by William Le Baron and Alexander Johnstone, with music by Harold Orlob, was produced at the Lyric Theatre last night. "The Governor's Boss," a play in four acts, by James S. Barcus, also hid its premiers at the Garrick Theatre.

Cohan and Harris, who have been playing a pleasant joke on the audiences all season at the Astor Theatre with "Seven Keys to Baldpate," have also taken this year to perpetrate a trick on New York theatregoeres which is not quite so pleasing. In this season of indifferent musical comedies they have kept Raymond Hitchcock out of this city for many months when Mr. Hitchcock had up his sleeve one of the most uproariously funny musical plays the stage has had in many a day. The piece is "The Beauty Shop," but as Cohan and Harris brought the star and the musical comedy, to say nothing of halfa hundred pretty girls, into the Astor Theatre last night they may possibly be forgiven even at tis late hour.

"The Beauty Shop" provides Mr. Hitchcock with the best vehicle he has had in recent years, and also provides three solid hours of continuous and violent laughter. The only chance for a rest comes after the first act. During the greater part of the intermission between the second and third acts the star delivered a speech last night which was as funny as the book of the show. He admitted that even the dropping of a five-cent piece on a plush sofa was noise enough to bring him before the curtain, so the speech may be considered a part of the entertainment at every performance.

"The Beauty Shop" is by Rennold Wolf and Channing Pollock, with music by Charles J. Gebest. The latter does not show up to any tremendous advantage with his compositions, but as the audience was in such spasms of laughter most of the time last night it was in no condition to enjoy pretty music any way. Mr. Hitchcock is of course the chief funmaker, and in each act, once he makes his entrance, he never leaves the stage until the drop of the curtain.

The best song, too, falls to the star, who sings, or rather talks, "All Dressed Up and No Place to Go." "Diamond Jim" Brady, Flo Ziegfeld, and other celebrities figure in the song. Both gentlemen were among those present last night, and Mr. Hitchcock got considerable fun out of the fact. Mr. Ziegfeld, Broadway's latest bridegroom, occupied a box with his latest mother-in-law, Mrs. Burke, last night, and several times was made the butt of Mr. Hitchcock's jokes. As a matter of fact, the star made himself perfectly at home all during the performance, and greeted friends in the audience whenever he happened to spot them.

There is as much of a plot to "The Beauty Shop" as is necessary to any musical comedy. Dr. Arbutus Budd is a beauty doctor with a long list of noypaying patients and an equally long list of angry creditors. Mr. Hitchcock is the doctor, who is only saved from going to Ludlow Street Jail for debt by the death of an uncle of his ward in Corsica. The uncle is supposed to be wealthy and the creditors send the doctor—and the rest of the company to be sure—to Corsica to collect the money.

The second act is laid in Corsica, where Dr. Budd discovers that all the dying Corsican left was a vendetta which the doctor has inherited. Several hungry looking Corsicans are on hand to see that Dr. Budd's interest in the feud does not lag. The last act also takes place in that country, but of course the beauty doctor escapes safely and every one is happy.

Next to the star the hit of the evening was scored by Marion Sunshine, once a member of the vaudeville team of Tempest and Sunshine. She appeared as a Spanish dancer who also sang. During one of her songs Mr. Hitchcock took occasion to explain that she didn't have a very big voice, but that she was pretty and a good dancer, and then, to prove it, he surprised the audience by dancing a tango in the most up-to-date fashion. Among others in the supporting company were Anna Orr, a remarkably pretty girl, who was also short on voice but long on dancing; Tessa Kosta, Joseph Herbert, Jr., and Lawrence Wheat.

"PETER PAN" COMES BACK.

Maude Adams in Special Matinees at the Empire.

Back to the Empire Theatre—through some high, arched window, one suspects—there came yesterday afternoon the boy who wouldn't grow up in the play that will never grow old. It is a little late in the century to tell anything of the delight in this work of Barrie's. With each year of its return to New York one can only report that in no degree has time diminished the elfin charm of Maude Adams as the Peter Pan to reach whose home you turn to the left and keep straight on till morning. There is not another player in this country whose playing of a part is so fixed an institution of the American theatre.

The Empire yesterday, at the first of twelve special matinées devoted to this revival, was packed with children, a happy, prattling audience that knew just how good it all was. One very small boy was so much in the spirit of "Peter Pan" that he threatened to fly out of one of the boxes, and might well have succeeded had not a skeptical Olympian put forth a restraining hand. So he was still in the box later on and able to join with all his heart in the faith cure of Tinker Bell.

As in the performances of the play that were given during the Christmas holidays in 1912, Robert Peyton Carter is the father of the Darling children, and plays also the crocodile haunted pirate with a hook where his left hand had been. But there is a new and a pleasing Wendy in Dorothy Dunn, and of the rest of the long cast there should be at least a note for the good work of Dorothy Chesmond as the agile and loyal Nibs.

Rt. Rev. Charles C. Penick.

The Righ Rev. Charles Clinton Penick, 70 years old, a former missionary Bishop to Africa of the Protestant Episcopal Church, died yesterday in a hospital in Baltimore, Md. He studied for the ministry after the war, and was graduated from Alexandria Seminary in 1869. Later, Wheeling College conferred on him the degree of Doctor of Divinity. He was appointed a deacon in 1869, and a priest one year later. He was appointed Bishop of Cape Palmas, West Africa, in 1877, and during the last few years devoted himself to missionary work among the negroes of the South. He was the author of "More than a Prophet," "Advice to the Church in Africa," and "Hopes, Perils, and Struggles of the Negroes in America."

OLIVE OIL ADULTERATED.

This Is What the American Consul at Leghorn, Italy, Reports.

Interesting light is thrown on the adulteration of olive oil abroad by Benjamin F. Chase, United States Consul at Leghorn, Italy, in a report published in Daily Consular and Trade Reports. According to the Consul, treated inferior olive oil is produced in Italy at Porto Maurizio. The oil sells at $13.77 per 100 pounds. Oil prepared at Nice sells at $14.54, while that at Marseilles from $11.84 to $12.11.

"Some of this oil," says Mr. Chase, "is received at the free port of Leghorn and pays no duty. It is there alleged to be mixed with Lucca oil and the whole sold as pure Lucca oil. Some is said to be taken direct to Lucca and other places in this district and mixed with genuine Lucca oil and the whole put out as grown in Tuscany and manufactured in Lucca. The duty and other charges make it cost $1.58 to $1.75 per 100 pounds in addition to the selling price noted, but the mixture is then sold for less than that at which pure genuine Lucca oil can be sold. Treated oil from Porto Maurizio pays no import duty."

Of first and second pressings, the only oils suitable for human consumption, a production is estimated of about 12,000,000 pounds of oil. At least one-third of this is consumed in Italy, leaving 8,000,000 pounds of pure Lucca oil for export. The exports to the United States during 1913 were 10,292,000 pounds, of which one-third was in the last quarter of the year, and from the 1913-14 crop. Approximately 2,200,000 pounds have been shipped already this year up to Feb. 26.

The Consul says it would seem that more oil is being sent to the United States as Lucca or Tuscany olive oil than the district produces for export. The treated oil is difficult to detect, but expert tasters allege that they can recognize the mixed oil from the flavor and the effect on the throat.

The Consul suggests that an effective way to protect this country from the adulterated oil, if it cannot be detected by chemical examination, would seem to be to have an expert on the ground to see that Lucca oil intended for shipment to the United States is not mixed with the deodorized oils or other inferior oils and to place an identification mark on each container before exportation.

ENGLISH FUR SALES.

They Are Said to Show a Stronger Position Than Expected.

Commenting on the public fur sales in London during March of this year, including the sales of the Hudson's Bay Company, C. M. Lampson & Co., A. & W. Nesbitt, Ltd., Frederick Huth & Co. and Anning & Cobb, Phillips, Politzer & Co., of London say:

"The principal feature of the sales was, firstly, the unprecedented offerings, which in many cases, more especially among the staple articles, established a record; secondly, the extraordinary strength displayed by the trade in dealing with these quantities. The enormous collection, it may be mentioned, is not due to any increase in the supply, but to the fact that, owing to bad trade, the United States and Canada failed to take their usual share.

"Business in Europe has been fairly active since January, the lower level of prices being a great incentive to purchasers, and a considerable clearance of goods was effected. The announcement, however, of the figures for the March sale, for which the trade was unprepared, caused a sensation and a natural feeling of nervousness. Judging from the result of the sales, the trade appears to be in a far stronger position than could possibly have been expected. To absorb quantities of this magnitude so soon after the January sales, without any material effect on prices then established, is no small feat."

SHAKESPEARE PORTRAIT

BEAUTIFUL ROTOGRAVURE COPY OF THE CHANDOS PORTRAIT ISSUED AS A SUPPLEMENT TO

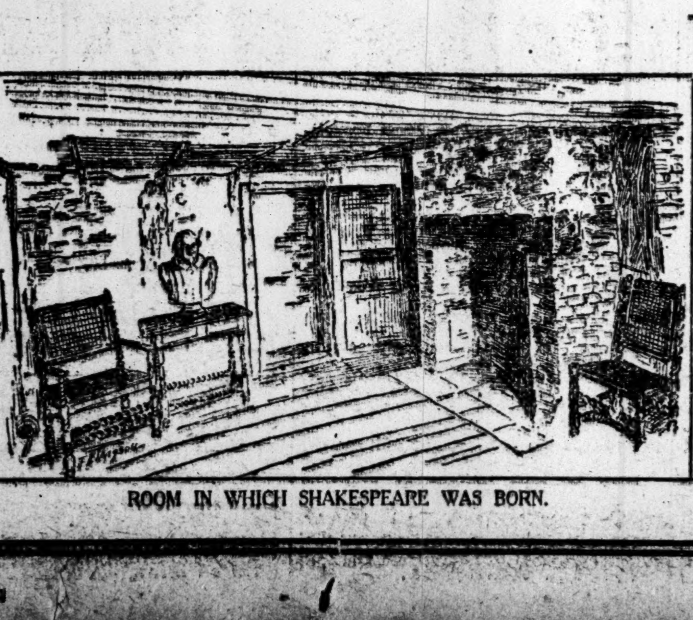
NEXT SUNDAY

Teachers and Schools

This portrait is of good size (10½ by 15) and will be delivered with next Sunday's New York Times unfolded. Teachers of literature should call the attention of their pupils to this announcement. The Shakespeare anniversary exercises which will be held in schools and colleges next week will have an added interest to the pupils who have been able in advance to secure this excellent portrait. But bear in mind that The New York Times is an "ordered-in-advance" and not a "placed-on-sale" newspaper. There is a difference; and this difference explains why the demand is always greater than the supply. Neither the occasional buyer, nor his friends, can hope to get this Shakespeare portrait unless an advance order is placed with a newsdealer early this week.

The Chandos Portrait

The Chandos portrait of Shakespeare is the best known likeness of the poet, and the most generally satisfactory. It is believed to have been painted from life, and although no portraits of Shakespeare are actually so proved, the Chandos was certainly made with the approval of his intimate associates, and bears internal evidence of genuineness. The Chandos portrait is the first of the three most widely accepted likenesses of Shakespeare, and the only painting among the three. These are the Chandos painting, the Droeshout engraving from the first folio edition of the plays, and the memorial bust in Stratford Church. The Chandos portrait was purchased for three hundred and fifty-five guineas at the Stowe sale, in 1848, and remained in private hands until 1856, when it was presented to the British Nation.



ROOM IN WHICH SHAKESPEARE WAS BORN.

The 350th anniversary of Shakespeare's birth will be celebrated next week throughout the world. The New York Times will co-operate in this commemoration by giving every reader next Sunday a beautiful rotogravure copy of the famous Chandos portrait of Shakespeare now hanging in the National Gallery in London. This portrait is a fine example of rotogravure art reproduction, and presents all the rich and delicate tinting of the most beautiful photogravures. Good copies of Shakespeare portraits are very difficult to obtain, and the few that are offered for sale are expensive. Here is an opportunity for every reader of The New York Times to get a portrait of good size (10½ by 15) on special paper and suitable for framing.

THOSE ST. GALL EMBROIDERIES

A Change May Be Made in the Manner of Fixing Customs Duties on Them.

TRYING TO FIND VALUES

It was said yesterday that as a result of the recent visit of special agents to St. Gall, reinforced by conferences with Swiss embroidery importers of this city, the Treasury Department is confronted with the problem of doing away entirely with the St. Gall stitch-rate schedule as a basis for the ascertainment of duties on the goods, and the substitution of the plan pursued generally in other lines of imports, namely, that of assessing duties "upon the actual market value or wholesale price thereof, at the time of exportation to the United States, in the principal markets of the country whence exported."

The Swiss manufacturers refused to show their books as to cost of production of goods made for sale in European countries, basing the refusal on the ground that, as the embroideries shipped to this country were different from the lines sold to the Continental countries, the information sought by the investigators is irrelevant and immaterial.

According to well informed persons, the special agents have come home with an entirely contrary view of the relevancy of these data. They believe that the differences in manufacture in the Swiss embroideries sold here and those disposed of abroad are not, except in a few lines, so material as to preclude the existence of a market in Switzerland broad enough to form a basis for levying a duty in the same manner as is done in practically all other lines of merchandise, with the exception of Limoges china ware. In other words, the conclusion by the agents is, it is said, that a market does exist for the goods in Switzerland in the sense contemplated by the Customs administrative act.

Whether the commission will recommend the abrogation of the existing stitch-rate plan of estimating duties and the return to the regular system of finding dutiable values employed in other lines of importations is not known, but it is no secret that the special agents are chafing under the rebuff received from the manufacturers, and cannot be said to be in a very conciliatory frame of mind. Of course, other matters came up for discussion at the conferences held here the past fortnight, but these are said to be overshadowed by the possibility that the old system of appraisals may be revived.

It is not thought that the Government will punish the manufacturers of St. Gall for refusal to comply with the demand of the special agents to show their books by imposing an additional duty of 15 per cent. ad valorem, owing to the official representations made by foreign Governments to the Department of State. These representations are that such action by the Treasury Department would be regarded as unwarranted interference with the rights of its subjects or citizens, as the case might be.

While it happens that the Secretary of the Treasury is vested under the present law with discretion whether this feature of the act shall be enforced, there appears a disposition in certain high tariff quarters to find a way, if possible, to bring about the enforcement of the provision, either by amendment of the existing administrative law, or by some judicial action. Those interested in having this section of the law made effective generally said yesterday they are not ready to make public their plans. It was pointed out, however, that, although the Attorney General wrote an opinion holding the 5 per cent. American ship discriminatory clause of the new tariff inoperative, a way was found to get the issue before the Board of General Appraisers and the Customs Court.

If the present plans of the persons back of the movement take definite shape, it is assumed the issue will relate to some line of merchandise other than St. Gall embroideries. Representatives of certain American industries hold that the provision was incorporated in the present law for the first time in the history of American tariff making, and that its purpose is to provide adequate protection to domestic industries in cases where it is apparent that foreign exporters and their connections here are attempting unfairly to understate values. The committee appointed by several textile organizations to watch the administration of the new law is said to have considered this matter, while a permanent high tariff organization is also said to have planned action in a special test case.

C. W. MORSE FORGETFUL.

Appears Again for Examination Regarding Bank Loan.

Charles W. Morse, looking hale and hearty, appeared once more yesterday afternoon at the office of Ferdinand E. M. Bullowa at 32 Nassau Street to be interrogated before Miss Mary Weardell, a notary public, in the suit brought by the Western Development Company against John W. McKinnon, agent for the shareholders of the National Bank of North America. The suit involves a loan of $126,000 by the bank, and the securities, amounting to $200,000, put up to cover it.

The examination of Mr. Morse was in private, but it was stated afterward that he did not appear to have a very clear memory as to the transaction.

Efforts were being made, Mr. Bullowa said, to reconstruct the situation, and it was hoped that when all the facts had been brought together and the lawyers put in a position to press their points home, Mr. Morse's memory would be refreshed.

The examination was adjourned until Thursday afternoon.

Among the mill Treasurers who will be in the city to-day are Edward Barker of the Flint Mills of Fall River, Mass., and N. E. Borden, Jr., of the Barnard Manufacturing Company of the same city.

J. Randolph Coolidge of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and E. H. Adams, the representative of a similar organization in Chicago, will be the speakers at the April luncheon meeting of the Members' Council of the Merchants' Association, which will be held at the Hotel Astor on Wednesday, April 22.

Ralph M. Odell, commercial agent of the Commerce Bureau, has been ordered to duty for the next three months at the local office, in the Custom House, to assist George W. Doonan, the agent in charge. He will address the American Cotton Manufacturers in this city on April 27, his subject being "Cotton Goods Export Trade." Three days later, at Boston, he will speak before the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers on "Africa as a Market for American Cotton Goods."

THE BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday ... 3½ @ 4% for the best names.
Saturday .... 3½ @ 4% " " "

He Took His Time.

A manufacturing clothier received an ingenious letter which provided considerable amusement to the executives of the concern. The letter was from a retailer who had sent in an order nearly six months ago. The goods were shipped a few weeks ago, and a part of the consignment was returned. In explanation the retailer wrote that the returns were merchandise he did not need but forgot to cancel.

Bridge Steelmakers Active.

According to information furnished by B. E. Gifford, Secretary of the Bridge Builders and Structural Society of this city, it was shown at the April meeting of this organization that during the month of March 76 per cent. of the entire capacity of the bridge and structural shops of the country was contracted for. This result was obtained from carefully compiled reports received from producing centres.

Commission Throwsters to Meet.

By the direction of the Chairman, a meeting of the commission trowsters' division of the Silk Association of America has been called for Friday of this week. The meeting, which will be held in the rooms of the association at 354 Fourth Avenue, is called for the purpose of forming a permanent organization, voting on the report that will be rendered by the Committee on Bylaws, and any other business that may be presented.

What Is Wanted In Ties.

Men's neckwear manufacturers report that the Easter business done has proved particularly satisfactory. Interest now centres on goods suitable for Summer wear. Washable crêpes shown in stripes and figured effects seem to have the call. For the Fall a tendency for knitted ties in the wider widths is noted. One manufacturer reports a brisk demand for a tie in a woven Scotch plaid effect. This article is offered in 16 color combinations. The plaid design falls under the knot in one style. Other designs are shown in all-over effects.

Gray Goods Novelties Active.

Some large sales of organdies and mock leno specialties were reported in the local gray goods market yesterday, but printcloths were very quiet. Some of the best sales of the latter were made on 38½-inch 64-60s at 5 1-16 cents and on 39-inch 68-72s at 5¾ cents. The price tone of the market for printcloths was firm despite the quiet that prevailed. Few brokers are in a position or willing to forecast the immediate future of the market, but there is a general feeling that stocks are in such a condition all around that anything like a real buying movement will put prices up. There was some fair business booked on sheetings during the day.

Knit Goods Condition Mixed.

While reports from local jobbers of underwear and hosiery indicate that spot business for the present season continues to keep ahead of last year by a small margin, they are unanimous in the statement that orders received from the men now on the road with Fall merchandise are far from satisfactory. Just now much of this conservatism on the part of the buyers is due to seeing their Spring goods lying practically untouched because of the unseasonable weather is problematical, but the fact remains that the wholesalers would certainly welcome the balmy breezes that are generally obtainable in this climate after the official declaration of Spring. In the primary end of the market, repeat orders from the jobbers are coming in in a fair way, and some of the mills have all the business they can handle for the current season. Others, however, still have plenty of room on their books. Some more advance orders for Fall goods would be generally welcome also.

Broadcloths Going Big.

Broadcloths are going big for Fall, and the jobbers' salesmen now on the road are turning in some very good orders on them. One of the big operators received orders over Sunday from territory extending from Boston, Mass., to Beaumont, Texas, and broadcloths were favored in all of them. Wool challies were also included in these orders, as well as serges. Roman stripe effects in serges are being taken especially well, and the vogue for plaids in the outlying districts seems to be waning in favor of these effects. Broadcloths are also playing active parts in the spot business of the moment, and one of the prominent jobbers will put on display to-day a wide variety of these goods. Practically all grades and colorings will be shown, and the prices on them range from 75 cents a yard to $1.25. Both imported and domestic goods, in 50 and 54 inch widths, are included in the offerings. All of these goods will be available for immediate delivery. A collection of serges in popular colorings, ranging in price from 55 cents a yard to $1, will also be shown to-day.

Spot Shoe Business Good.

While the annual post-Easter lull was evident in the business done in the local shoe market yesterday, the wholesalers for the most part agreed that spot business in the last week or ten days had been very active. In some instances it was said that the business done in the last few days before Easter was considerably ahead of that done a year ago. One of the features of this business, it was said, was the large percentage of high shoes asked for by the dealers, the holdover of the Winter weather having held the call for oxfords to lower levels than usual at this time of the year. A summary of the business booked on the road this year for Spring by the wholesalers shows it to be up to that of last year with the leading houses, and comfortably ahead of last year's total with some of them. The anxiety due to the recent revision of the tariff seems now to have worn away, and the greatest worry of the wholesalers at the moment is how to get prices for their merchandise that are commensurate with the present high cost of leather and other materials that enter the modern shoe. Spring reorders are said to be coming in a bit slowly, but the leading members of the trade expect that the close of the season will find business in a position to compare very favorably with that of last year.

Importers Really Jobbers.

In a recent paragraph in this column a lace importer criticised the advertisement of an American manufacturer of embroideries which appeared in one of the trade journals and which said that "they catered exclusively to the importing trade." Yesterday an authority on matters pertaining to the embroidery trade commented on this paragraph as follows: "The criticism was hardly fair to the advertiser or to the importers. Almost every business man appreciates the significance of the modern term 'importer.' There was a time some years ago when certain classes of trade were exclusively in import, but with American progress many kinds of domestic goods are not indispensable. Consequently, importers in various lines do a considerable business in goods of American manufacture. The importer of to-day, despite his foreign connections, is in most cases a jobber, but if he were called a jobber he would lose the dignity of his position. It would place him in relatively the same position as the small firms in the side streets which are known as jobbers. The term importer implies exclusiveness of production, advanced novelties, and high quality. Almost every buyer knows, or should know, that importers sell domestic goods, and it is unfortunate that THE TIMES should be led into the insinuation that there is anything questionable in a domestic manufacturer selling his wares to an importer. Perhaps it would be better if the latter would call himself an importer and jobber, for in this way any feeling that the importer imposes on the buyer could be done away with."

HEARING FROM SALESMEN.

Although the smaller merchants were pretty well occupied attending to their customers' before Easter needs, last week's business with the manufacturing clothiers was exceptionally good. Yesterday there was a rush of Fall orders from the men on the road, and in consequence prospects just now are looking very bright in the trade. The nature of the demand is general with quiet patterns, mostly acquired. The overcoat situation has improved somewhat by the popularity of the balmacaan and manufacturers seem agreed that this style will go big for the Fall with a softening, however, of the present rather freakish designs. The opinion seems to prevail that retailers will realize later on that their stocks of overcoats need replenishing and rush in their orders at the last minute. Mackinaws for children's wear are increasing in popularity. This style, however, is not expected to figure very largely in the other branches.

A perplexing situation confronts manufacturers in the advances being made continually by the mills. If orders are booked on a style that is advanced, the manufacturer has to take the difference out of his pockets. If the advance is considerable, either a loss must be taken or the style thrown out of the line. Manufacturers prefer the latter course. Advancing the prices on a style to a retailer to correspond with the increasing cost of the fabric has the disadvantage. One retailer may purchase before the advance, another after it has been made. A chance comparison of notes between the two would lead the latter to suppose that the manufacturer was trying to gouge him, a supposition the manufacturer does not care to foster.

Sues H. Marquard & Co.

Abraham Z. Ratner, a resident of Mexico, began suit yesterday in the Federal District Court through his counsel Guggenheimer, Untermyer & Marshall of 37 Wall Street, against H. Marquard & Co. of 35 William Street. He is seeking to recover $40,000, which he alleges he loaned the defendants on Jan. 27 on promise of repayment on demand.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES

Further information may be obtained from the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Washington, D. C., or at the branch offices of the Bureau, 315 Custom House, by giving the number of the item referred to:

12,891. MOTOR STREET CARS AND TRAILERS.—A European city is in the market for thirty-five new motor street cars and forty trailer street cars. The type desired is the side-seated, inclosed platform style, and about $270,000 will be expended for this rolling stock.

12,892. MOVING PICTURE THEATRE AND EQUIPMENT.—An American Consul reports that a new moving picture theatre is being erected in his district at an estimated cost of $6,000 or $7,000. The theatre will have a seating capacity of about 800, and the proprietors have informed the Consul that they will need that number of opera chairs.

12,893. AGRICULTURAL MACHINERY AND IMPLEMENTS.—A business firm in India informs an American Consular officer that it desires to be put in communication with American manufacturers of steam plows driven by oil-burning engines, seeders, cultivators, and rice-thrashing and harvesting machinery.

12,894. ELECTRIC AUTOMOBILES.—A report from an American Consular officer states that a resident of his district has asked for the names of American manufacturers of small electric automobiles of 4-8 horse power.

12,895. LINOLEUM.—An important importer in the Near East desires connections with American exporters of linoleum, width up to four yards and more if possible, quality similar to that produced in English centres. The Consul who furnished these particulars writes that the city in question consumes over $8,000 worth of linoleum annually, a good share of which may be secured if prices and qualities are competitive.

12,896. INSURANCE AGENCIES.—An American Minister reports that there is an opening in the country in which he is located for American marine and fire insurance.

12,897. AUTOMOBILES.—A company is being incorporated for the purpose of connecting two cities in the West Indies by a daily automobile service. An American Consul states that the service is to be started within three months with one twelve-passenger car. As soon as the service requires it another will be put on. It has not yet been decided what make of cars to purchase, but the management favors American machines and will be glad to hear from American manufacturers and to receive catalogues, &c.

12,898. MATCH-MAKING MACHINERY.—An American Consular officer in Russia reports that a resident of his district desires the names of American factories constructing automatic machinery for making matches, also the names of match factories in the United States.

12,899. PAPER.—An old-established and reliable American printing concern in Latin America, with American management, desires to get in touch with the leading paper manufacturers in the United States with a view to arranging for the agency of all kinds of American paper.

12,900. SEWERAGE SYSTEM.—An American Consul states that tenders for a sewerage system in his district will be received until May 18. This work will include five miles of piping, storage tanks, &c.

12,901. RAILWAY MATERIAL AND ACCESSORIES.—The American Consulate at Lourenco Marques, Portuguese East Africa, has forwarded a translation of a call for tenders on 3,000 tons of rails and accessories. No firm unrepresented locally can tender, and it may be too late for American manufacturers to arrange representation for the present tenders, as bids must be received by May 18. However, the Consul has furnished the names of firms which might be approached to act as intermediaries in future business. The Consul has also forwarded specifications and blue prints for 1,500 tons of light rails and accessories, which can be obtained from the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

12,902. MOVING-PICTURE THEATRE SUPPLIES.—An inquirer in a Latin-American country who is about to open a new moving-picture theatre wishes to secure supplies for the same, and articles such as vending machines, &c., to place in the lobby. The inquirer desires information regarding prices, terms, &c., of the following articles: Advertising novelties, roll tickets, electric signs, toy balloons, second-hand films, special films illustrating dances, popular songs in Spanish with illustrated slides, chocolate and candy vending machines, orchestra music, uniforms for ushers, &c., electric automatic pianos, electric bells, automatic photograph machines, lobby display articles, electric fountains, special screens, &c. Correspondence may be in English, but slides, films, &c., are intended for exhibition before Spanish-reading public, and must be in that language.

12,903. MACHINERY OF VARIOUS KINDS.—A Government official in a South American country wants catalogues, prices, illustrations, &c., of machines for making up to 1,000 cans daily, machines to be run by motor, the largest to hold up to 13 pounds of fish, cans to be hermetically sealed by the machine. He desires also to know prices of lithographing machines for the labels, which are to be in colors. Prices are desired on ice-making machines for producing 1, 2, and 3 tons daily. He also wants to know the cost of getting a suitable man to take charge of running these machines.

12,904. LAUNCHES, ENGINES, AND BRIDGES.—The Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce is in receipt of a communication stating that a Latin-American official needs a few small launches for river service. Petroleum is found in abundance in the country in question, and he is therefore interested in petroleum engines for boats as well as for pumping water for irrigation purposes, for cattle, &c. He is much interested in getting bridges of steel or iron for the numerous narrow rivers and for one or two wide rivers.

12,905. AMERICAN GOODS OF VARIOUS KINDS.—An American Consul in the Near East reports that an important importing and wholesale house in his district desires to receive catalogues and price lists, showing discounts, from American manufacturers of clocks and watches, clothing for men, women, and children, canned goods, cotton piece goods, firearms, groceries, haberdashery, household articles, porcelain, shoes, toilet articles, jewelry, perfumes, silk goods, soaps, liquors, and woolen goods.

12,906. MODERN GAS TOOLS.—An importing firm in a European country informs an American Consulate that there is a demand for modern American gas tools, such as are used in laying gas pipe, their connections, &c. Correspondence may be in English.

Investments

The well balanced list of investments is as rare as it is desirable. Most investment lists, for example, contain too much of stocks and not enough bonds—perhaps too much railroad in proportion to industrial and public utility, or perhaps too much of the risk is centered in the East or in the West.

Some slight readjustment may improve the character of the entire investment, strengthening the safety by distributing the risk, and at the same time increasing the income return.

We shall be glad to look over your investment list and make suggestions.

Some Facts For Investors

Railroads operating in the southern section of the United States show an increase in net earnings as compared with the previous year, whereas those operating in other sections exhibit decreases of from one to seventeen per cent. We suggest that those having funds to invest write for Circular G-84, which describes a First Mortgage Bond, yielding almost 6%, of a company supplying gas, electricity and street railway service in one of the most prosperous states of the southern group.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Prices Fall Further Under Lead of Steel—Preparations for New Financing.

While on the stock Exchange interest was centred mainly in the continued trading pressure on United States Steel, and the net loss of over a point in that stock, the financial community was busy chiefly with the preparations for the important new financing already under way or soon to be announced. The New York Central bond issue was formally announced yesterday, and it was felt that plans for further financing would be influenced to some extent by the reception accorded to this issue. In this connection interest attached to the report that the syndicate underwriting the New York Central bonds was oversubscribed.

Many houses were arranging to put in bids at to-morrow's sale of New York City bonds, and it was expected more confidently than ever that the results of this flotation would be highly satisfactory. During the recent well-sustained demand for municipal issues it is believed that many prospective buyers kept in mind the likelihood of a large issue of bonds by New York City this Spring, and this fact is relied on in some banking quarters to stimulate materially the demand for these new bonds. In addition to this New York City and New York Central financing it is known that the New Haven has for some time been at work on plans to provide for the funds which it requires. It was thought yesterday that an early announcement regarding these plans was likely. The great ease in money, while it bears, of course, the stamp of slackened trade, is proving very helpful in the working out of plans for providing funds to meet maturing obligations. Thus, at least some offset is afforded to the disadvantage of reduced trade demands for money.

The action of the stock market yesterday was based on no fresh news. The decline centred largely around the fall in United States Steel, which was, of course, closely connected with the unfavorable drift of most recent advices from the steel trade. The emphasis which at the moment is being laid on the declining volume of orders for steel products and on the inroads which have been made into steel company earnings by lowered prices as well as reduced output, takes very little count of the chance of a rapid change for the better in the steel trade such as could be counted on to follow a grant of the railway rate increase or which might come about through some other agency. It is because the majority see no indication of a very early change of this kind that the trading element has lately been disposed to concentrate much selling pressure upon the Steel shares.

The stock market, after a further decline at the opening, rallied with some spirit, and there seemed more disposition than there had been for some time to contest any further lowering of quotations, but it became dull on the recovery, and later in the day prices yielded rather sharply to renewed selling pressure. Thanks to the morning recovery the later declines did not effect large net losses in more than a few of the active issues. Trading was more active, but was not well distributed, considerably more than a third of the total being represented by the dealings in United States Steel.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Steady Buying of Small Odd Lots.

Stock Exchange houses which handle more investment than speculative orders by wire report that April has brought in a steady flow of buying of odd lots of stock. From the Middle West and small cities of the Atlantic States there has been a call for the leading dividend paying issues in batches of from three to twelve shares. Some brokers credit a part of the resistance of Steel to attack until the last few business days to the composite force of dribbling purchases by investors who believe that the return made on the stock at current prices goes far to offset the effect of the recession in the steel business. Pennsylvania is another stock mentioned as a favorite of the odd-lot buyer and also Great Northern, Northern Pacific, Southern Pacific, and other prominent railroad issues whose dividends have been paid on the present basis for some years.

How the Market "Feels" to Some.

In the stock market the wish is frequently father to the thought, especially when the tendency of prices is downward, or during a period in which stocks have been drifting. There were traders who nodded sagely as they studied the tape yesterday and then said that the atmosphere of the Street seemed to them about the same as it was last June shortly before the market started upward. When asked for evidence supporting this personal belief, none was forthcoming, which was not surprising, as the traders were evidently influenced by spiritual and not material factors. When it was pointed out to them that the status of the market was quite different from last June, with Steel selling about 10 points higher than its low price of that month and other shares substantially above their level at that time, they dropped the subject.

Reticent As to City Bonds.

None of the banks and bond houses which will probably appear in the bidding for New York City bonds to-morrow would admit yesterday that it had arranged to go into a syndicate, and if Controller Prendergast had made a canvass of the district he might have become discouraged over the prospect. The new municipal building is so near to the financial centre that a messenger can be dispatched from there ten minutes before the sale and get a bid entered, so that it has become a popular custom to fill in the figures for the larger bids as late as possible. Consequently, until the last minute before the Deputy Controller begins to read the tenders, bond men can truthfully express uncertainty as to their entering the competition. It is a fair wager that at least one syndicate of Wall Street houses submits a bid for all or none, and the number of bids for large blocks of bonds is expected to make the sale largely oversubscribed. J. P. Morgan & Co. do not plan to participate in this sale, but it is regarded as likely that the National City Bank, Guaranty Trust Company, William A. Read & Co., Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Harris, Forbes, N. W. Halsey, and most of the other better known bond houses will be heard from at the sale.

⁂

A Friendly Market.

The market for bonds such as New York City has to sell has improved even in the last two weeks. It is still hard to place railroad and industrial issues which cannot claim membership in the gilt-edge group, but bonds of the better grade, as well as short-term issues, have been well absorbed. An institution which had an order for $1,000,000 of the St. Paul 4½s recently sold made a careful hunt for holders who would sell at an advance over the prevailing market price, which itself showed a handsome profit over the figure at which the issue was put out, without getting more than a small proportion of the amount wanted. Some of the large trust companies, which had been allowing interest at 3 per cent. on certificates of deposit, have lowered their rate to 2½ per cent., and this factor is expected to result in a better investment demand. Considering the general situation, New York is entering the bond market at a very opportune time.

Rock Island Report Soon.

E. W. McKenna, engaged by the Rock Island Bondholders' Protective Committee to make an examination of the property on which to base estimates of the amount of money needed for its rehabilitation, has completed his examination, and is back in Chicago. His report is looked for a week from to-day. In the meantime, nothing is being done toward working out a plan for reorganization, both the stockholders and bondholders desiring to know what view Mr. McKenna will take of the budget drawn up by Chairman Schumacher.

⁂

A Dull Day in Copper.

With business slowed down at the foreign centres because of the religious holiday, the copper market was practically at a standstill yesterday. Domestic buying was as flat as at any time this Spring and this meant that sellers to the domestic trade sat in their offices with little to do but kill time. The seasonal demand, which would be heavy at this time in a year of normal requirements among manufacturers, has not yet made any sign of appearing, and producers are becoming reconciled to a delay which they fear may continue until some stimulus to general business comes along. The larger selling agencies are holding the price of electrolytic to 14¾ cents a pound.

RATE CASE DECISION EXPECTED BY JUNE 1

CUMMINS ARRAIGNS ROADS

Senator Asserts That They Are Trying to Arouse Public Sympathy by False Pretenses.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The Interstate Commerce Commission made an announcement to-day telling of another step in the direction of expediting its decision on the application of the Eastern railroads for permission to make a horizontal advance of 5 per cent. in their freight rates. The commission gave notice that the record of the main issue involved had been closed, and that arguments would be heard on April 27. All briefs must be filed by that time.

This action indicates that the decision will be forthcoming by June 1, which is about a month prior to the time expected when the commission undertook to investigate a number of questions related to the application for the increase, such as free car spotting and other free services to carriers and to industrial concerns which operated railways.

The record will not be closed as to the related matters involved in the inquiry until the replies of the carriers on those questions, submitted by the commission in its circular letters of Dec. 20, 1913, and Feb. 26, 1914, have been filed. The investigations by the commission in connection therewith, now approaching completion, have been placed on record, and until the hearing now in contemplation upon these last mentioned matters have been had.

Senator Cummins charged on the floor of the Senate to-day that a persistent and widespread campaign was being conducted to arouse public sympathy for the request for a 5 per cent. increase in freight rates on Eastern railroads. The Senator expressed confidence that the Interstate Commerce Commission would decide the question on its merits, but said the public was being misled by incorrect and exaggerated statements.

Senator Cummins compared the railroad situation with the Panama Canal tolls question, declaring that an advance in railroad rates of 5 per cent. would amount in one year to more than all the tolls paid by all the ships that would go through the canal in twelve or fifteen years, and more than American coastwise ships, if they paid full tolls, would be charged in half a century.

"In connection with the proceedings before the commission," he continued, "there is in progress the most comprehensive, energetic, and persistent campaign that I have ever witnessed to make the people of the country believe that the effort of the Government to regulate railways, railway rates, and railway practices has resulted in dismal, disastrous failure; that the Government in its endeavor to protect the people has impoverished the transportation companies; that it has driven them to the very verge of bankruptcy and ruin; that it has destroyed their credit and rendered them incapable of performing the service which commerce demands; that it has outlawed them from the confidence of capital and exiled them from the field of the investor.

"This extraordinary campaign has filled the newspapers with headlines, with dispatches, with letters, and with editorials. It has taken possession of the magazines out of which week after week issue appeals for justice to the decadent railroads and to despondent railroad managers, and it gives dinners and holds public banquets, where the eloquence of orators paints lurid pictures of empty treasuries, of worn-out tracks, of falling bridges, and dilapidated equipment.

"I do not assert that the campaign is being carried on to affect the commission, for the railroad companies know that it cannot be swerved a hair's breadth from the path of its duty, but I do assert that the movers of this campaign are trying to do an infinitely more objectionable thing. They are trying to mislead and pervert the judgment of the people. They are trying to awaken sympathy by false pretenses. They are trying to deceive the country with exaggerated cries of suffering and distress in order to escape the control which experience has demonstrated should be imposed upon all corporations which undertake a public service.

"We ought to understand that we are dealing with the most perfect and complete railroad system that this world has ever seen, prepared to render more and better service than it has ever rendered before, and all the declamations about railroads passing into decay and becoming unsafe or insufficient is the rankest, baldest nonsense.

"It is beyond doubt that the railroads are now experiencing a somewhat severe depression. It is sufficient to say that for some reason people are not buying as much as they did, manufacturers are not producing as much as they did, and consequently there is not so much to haul from one part of the country to another. I hope and I may add it is my belief that these distressing conditions will be temporary and that speedily business will resume its normal conditions."

Senator Cummins said that other industries were suffering as well as the railroads, and this passing fluctuation in trade could not be given as a reason why railroad rates should be increased.

Discussing the net revenues of the railroads the Senator said they amounted to $328,576,192 in 1890 and $814,331,842 in 1913, a net increase of 147.80 per cent. over 1890. He added that the railroads had earned enough to pay 7 per cent. upon all their capital stock, but generally paid no more than 5 per cent.

PROPOSE FRISCO LEVY.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, April 13.—A plan for the reorganization of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad and to take it out of the hands of the receivers, will be placed before the Bondholders' Committee in a few days.

The plan contemplates the voluntary retirement of B. F. Yoakum, as Chairman of the Board of Directors, and an assessment of 15 to 20 per cent. on all outstanding mortgage bonds of $50,000,000 and on $50,000,000 of outstanding stock.

The plan became known here to-day after the arrival of J. O. O'Keefe, J. W. McCullough and W. C. Dufour, receivers for the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway, which formerly was a part of the Frisco. If the Bondholders' Committee approves the levy, it is said, the Frisco will be out of the hands of receivers within ninety days. Yoakum is interested in the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Company, which operates between New Orleans and Laredo, Texas. This company is now being reorganized through the receivership and will be out of the hands of the receivers soon, it is said. It is believed that Yoakum will be one of the powers in the reorganization of New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Company and will voluntarily surrender his place with the Frisco.

TO UNDERWRITE WABASH.

Syndicate Stands Ready to Back Reorganization.

If the reorganization plan for the Wabash Railroad is approved by the State commissions to which it is being submitted the necessary underwriting for putting the plan into effect will be obtained. It is expected that Kuhn, Loeb & Co. will head a syndicate which stands ready to guarantee the sale of the new securities if the terms agreed upon become effective.

More than $30,000,000 in cash will be obtained to launch the reorganized property, of which $18,500,000 is to be supplied by Wabash security holders. An assessment of $20 a share is to be levied on both the preferred and common stocks. Another $12,500,000 will be realized from the sale of $14,000,000 new first refunding and extension 5 per cent. bonds, to be underwritten at 85. The company should realize another $2,250,000 in cash from the Wabash-Pittsburgh Terminal Railway in settlement of about $7,000,000 claims against that company, which is also in receivership. The Missouri Pacific and St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern, which holds $5,000,000 of Wabash stock, are not likely to pay their assessment.

All of the stock to be put out under the reorganization will be of one class. The present extension 4 per cent. bondholders will receive 110 per cent. in new adjustment income 5 per cent. bonds, this including an allowance for their defaulted interest. The preferred stockholders will get 95 per cent. in common stock on payment of their assessment, while the present common stockholders will get 83 per cent. in new stock.

Another Cut in Kansas Oil.

INDEPENDENCE, Kan., April 13.—Another cut of five cents in the price of crude oil in the Kansas-Oklahoma fields was announced here to-day, making the present quotation 90 cents a barrel. This is the third five-cent drop in the price within a week. Overproduction is assigned as the cause.

Federal Banking Laws in One Book.

The National City Bank has issued a volume containing the Federal Reserve act, the National Bank act and all other Federal laws relating to banking. It includes complete indexes. Regulations made by the Reserve Bank Organization Committee and opinions of the Attorney General are also given.

MORGAN & CO. TAKE NEW CENTRAL BONDS

$40,000,000 Accepted by Them, with an Option on Remaining $30,000,000.

LAKE SHORE MERGER VOTED

Other Steps Necessary to Complete the Consolidation Will Now Be Taken.

Of the $70,000,000 of New York Central 100-year refunding and improvement mortgage bonds recently authorized by the up-State Publice Service Commission under the newly created $500,000,000 mortgage, $40,000,000 have been sold by the railroad to J. P. Morgan & Co. as the managers of an underwriting syndicate, while the same bankers have received an option for six months on the remaining $30,000,000 authorized. It is stated that proceeds from the sale of the $70,000,000 will care for all of the company's needs in the current year.

The new bonds are to bear interest at 4½ per cent., and it is expected that the public offering price will be around 96. This indicates that the railroad will net 94½ per cent. Morgan & Co. have already placed privately $15,000,000 of this offering, leaving $25,000,000 to be put on the market at this time.

The new issue is meeting with a favorable reception from the bond houses invited to participate in the sale, and it is considered likely that the option on the balance will be exercised at an early date. Morgan & Co. are forming what is known as a selling syndicate, that is it is inviting participation only of houses which deal directly with investors.

President Smith announced yesterday that holders of more than 75 per cent. of the New York Central's 3½ per cent. Lake Shore collaterals had consented to the consolidation of the Lake Shore with the parent company. The Guaranty Trust Company as trustee named in the indenture under which the collaterals were issued, is prepared at any time to execute to the Central a proxy authorizing the voting of 452,892 shares of Lake Shore stock in favor of the consolidation plan.

Steps to consolidate the Lake Shore with the Central were taken a number of months ago, but it was necessary to secure the assents of the holders of about $68,000,000 of the $90,578,000 of 3½ per cent. collaterals to the proposed exchange for 4 per cent. New York Central bonds before the merger could be made effective. As a large proportion of the bonds are not registered, it proved a slow process to reach the requisite number of holders.

President Smith said yesterday that it was the intention of the companies to proceed at once to the other steps necessary to effect the consolidation. The Directors will execute an agreement, which will have to be ratified by two-thirds of the holders of stock of the Lake Shore and New York Central and by the railway commissions of the States through which the two roads run.

President Smith said that his company recognized the obligation resting upon it as the holder of nine-tenths of Lake Shore's stock to see to it that the minority holders were treated fairly. It is understood that the committee headed by Henry Evans to look after the interests of some of the minority shareholders has not effected a settlement with the Central management.

COMMERCIAL PAPER QUIET.

CHICAGO, April 13.—The market for commercial paper in Chicago is quiet. Rates hold about the same as they have for several weeks past, ranging from 4 to 5 per cent., depending largely on the quality of the paper.

Chicago banks are buying very little paper at present. Most of the national banks report that they find employment for their funds outside the commercial paper market. Country banks likewise are doing little buying just now.

It is probably true that many of the national banks are holding funds for the purpose of taking care of future requirements, especially in view of the new currency law, which will be put into active operation within the next few months. Some of the State banks which are contemplating entry into the Federal reserve system undoubtedly are actuated by the same motives.

NEW JERSEY BANKS REPLY.

No Topheaviness by Adding Them to This District, They Say.

Bankers of Northern New Jersey, who would far rather belong to the Federal reserve district centred in New York than to the Philadelphia district, take exception to the explanation given by the Federal Reserve Organization Committee that they were included in the Philadelphia division because the committee feared that the New York district would be too large if the New Jersey banks were placed in it. They say that the capital increase of the New York bank, necessitated by inclusion of the New Jersey banks, would not be great enough to cause any topheaviness. There are about 125 New Jersey banks whose interests have been forcibly centred at Philadelphia, all of which have voted unanimously to be comprised in the New York district.

Walter M. Van Deusen, Secretary of the Currency Committee of the New Jersey Bankers' Association, said yesterday that the combined capital of the protesting banks was about $30,000,000. Under the new banking law each institution must subscribe to an amount of stock of the Federal Reserve Bank equal to 6 per cent. of its capital. On this basis the banks, all told, would add $1,800,000 to the New York district.

In round figures the capital of the New York bank will be $20,687,000 anyway, according to Mr. Van Deusen's were added the Federal reserve bank's were added the Federal Reserve bank's capital would be approximately $22,487,000, and if the contribution of these institutions were to be subtracted from the Philadelphia bank its capital would be about $11,193,000.

Reserve banks with a capital of $8,000,000 or more would be Chicago with $13,151,000, Cleveland with $11,021,000, Boston with $9,930,000, and San Francisco with $8,115,000, while the others fall below $7,000,000.

STOCK EXCHANGE OFFICIALS

URGES COPPER CASE REVIEW

A. S. Bigelow Says Old Dominion Withheld Evidence.

BOSTON, April 13.—Albert S. Bigelow of Boston, who has nearly liquidated a judgment of $2,124,679 obtained against him by the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company for alleged secret profits in the sale of the Old Dominion Copper Company, to-day filed a petition in the Supreme Court for a review of the case on the ground that important testimony had been withheld by the Old Dominion.

The litigation over the sale of the first Old Dominion Company to the second company of the same name has extended over seven years and included appeals to the Supreme Court of the United States.

The original suit charged that Bigelow and Leonard Lewisohn, of New York, in the sale of the Old Dominion Mining Company of Baltimore to the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company, received $3,250,000. This sum the court found was much more than the actual value of the properties sold.

Bigelow now says that while the suits were pending the officials of the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company had ascertained that the value of the mining property conveyed was more than $4,000,000.

ABSOLVES FRUIT LAND CO.

Indictments Charging Fraud Against Florida Concern Dismissed.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 13.—Indictments charging the Florida Fruit Lands Company and R. J. Bolles and J. L. Billingsley, its officers, with fraudulent use of the mails in promoting the sale of 180,000 acres of land in the Florida Everglades, were dismissed by United States Commissioner Brennen here to-day. Commissioner Brennen held that evidence had been submitted showing that the company and its officers were guiltless of fraud or fraudulent intent.

Another charge of using the mails to conduct a lottery still is pending against the Fruit Lands Company and officers in charge of the sale of the Everglades tracts. Federal authorities said to-day that the case would be further prosecuted at Kansas City, where the indictments were returned.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Pine Street Building in $800,000 Deal for Brooklyn Property—Private House Buyers—Realty Company Sells Sixteen Bronx Flats for About $450,000—Staten Island Farm Sale.

In the downtown section of the city the sale of the three-story building at 38 Pine Street, between Nassau and William Streets, within the fire insurance office district, was announced yesterday. The transaction involved several Brooklyn parcels in trade, the entire transaction representing realty valued at about $800,000. The Manhattan plot was sold by Edward King to the Arles Realty Company, of which Arthur Pinover is President. The building covers a plot 23.7 by 61.8, located between the buildings of the Hanover Fire Insurance Company and the London Assurance Society. It is assessed at $190,000, and has been held by the owner at $325,000.

In exchange for the Pine Street structure, Mr. Pinover has given four four-story flats occupying the block front on the south side of Caton Avenue, between Seventeenth and Eighteenth Streets, held at $325,000, and forty vacant Brooklyn lots, twenty of which comprise the block front on Twenty-second Avenue, between Sixty-seventh and Sixty-eighth Streets, and twenty on Sixty-eighth Street, between Twenty-first and Twenty-second Avenues. Plans for improving the property are being prepared.

The Private Dwelling Market.

Moore, Schutte & Co. have sold for the Merit Realty Company 427 Convent Avenue, a three-story and basement private dwelling, on a lot 16 by 85, to a client for investment.

Jacob J. Talbot has sold for Henry C. Fullan, H. Augusta Walsh, and Mary L. O'Shea, to a client, the four-story dwelling 331 West Forty-sixth Street, 19.6 by 100.5. John P. Kirwan & Sons represented the sellers.

Lowenfeld & Prager have bought from Emma W. Mehler 619 West End Avenue, southwest corner of Ninetieth Street, a four-story dwelling, on lot 24 by 90.

Investors Buy Tenements.

The E. A. Polak Realty Company has sold for De Grabin & Gottesman 180 East 117th Street, a five-story tenement, 25 by 100, to the Owners' Realty Company, and for the Meister & Bache Realty Company 37 West 114th Street, a five-story tenement, 25 by 100, to I. Dutsch and Phillip Gellis, for investment.

A Manhattan-Bronx Trade.

Nicholas Lopard has sold for Joseph Corbett the five-story brick flat 73 West 118th Street, Manhattan, to R. Plechner, who gave in part payment the two-family brick house 758 Beck Street, the Bronx.

Sixteen Bronx Flats Sold.

One of the largest deals of the year in the West Farms section of the Bronx was consummated yesterday when a group of sixteen new law tenements were sold by the Fleischman Realty Company to the John J. Tully Construction Company.

The property consists of thirteen five-story houses beginning at the northwest corner of 170th Street and extending northward to within 190 feet of Boston Road. Also three similar houses abutting on Wilkins Avenue. The structures are known as 1,501 to 1,525 Charlotte Street and 1,458 to 1,462 Wilkins Avenue.

The total frontage on Charlotte Street is 500 feet, with a depth of 100 feet, the five northerly ones fronting 40 feet and the remainder 37.5 feet each. The Wilkins Avenue houses each occupy a plot 37.5 by 100. According to report, the property will pass to the new owners for about $450,000.

Bronx Sales.

Cahn & Cahn have sold for cash for the Tully Construction Company 1,0 Simpson Street, a five-story new law apartment house, on plot 40 by 100, to an investor.

Kurz & Uren, Inc., have sold to the Daily Realty Company, 2,340 Belmont Avenue, the southeasterly corner of Crescent Avenue, a five-story new law apartment dwelling, having three stores and five families on a floor, size 77 by 96.

Brooklyn.

The McInerney Klinck Realty Company has sold the three-story one-family frame building, on the south side of Twelfth Street, 297 feet 10½ inches east of Fifth Avenue, on a plot 50 by 100 feet, for Dr. Frederick Quydort, to a client who will improve the plot by erecting a twelve-family, four-story modern apartment building, covering the entire plot.

The four-story apartment on the northwest corner of Cortelyou Road and Ocean Avenue, 95 by 118, has been sold by the Arundel Realty Company to Mrs. Alice G. McCoon, who gave in part payment the northeast corner of Court and Pacific Streets, a plot 100 by 150. John E. Henry, Jr., in conjunction with Maurice G. Straus, was the broker.

The Jewish congregation of Beth Jacob Anscher Scholom has purchased from the trustees the First United Presbyterian Church on South Third Street, near Marcy Avenue. The property was held at $20,750.

Shampan & Shampan have completed plans for three high-class apartment houses to be erected on a plot of 140 by 100, on the northside of McDonough Street, 360 feet east of Marcy Avenue, for the Sumner Development Company as owner, at a cost of $120,000.

On the site there is a brick mansion which will be demolished. Operations will be begun upon the approval of the plans from the various departments.

Resale of Staten Island Farm.

Mrs. Kate Poe Richardson sold through Cornelius G. Kolff to Mrs. Lydia H. Thomson the Williams Farm of five acres with house and stable on the Annadale Road, Annadale. This farm has changed hands three times in three years at advancing prices.

Leases.

William A. White & Sons have leased for the Cruikschank Company, as agents, the building at 32 North Moore Street to Scaramelli & Co., dealers in Italian groceries. The building adjoins 28 and 30, which were recently leased by the Burton Davis Company. William A. White & Sons have also leased to H. Muehlstein & Co., formerly of 32 North Moore Street, the six-story and basement building, 75 by 80, at the southeast corner of Hubert and Washington Streets. Both of these leases were made for a term of years.

Slawson & Hobbs have leased for the Wayside Realty Company, Arlington C. Hall, President, the dance hall and roof garden occupying the entire second floor of the building now in course of construction on the east side of Broadway from 134th to 135th Streets to the Salle de Danse Company, Edgar A. Mayer and Nathan Tekulskey. The lease is for ten years from Sept. 1 at an aggregate rent of $100,000. The hall will open on Labor Day. The theatre in the building was leased several weeks ago to the Wallingford Amusement Company.

Pease & Elliman have leased for Mary Solley to George Thompson a store at 589 Lexington Avenue, and for Walter J. N. Donovan to David Clarke's Sons a store at 2,146 Broadway.

Schindler & Liebler have leased for Moses Mayer the three-story dwelling at 262 East Seventy-eighth Street to a client.

Realty Notes.

The United Real Estate Owners' Associations will meet this evening at the Grand Union Hatel.

The M. Morgenthau, Jr., Company has placed a first mortgage loan of $45,000 for five years on the southeast corner of Wilkins Avenue and Jennings Street, a five-story apartment on lot 50 by 100.

Columbus O'D. Iselin of 3 West Fifty-second Street has started suit to restrain Margaret Flynn, a dressmaker of 29 West Fifty-second Street, from carrying on her business at that address. Mr. Iselin contends that the use of the property for dressmaking violates a restriction placed on the property many years ago by Benjamin Stevens and Augusta H. Holly, who formerly owned most of the block.

PRISON WALL GIVES AN EASY ESCAPE

HE DEPARTED AT NOON

Fourteen Other Prisoners in Police Court Ante-Room Shielded Him as He Worked.

Harry Grenett, a burglar, recently released from Sing Sing Prison, who was in fear of a life sentence for his latest crime, escaped from Essex Market Court at Second Avenue and First Street yesterday afternoon by cutting a hole in the wall of the detention pen. He wormed his way into the Magistrate's chamber, fled through a window to a fire escape on the second floor overhanging the avenue, and then swung down to the sidewalk fifteen feet below. An automobile provided by friends picked him up a moment after he had run around the corner at Second Avenue and First Street and carried him swiftly toward First Avenue.

There were fourteen other prisoners in the pen when he got away, but none attempted to follow him. It was between noon and 12:20 o'clock when the convict cut his way out. Court was in session, and ther were more than 100 persons in and around the court building, with a police court squad on one side of the big room. In spite of all this, the man was not missed until Magistrate Harris adjourned court for the noon recess at 12:30 o'clock, and, entering his rooms, noticed the holes in the wall and the open window.

Several near-by storekeepers told the police that they had seen a man answering Grenett's description, even to a light overcoat, jump into a waiting machine. Friends of Grenett had been around the court all morning, but they had been so closely watched that they were unable to get near him. When one of the court interpreters went out at noon he was accosted by a friend of Grenett, who asked how he could send lunch to the prisoner, and he was referred to the court attendants and the police.

Deputy Commissioner of Correction B. G. Lewis suspended Keeper Michael Whalen, who was in charge of the prisoners. Dr. Katharine B. Davis, Commissioner of Correction, ordered the keeper reinstated after she had made a personal investigation, assisted by Warden Mallon.

She found that the supposed solid wall through which Grenett had gone was nothing but a weak sheet of plaster and lathes. A light kick put a hole in the wall. With the tin cover of a cigarette box the convict had scraped away the plaster, and had then pulled away the lathes until he had an opening 14 by 18 inches. He left behind him the piece of tin bent in the shape of a rough scoop.

The escape was made from the women's detention pen, into which the fifteen male prisoners were placed yesterday because carpenters were building an addition to the men's quarters adjoining on the north side of the corridor, and divided from the courtroom by a board partition.

"The accommodations were so cramped that we had to enlarge the men's detention room, pending the construction of the new building for the court in Madison Street," said Commissioner Davis. "This entire building is inadequate for the work of the court and for the care of the prisoners brought here. We have to transfer them daily to the prison at Jefferson Market. The court officers supposed that the wall of the women's room was solid, like the other walls. The keeper is not to blame. There are no windows in the pen, and the keeper could only watch through the door, in front of which a group of the prisoners stood, and thus concealed the convict at owrk on the wall."

Grenett, who had been arrested eight or ten times since 1906, was convicted twice of burglary in 1907, and got a sentence to the penitentiary on Blackwell's Island. In 1910, Judge Otto A. Rosalsky, sentencing him to three years in Sing Sing, warned him that he would receive a life sentence as an habitual criminal if he came before him again. It is believed that Grenett took the other prisoners into his confidence, telling them that he was liable to become a "lifer," and they agreed to shield him in making his escape.

Detective Bolger of the Clinton Street station arrested Grenett early on Saturday morning as he was leaving the store of Max Pinkus, 105 Essex Street, with eleven overcoats and nineteen silk shirts in his arms. The convict had broken into the store through the wall, very much as he cut through the prison wall to liberty. He was held in $3,000 bail on the charge of grand larceny.

Word reached Joseph G. Fenster, Deputy Assistant District Attorney, that friends had raised the amount of bail necessary for the release of the convict, and he thereupon had the bail increased to $5,000. In the meantime he had searched the record of Grenett and had him arraigned again yesterday for the third time, and insisted that the bail be increased to $10,000 on the ground that the prisoner was a habitual criminal and liable to life imprisonment. When the Magistrate acceded to the request Grenett evidently determined to escape.

He was taken back to the pen at 11:40 o'clock. He had noted the proximity of the Magistrate's rooms to the pen, and the windows overlooking the avenue. He knew also that the Magistrate would not be in his rooms for half an hour or more, as there were a long line of prisoners to be disposed of. When he reached the chambers of the court he could have walked out of the door used as a private entrance from Second Avenue by the Magistrate. This is a small vestibule, with an inner door, and another at the street, fastened by a bolt on the inside, but the convict either did not know the door was unlocked or he feared the shutting of the door might attaract attention, so he chose the window as an exit.

There was surprise that Grenett could have squeezed his body through the small opening he made, as he is stout and broad of shoulders. It was supposed he took off some of his clothing and passed that through the hole.

The escaped prisoner is 35 years old.

IN NEW JERSEY.

HOBOKEN.—Health Officer Granelli has declared unfitted for use as food 400 bags of carrots, 131 crates of cabbages, and thirty-six crates of garlic which reached Hoboken on March 28 on the steamship Noble. The stuff will be loaded on a lighter, taken to sea, and dumped overboard.

NEWARK.—Dr. Thomas L. Fairfield a dentist, of 530 Orange Street surrendered to the police yesterday and was hed in $300 bail on the complaint of his wife, Mrs. Mary Fairfield, who charged him with having kicked and beaten her. She swore out the warrant on March 31. Dr. Fairfield had been in Washington, D. C., and when he learned there was a warrant for his arrest he hurried back to Newark to surrender himself. He was unable to get bail.

ELIZABETH.—Thirty days in the county jail was the sentence imposed yesterday on Alexander Rasmussen of 63 Pielliot Place, West Orange, for running an automobile beyond the speed limit. Rasmussen and Hans Beck of 453 Main Street, East Orange, who was fined $10, were arrested by Policeman Healy and State Motor Vehicle Inspector Shedd in North Broad Street on Sunday afternoon, and City Physician Higgins, who examined the men, reported they were both intoxicated.

ORANGE.—For the second time the voters of Orange will cast their ballots to-day on the question of the adoption of commission form of government. In September, 1911, an attempt to secure the new rule was defeated. Mayor Frank J. Murray, who will lose his office if commission form of government is adopted, is the leader of the campaign in its favor.

MONTCLAIR.—In its annual report issued yesterday, the Montclair Tuberculosis Prevention and Relief Association says that in the past year it cared for thirty-five positive cases, on which its trained nurses called 991 times. Of these twenty-two were new and thirteen old cases. The society conducts a weekly clinic at the Mountainside Hospital, and plans the three daily meals for the twenty members of the open-air class of the Cedar Avenue School.

NEWTON.—The approach of a policeman frightened six-year-old Bessie Snover of Hamilton Street yesterday, and in running she tripped and fell into the pond near the old gas house, along the edge of which she had been playing with her nine-year-old brother Louis. The little boy jumped in, and although the water was up to his neck, he placed her on his shoulders and stood in the stream until help arrived.

FIELDER KILLS RESEARCH.

TRENTON, N. J., April 13.—Arguments for and against the Colgate bill, which the Legislature passed, to enable the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research to establish a branch near New Brunswick, were heard by Gov. Fielder to-day. The Governor vetoed the bill late this afternoon.

The chief argument against the bill was made by Frederick P. Bellamy of Brooklyn, representing the Newark Vivisection Investigation League. He contended that the measure was so wide in its scope that it would permit the vivisection of human beings in addition to animals. He asserted that under the bill any one would have license to practice any kind of vivisection, and that any five persons, after incorporating, could conduct any sort of experimentation. M. J. Whitty of Newark also spoke against the bill.

D r. Director of Laboratories of the Rockefeller Institute, spoke in favor of the bill. Dr. Flexner said that the advances in medical science were due to experimentation, and he contended that every dose of medicine taken by a person was an experiment, as all drugs did not have the same effect on all persons.

Dr. J. T. Lipman, director of the experiment station at New Brunswick, and Dr. Richard Cole Newton favored the bill, as did Dr. B. C. Englis, editor of The oJurnal of the Medical Society of New Jersey, and Starr J. Murphy. It was argued in support of the bill that the farmers of New Jersey would be benefited, as studies would be made of diseases which affect farm animals.
